Future Of Ag Bright In Southeastern Pa.

BY SALLY BAIR
Lancaster Co. Correspondent

LANCASTER — The future of agriculture in southeastern Pennsylvania is bright, despite the continuing recession in the agricultural economy on the national level. Speaker after speaker at the fifth Future of Ag Conference held across the Commonwealth in the last two weeks brought messages of optimism about the state of agriculture in this region.

Sponsored by the Pennsylvania State University and the Penn State Ag Advisory Council, the five seminars were a follow-up to the statewide conference held last spring. The mood was especially upbeat in southeastern Pennsylvania, because of the overall healthy economy in the area.

Keynote speaker Robert D. Spencer, executive vice president of the Philadelphia National Bank, and Lamartine Hood, dean of Penn State's College of Agriculture, shared optimism about the economy and agriculture in the southeastern portion of the state. Close markets and skilled labor force are two positive factors in the "very, very optimistic" mood Spencer attributes to the area.

Spencer said the farm economy is in relatively good condition, adding that farmland values have not changed dramatically and the "misfortune" of grain farmers has benefitted local farmers. He noted, "The diverse economy has been a blessing. Our farmers are feeding us and selling the surplus to our neighbors."

Lancaster County Commissioner James Huber, right, greets Lamartine Hood dean of Penn State's College of Agriculture, during the southeast region's Future of Pennsylvania Agriculture Conference held in Lancaster this week. Huber served as master of ceremonies

Setting the tone for the conference in his opening remarks, Hood had pointed out similar strengths of the region. He noted that agriculture is close to markets, has an excellent labor supply and a high degree of diversification, which gives it the opportunity to move ahead.

Hood said, "This is an exciting time for Pennsylvania agriculture, with new leadership in Harrisburg and in the Department of Agriculture and Department of Environmental Resources." He added that he feels there is exciting leadership at Penn State, noting that President Bryce Jordan "understands agriculture and the importance of agribusiness."

Speaking to current issues in Pennsylvania, Hood noted the importance of the water supply and its influence on supplies in the surrounding states. He said Pennsylvania is "determined to be full partners" in the effort to study the concerns on water quality, and noted, "Agriculture and related activities have a great deal at stake. We have a responsibility to consumers to have a clean water supply."

He added, "We are determined to try and expand efforts related to animal health."

Three-fourths Of Producers At Meeting Say Yes To MO

UEP, AEB Campaign For Marketing Order In Lancaster

BY JACK HUBLEY

LANCASTER — Milk's got more, beef's real food for real people, pork's the other white meat.

So where's the incredible edible egg?

Far out in left field, according to Christine Bushway and Ed Houston. Bushway, president of Northeast United Egg Producers, and Houston, chairman of the American Egg Board, came to Lancaster's Farm and Home Center on Monday to tell producers that it's time for the egg industry to come out of its shell. And both hard-boiled egg industry representatives told the crowd that the industry has hatched a viable plan.

It's called the egg marketing order, and, if USDA Secretary Richard Lyng gives the program the nod, the marketing order should come to a nationwide producer vote by early May, according to Bushway.

The vote will culminate a five-year battle by UEP to institute a mandatory checkoff program aimed at shoring up the egg's sagging popularity. In its original form the marketing order contained provisions for egg production quantity controls, removal of surplus laying hens and promotion. As the order matured, however, USDA nixed both the surplus removal and quantity control provisions, leaving the industry with an order aimed primarily at increasing demand for its product.

With egg consumption continuing to slide, promoting its product should prove to be a big enough job in itself for the industry. According to the Pennsylvania Poultry Federation's executive director John Hoffman, the nation's egg consumption has been on a more or less continuous slide since 1945, when per capita consumption hit 405 eggs a year. Last year Americans each consumed 260 eggs, according to American Egg Board figures.

By imposing a mandatory one-half cent per dozen checkoff on all egg producers, (no exceptions, Bushway emphasized) the industry would raise $24 million nationally. The marketing order calls for 15 percent of a state's contributions to be returned to the state, which would fatten Pennsylvania's promotional kitty by about $300,000, Bushway said.

PPF's John Hoffman notes that the money would enable the Keystone State to escalate its promotion efforts significantly. Currently the AEB accumulates promotion monies through a 5-cent per case checkoff, which computes to .16 cent per dozen. Although all flock owners with 3,000 or more layers are required to contribute to the fund, the program is voluntary in that anyone may request a refund. At present, slightly more than half of the nation's egg producers are requesting refunds. Under this program states only

Lancaster Soil, Water Conservationists Honored

BY JACK HUBLEY

LANCASTER — With the current emphasis on erosion control and nutrient management in southeastern Pennsylvania, it's easy to lose sight of the fact that the concept of keeping the soil on the farm wasn't born with the Chesapeake Bay crisis.

In fact, decades before the Bay's plight became "official," a few farmers were quietly practicing soil conservation in the name of common sense and good economics.

Such a farmer is Edd Zug, Jr., who was one of the first Chester County farmers to slow runoff through the use of strip cropping. In 1973 Zug and his wife Dorothy moved their family to their farm located near Peach Bottom in Fulton Township. Within a year Zug signed on as a cooperator with the Lancaster County Conservation District, and on Thursday evening the district recognized the family's longstanding commitment to the land by naming them Outstanding Cooperator for 1987.

Zug and his son Edward milk 50 cows and crop more than 120 acres of their 150-acre farm, planting corn, alfalfa, wheat and oats. The Zugs have always concentrated on cost-effective conservation measures, relying mainly on crop rotation and narrow strips of 90 to 100 feet in width to keep their soil and water from rushing south.

"We like to keep things simple and practical," says Zug. "We feel we can control erosion practically without big expense."

Rather than fight Mother Nature, the Zugs keep sod in those parts of their fields where surface water collects and flows during heavy rains.

Manure from the dairy herd is stored in combination with bedding from the tie stall barn in semi-solid form in a roofed manure storage building measuring 36-by-36-by-8½ feet deep. The system allows Edward to use a conventional manure spreader, and three months of storage capacity enables him to stay off the fields in late winter and early spring when wet soils are particularly

Skim Milk Is 'Smart Cola'

BY EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

JOHNSTOWN — Dairy products, especially skim milk, probably got the greatest boost in many a year when Dr. Richard J. Patterson, M.D., took on the soda pop industry here Thursday evening. He called soft drinks "malnutrition at its best" and gave skim milk the label of "the smart cola."

Patterson came to his conclusion after an extensive study of the affects of calcium and phosphate on the human body. "It became obvious to me," Patterson said, "that one of the reasons the dairy industry is not fairing so well economically is because of Madison Avenue sharpies that run competitive businesses. These businesses especially include: soft drinks, alcohol, chemical

Vintage Hearing Scheduled

A hearing date has been set to hear a request for a preliminary injuction filed by Vintage Sales Stables, Inc. and L. Robert Frame, Sr., against the Federal Government to stop the enforcement of the Beef Promotion and Research Act. The hearing will be held on Friday, April 3, 1987, at 10:00 a.m. in front of Federal Judge Cahn in the old Lehigh County Courthouse (Courtroom #2) in Allentown, Pennsylvania. This case will be a test case of agricultural programs for the entire country.

Congress put into effect on October 1, 1986, the Beef Promotion and Research Act. Under the act, beef producers are required to pay $1 per head for all ACRES CORN UPDATE: Corn futures closed from $ .01 to $.01-3/4 lower on commercial selling linked to the completion of Taiwan's US corn purchase. Corn was also under pressured from ideas that the CCC would be making changes in order to make PIK and ROLL work better. March corn continues to face pressure from local selling linked to long liquidation before Friday's expiration of the March option on the board.

ACRES SOYBEAN UPDATE: Soybean futures closed from unchanged to up 01-1/4 cents and settled near session highs boosted by commercial and commission house buying. Also supporting beans today were the continued slow interior move ment and a stronger tone at the Gulf. Short covering was noted in old crop on warmness connected with the Brazilliam port situation.

ACRES WHEAT UPDATE: Wheat futures closed from down 3/4 cent to up 2 cents on good broad based follow through buying in the deferreds. Losses in the nearby were attributed to commission house selling associated with profit taking on ideas that yesterday's rally was overdone. Good commercial stopping of deliveries against the March option underpinned prices, but continued long liquidation pushed March lower.

ACRES CATTLE UPDATE: Cattle futures closed higher again today in good follow through buying from Tuesday's close. The uptrend is back intact with live cattle futures posting new contract highs in the April, June and August contracts. The cash market was slightly higher again today, adding a firm tone to both live and feeder cattle futures. Strong packer demand and active boxed beef trade added support throughout the session. Yield Grade #3 choice steers printed steady to $3.00 higher at $91.00 to $92.00.

CME FEEDER CATTLE SETTLEMENT: $67.65 as of 3/16/87 + $.04.

Estimated slaughter today was 123,000 to 126,000 compared to 124,000 yesterday.

ACRES HOG UPDATE: Hog futures closed rallied today, closing as much 63 points higher in April. Pork belly futures were limit up in the first three options. The cash market added support again today with scratch tops of $51.00 at some terminals. Rumors of wet weather conditions restricting movement also added support in late trading.

Estimated slaughter today was 292,000 compared with 302,000 yesterday.

Delmarva Poultry

Thursday, Mar. 19, 1987

Market Comment: Demand for ready to cook whole birds was slow to fair. Offerings generally ranged adequate to available. Demand for part items was good for immediate type deliveries, mixed but generally light but unaggressive for later shipments. Less than trucklot asking prices were in a wider range at 43 to 51 cents with some sellers willing to negotiate to stimulate additional demand. Live supplies were generally moderate at mixed weights. Slaughter schedules were moderately heavy. The undertone was fully steady but cautious.

Estimated slaughter of broiler fryers in Delmarva:

Estimated 3/19 2,300,000; Actual 3/12 2,010,000.

Actual 3/17 1,889,000.

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

MARCH 23-29, 1987

The weather breaks before your patience.

Last U S Army homing pigeons sold off, March 23, 1957 Escape artist Harry Houdini born at Appleton Wis , March 24 1874 Average length of days for the week, 12 hours, 25 minutes Gen Zachary Taylor crossed the Nueces River in Texas, initiating war with Mexico, March 28, 1846 New moon March 29 (Sun)

To err is human to repent divine, to persist devilish

Ask the Old Farmer: I ve heard and had occasion to use the expression deep six in reference to jettisoning something The only explanation I could come up with was that a fathom is equal to six feet and in the days of wooden ships and iron men six feet was considered deep water Can you shed more light on the subject? F O , Carlisle, Pa

The original hand-sounding line was divided and marked from two fathoms to twenty-five Water beyond that depth was measured and reported ' by the deeps' with the figure added "By the deep six' would therefore be thirty-one fathoms

Calcium: Hub of Nutrition

Have you ever seen such a booming new market? Dozens of companies are trying to latch onto the calcium mania. Go to any drugstore, and you'll find liquids, tablets, gels, gums and powders. You can find some advertising that offers "pure" calcium. But that might be simply an adman's ploy. Because Dave Miller of the National Association of Retail Druggists says calcium is calcium no matter how it's manufactured.

But that brings us to the point. It doesn't need to be manufactured from oyster shells, bone meal or dolomite rock. People who want to protect themselves from osteoporosis can get plenty of calcium from milk and other dairy products. And the fact that the Patterson clinic recognized this source of calcium and called a seminar to present a full and balanced picture of calcium is very gratifying. This is especially so since these professional medical people called together their ranks to intermingle with dairymen.

This symposium discussed in considerable detail what calcium is, what it does, how it does it, how it must be supplied and what consequences are when it is not. Jim Harteis, president of the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Board was approached by the professional people, and he organized the farm representatives to be at the event.

Good health, a healthy family and a safe and prosperous society have been paying the cost of the economic gain by special interest. And the dairy industry, a good and necessary basic industry of Pennsylvania, has suffered a similar cost. But a milestone in credibility for milk and dairy products was achieved Thursday evening when an interdisciplinary mix of people attended the "Calcium: Hub of Nutrition" symposium in Johnstown.

To Apply Poultry Manure Sparingly

With the large poultry population in this region, poultry manure is in good supply. Since poultry manure can contain from 15 pounds to nearly 50 pounds of nitrogen per ton, depending on moisture and litter content, over application can burn crops and result in disappointments. Gardeners should not be using heavy amounts of fresh manure in their soils. On cropland it is recommended that poultry manure applications be limited to not more than 5 to 7 tons of 75 percent moisture content per acre.

Keep in mind that some poultry manure may contain up to 50 pounds of nitrogen per ton and can burn seeds and crop roots. Poultry manure is also the highest in phosphorus and potash of any of our farm manures. It has excellent fertilizer value when used properly.

The 1987-88 Agronomy Guide (page 22) gives additional details about the fertilizer values of farm manures. The Agronomy Guide is available through any Extension Office for $5.

To Remove Trash

Landowners along rural roads are the victims of people who have little respect for property of others. Too many people are dumping trash in fields along the road. In all cases when this is dumped on pastures or cropland, the trash should be removed before spring growth begins. This trash will be hard on farm equipment when on cropland and may be poisonous to livestock when on pastureland.

We urge property owners to remove the trash in the next few weeks. If any type of identification can be made, as to the owner of the trash, this should be reported to Township officials; prosecution can be made for dumping trash along the highway.

To Practice Safety

We are now into spring and that brings heavy demands on field work. This includes the use of many types of machinery which increases the potential for accidents. We urge farmers to take time to be safe; in many cases, haste has been the reason for farm accidents.

When we are in a hurry we overlook safety measures and face additional hazards. There are three elements of safety... people, machine and environment. Controlling people is by far the most difficult, especially in farm safety.

Take time to be safe...otherwise you may be sorry for the rest of your life.

To Prepare A Will

The statement "we don't own enough to justify a will" is overused by many families. If you have a family and you own anything, you should have a will. If a person dies without a will, the property is distributed according to the Intrastate Laws of Pennsylvania. These laws may not distribute your estate according to your desires. This has often happened in the past and there is little that can be done about it without a will.

We urge all family heads, and property owners, to contact a lawyer and have him help with making a will. The cost will be considerably less than settling an estate without a will. There is some very good information dealing with "wills" in the Estate Planning bulletin available at any Extension Office.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS
BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE BITTEREST CUP OF ALL

March 22, 1987

Background Scripture: Luke 22:39-53.
Devotional Reading: John 5:30-38.

"Father, if thou art willing, remove this cup from me," Jesus prayed in the garden of Gethsemane on his last night on earth. The "cup" is obviously the "cup of suffering" which lies before him on Calvary. Jesus was not looking for martyrdom. He did not go out into the world looking for a cross. But neither did he run from it when the cross came looking for him. Suffering would be a bitter "cup", but giving in to the temptation of betraying his mission was an even more bitter "cup" and he would not give in to that temptation, no matter how strong or compelling it was.

RISE AND PRAY

Jesus was also concerned that his disciples should not fall prey to this temptation. When they arrived in Gethsemane, he advised them to "Pray that you may not enter into temptation" (Luke 22:40). And, after praying himself, when he came to find them asleep, he said: "Rise and pray that you may not enter into temptation" (22:46).

What was this temptation? Probably the same one that faced Jesus, although the form of it may have been different: the temptation to avoid suffering by compromising one's loyalty to the Gospel Jesus had been preaching and demonstrating. Judas had already fallen prey to this temptation. But the temptation that faced the rest of the disciples was even more insidious.

SHALL WE STRIKE?

The temptation to which the disciples almost fell victim was the very same one that had overcome Jesus's enemies. They were afraid of Jesus's influence over the masses, so they decided to silence him in the same way that had been popular from the time of the first cave men: physical force. "Have you come out as against a robber, with swords and clubs?" (22:52) said Jesus. Do you think you can kill the truth with violence?

And the disciples, although they had sat at Jesus's feet and heard his teachings about loving one's enemies, almost took up the tactics of the enemy: "Lord, shall we strike with the sword?" (22:49). As so often in these situations, someone didn't even wait for the answer before hacking off the ear of the high priest's servant.

Fortunately they obeyed when Jesus admonished them, "No more of this!" How ironic, then, that in almost 2000 years since then, Christians have continued to fall victim to this temptation to drink the bitterest cup of all, to seek to protect the truth with the lie of brute force.

Next Sale Dates & Times

Tuesday, March 24, 1 p.m.

Thursday, March 26, 1 p.m.

Receiving Tobacco Monday thru Fridays
7 a.m. to 5 p.m.

We are expecting more buyers for our Tuesday & Thursday sales and we feel it is VERY IMPORTANT that you visit our sales or call after the sales for sale results. Last weeks top price was 60¢. Average price was also up from last week's sale.

If you want to process your tobacco, make sure how and why you select the right company to process. Alex Parker Tobacco Co. is a future buyer and will help to improve our market. They are quite capable of selling this tobacco. They are a very credit-worthy tobacco company.

We need new tobacco companies in our market. We at Paradise are doing the best we can to get this job DONE!

Call us to find out what style of tobacco we expect to be in demand this week.

When sowing your new tobacco beds, it is important to apply Ridomil according to the LABEL. Too much can stunt plant growth. Two layers of muzzling will also produce earlier plants. Be sure that you inspect your tobacco that's still in the barn, to make sure it is not heating and spoiling.

MARKETING KEYSTONE TOBACCO GROUP

IMPORTANT NOTICE

Auction Warehouses will continue to hold sales up to and including the week of March 23.

If you still wish to sell your crop at auction, phone warehouses to schedule your delivery. Warehouses are prepared to move your tobacco through the auction system - to turn crop into cash. As warmer weather approaches, growers should be concerned about bales heating.

The auction system has proved to be a vital part of the tobacco marketing system in this depressed season. The Keystone Tobacco Marketing Group will continue to strive towards providing you the best market available for your crop.

For information regarding The Keystone Tobacco Marketing Group, contact Ken Brubaker at PO Box 267, Bird-In-Hand, PA 17505. Or Phone 215-696-7561

Grazing Seminar Scheduled

RED LION — A Red Lion-area supplier of fencing and related supplies will be holding a rotational grazing seminar on Thursday, March 26. Seminar host Scott Taylor notes that the focus of the meeting will be on getting the most from your pastures through rotational grazing utilizing Gallagher spring-tight high tensile power fence systems.

Keynote speaker for the program will be Henry Swayze, a Vermont-based sheep breeder who has experience in applying New Zealand fencing techniques to dairy, beef and sheep operations.

The program begins at 10 a.m. with a discussion of dairy fencing techniques. After lunch Swayze will discuss rotational grazing systems for beef and sheep producers. The program, including lunch, will be provided free of charge.

The event will be held at Taylor's residence. Take Route 24 south through Red Lion, and turn right onto Franklin St. Extended. Turn left on Camp Rd. and watch for the sign indicating spring-tight power fence systems. Those planning to stay for lunch should call Taylor at 717-246-2029.

Carroll County Holstein Club Honors Members

BY SHARON B. SCHUSTER
Maryland Correspondent

TANEYTOWN, Md. — The Carroll County Holstein Association, home club of the state association president, Joseph Schwartzbeck, held its annual banquet and meeting in Taneytown on March 16. President of the Carroll County Club, Jason Myers, said that because the members are so active, involved and productive, they were able to hold the affair at no cost to the 150 in attendance.

Production awards, achievement certificates and All-Maryland awards were presented. Jenell Rinehart, daughter of John Rinehart, Rinehart Farms in Taneytown, received the Reserve Junior All-American Heifer Calf award.

President Jason Myers announced that there were 29 All-Maryland Awards, "and Carroll County got 16 of those 29. Every animal was bred by the person that exhibited it. I don't know if we can ever do that again, but I'm real proud that the whole county worked hard. We certainly had a lot of success this past year." Awards were presented as follows:

COUNTER® In-Furrow.

Windproof Studies show that wind can seriously affect the placement of your insecticide during banded application. Winds of only 10 mph can blow granules as much as 20 inches off the row. And a 20 mph wind can put your insecticide off-target by 30 inches or more.

But even 30 mph winds don't affect the accurate placement of COUNTER® systemic insecticide-nematicide applied in-furrow. So you put all of your protection where it's needed most.

Rainproof With in-furrow application, your valuable insecticide is working beneath the surface, where it's protected from heavy rains.

Proven Performance COUNTER controls more major corn pests than any other product. It's the broadest-spectrum control you can get.

Volunteer Daughter Nets Top Bid At Willaman Dispersal

BY GINGER SECRIST MYERS
Adams County Correspondent

TRANSFER – The Willaman Jersey Dispersal, held at the Robert Willaman Farm, March 5, had all the ingredients for a successful sale. It offered 75 head of deep-pedigreed registered Jerseys with a rolling herd average over 12,000 pounds of milk. It attracted buyers looking to add Jersey milk to their tanks for the local cheese market which pays $17.75 per hundred weight for high solids milk. And, it was managed by the Jersey Marketing Service who attracted buyers to the sale from as far away as Texas.

All these combined for a sale average of $942 on 75 head. The median selling price was $875. The sale grossed $70,625.

Topping the sale on a final bid of $1,900 was a fancy 2-year-old daughter of Mayfield Volunteer, Fredrika Elite of WJF Volunteer. Auctioneer Steve Andrews, Wooster, Ohio, handled the rapid-fire bidding which started at the $1,000 mark and quickly climbed by $100 increments.

Fredrika is currently working on her 1-11 record with a 305 day actual projection of 11,858 pounds of milk, 519 pounds of fat, and 430 pounds of protein. She sold safe in calf to a service of Highland Magic Duncan. She was purchased by Laurie Reeder, Punxsatawney. Contending bidder was Phil Miller, Sugar Creek, Ohio.

Miller was the final bidder on the second-high selling cow, Willaman Lance Eidel Posey. He paid $1750 for the 2-year-old grand-daughter of Reglis Deni Hi-Power. She sold springing with her second calf to a service of Rocky Hill Silverling Beau. Posey's current MCD is +4105M +181F +541$ +81P +447CY$.

The third high selling cow stayed closer to home. Gerald Moose, Mercer, paid $1600 for Willaman Jody Cream Wheat. This cow hails from the matriarch of the herd, Willaman Milk King Tradett Cream. A good-uddered Surville daughter, her current actual projected record at 4-10 305 days is 14,656 pounds of milk, 547 pounds of fat, and 500 pounds of protein.

High volume buyer at the sale was Al Janak, Weimar, Texas. He took home 16 head for $12,550.

Fredrika Elite of WJF Volunteer was the high selling cow at the Willaman Jersey Sale held at the Willaman Farm on March 5. She commanded a purchase price of $1900. Shown here with Fredrika are (left) Robert Willaman, Phil Miller, Sugar Grove, Ohio, contender, and Laurie Reeder, Punxsatawney, buyer.

As a result of their conservation efforts, the Zug's farm could be eroding twice as fast as it is now and still be well within tolerable erosion limits, according to Soil Conservation Service calculations. But Edd Zug has no intention of relaxing his soil conservation standards. "You make more money when it (soil) doesn't wash away," he points out.

Another southern Lancaster Countian, Axel Linde, finds no-till to be an effective way to keep the soil from leaving his Kirkwood-area farm. Linde, who farms 140 acres and owns a herd of 40 registered Guernseys, received the district's No-till Award for his success in no-tilling corn, alfalfa and small grains. After three years of experience with the conservation practice, Linde no-tilled 26 acres of small grains, seven acres of alfalfa and 24 acres of corn in 1986.

A number of other awards highlighted the district's annual meeting.

Chesapeake Bay Clean Water Farm Award - Mr. and Mrs. Robert L. Kauffman, Jr., were recipients of this award co-sponsored by the district and the Department of Environmental Resources. A former county Outstanding Cooperator, Kauffman has constructed 2,600 feet of sod waterways, 4,665 feet of diversion terraces and contour strips on the family's 155-acre dairy farm in Drumore Township. The Kauffman 105-cow herd averages 20,400 pounds of milk and 761 pounds of fat, demonstrating the compatibility of a high producing dairy operation and far-sighted soil and water conservation practices.

Outstanding Storm Water Management - The New Holland Farmers National Bank was cited for its stormwater management plan at the bank's Eden Park branch office in Manheim Township. Constructed in 1977, the site includes perimeter swales and a large basin to control flooding.

Outstanding Service - Two members of the district's Youth Conservation School staff were honored. Mike Good of Elizabethtown attended the school in 1980 as a student and returned in 1981 as a junior counselor. Since then he has served as a counselor and assistant director.

Shirley Metzler Sager of Ephrata has served as a counselor since 1981, first as a junior counselor and finally as a senior counselor. She also attended state conservation schools for two years.

Special Service- County Commissioner James Huber presented this award to Grant Heilman, a former Lititz resident and founder of Grant Heilman Photography, based in Lititz. Heilman, who now lives in Colorado, specializes in agricultural photography for use in books, magazines and other publications. His firm donates the aerial photograph presented to the district's Outstanding Cooperator each year.

margarines and other concoctions such as calcium tablets that have been clearly shown to have no value at all." Patterson gave his conclusions in a calcium dinner symposium and clinic for medical professional people and farm leaders.

"Simplicity in terms of health and nutrition are really where the best results appear, " Patterson said. "It is possible through nutrition to do things with people's health where you don't pay a detrimental cost of side effects from drugs. However, I have found an astonishing fact that in a huge area about calcium that is very poorly understood by practically everyone. Calcium can be divided into two areas: the blood control of calcium and the other new area, about what is happening to calcium within the cells of the body."

Published information that is available to the medical profession is decidedly lacking in coverage of these important areas according to Patterson. "The nutritional problems that result in osteoporosis and many other severe problems in terms of health are readily preventable by adequate nutrition. In calcium you need to keep a constant supply in the body within a very narrow range. Some of the symptoms of low calcium levels include: hypertension, tight muscles, spasms and cramps, feelings of numbness and tingling around the mouth and finger tips, difficulty in walking, defective vision, double vision, not mentally alert, not able to swallow, stomach spasms, psychological problems and disorders of the skin. A prolonged state of low levels of calcium can result in the sublevel of intelligence in children. In addition, when phosphate levels in the body increase, you get a forced type action that drives the calcium down to lower levels," Patterson said. "There is definite need for nutritional intake of milk and dairy products. With proper nutrition that includes skim milk and other intelligent dairy products, these problems can be prevented. Skim milk is the best calcium product on the market," Patterson concluded.

In opening comments, James Harteis, president of the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Board, said that the dairy industry has received a lot of bad publicity from members of the medical profession. But Patterson came to us and said he thinks calcium is vital and asked if farmers would be interested in getting together with a group of medical people to hear the discussion of the new research related to calcium and nutrition. "Dairymen did not solicit this report. But we are extremely pleased to have it come to us and to be a part of this clinic," Harteis said.

Vintage Hearing

cattle sold. This money is then sent into the State Beef Council. This type of law has already previously been voted down on two separate occassions by farmerss across the country. The "policy" of Congress is that the public interest would be served by establishing a procedure for "financing" (through assessments on all cattle sold in the United States) and carrying out a coordinated program of promotion and research designed to strengthen the beef industry's position in the market place.

L. Robert Frame, Sr., president of Vintage Sales Stables, Inc., says his right to free speech is being abused because he is being forced to take part in an advertising campaign. The government, he contends, has in effect created a "trade association for the support of a private, non-public business, and then is purporting to compel private farmers to support the trade association, financially against their will". Additionally, constitutional violations involving unfair taxation, the taking of private property without just compensation, violations of due process, and excesses of explicate or implicate grants of power to congress are also involved.

Frame wants the law declared unconstitutional, wants the court to stop the collection of money and to refund any unused amounts. The U.S. Department of Agriculture through the Department of Justice seeks to require Frame to pay back assessments and to comply with the law in the future.

Supporters of Frame have organized a convoy of buses which will leave from the Vintage Sales Stables premises at 7:30 a.m. on Friday, April 3, bound for Allentown. Many farmers have already reserved a spot on this convoy, according to Frame. The hearing is opened to the public and interested farmers are urged to attend.

Misty Hollow Farm On 'Unofficial' Tour

Jersey Farm Strives For Excellence In Breeding Program

QUARRYVILLE — The Pennsylvania Jersey Cattle Club will hold its annual state meeting next weekend at the Historic Stasburg Inn, Lancaster County. While no formal tours are planned as part of the meeting, several breeders in the county will welcome visitors to their farms.

One of these farms is the Misty Hollow Farm, Spring Valley Road, Quarryville, home of the Robert Ulrich Jr. family and Valley U Jerseys.

Misty Hollow has been breeding Jersey cows since it was established in 1939 by Robert's father, Robert Sr. Since that time it has been run as a family farm.

The family recorded one of their greatest breeding accomplishments last July. At that time their home-bred cow, Valley U Brass Betsy, topped the CPI list in Pennsylvania and ranked as the 25th high cow in the nation.

Betsy, a 3 year old, produced a 2-year-old record of 16,491 pounds of milk and 772 pounds of fat with a 4.7 test in 324 days. Her CPI was approximately 225. Her dam produced a top record of 21,430 pounds of milk and 874 pounds of fat in 305 days. Ulrich noted representatives from a bull stud expressed interest in a calf from Betsy, but they are waiting to see her performance in her current lactation. Betsy freshened in January with a Duncan heifer calf.

Two other cow families stand out in Ulrich's mind as making significant contributions to his herd — Valley U Superb Babe and Valley U Mercury Florence.

Babe classified Excellent and produced over 900 pounds of fat. He has sold one bull from Babe to a stud service. Babe's daughter, Valley U Fascinator Luella, produced over 900 pounds of fat and classified Excellent. Robert has sold two bulls from Luella into a stud services.

"The third generation was just fresh a few days ago," Ulrich noted, expressing optimism for the future of the family.

Florence produced six consecutive records over 850 pounds of fat in 305 day lactations. Last year she completed her 305 day lactation with 985 pounds of fat. During her lifetime she has produced an averaged 5.4 test per lactation.

Despite her superior production abilities, the Florence family offers no genetic value to the Misty Hollow Farms because the Mercury bull was a limberleg carrier, Ulrich explained. "But she pays the bills," he said.

"We are getting to the point now in our breeding program where we can start to merchandise. A few cows have CPIs that are high enough and the pedigrees are deep enough. If the cows do like I expect that they will, I think we will be able to start merchandising out of some of them," Ulrich explained.

He expects a proof on his first bull, random sampled through NOBA, next January.

Marketing replacement heifers has helped Ulrich maintain his cash flow, he explained. Two years ago he sold 22 replacements.

Ulrich noted he keeps every heifer born on the farm. Those not need for replacement within his own herd are offered for sale. He has entered two heifers in the state sale to be held on Saturday, March 28, the second day of the Pennsylvania Jersey Cattle Club's annual meeting.

Ulrich posted a 1986 rolling herd average of 13,800 pounds of milk and 678 pounds of fat on 100 cows.

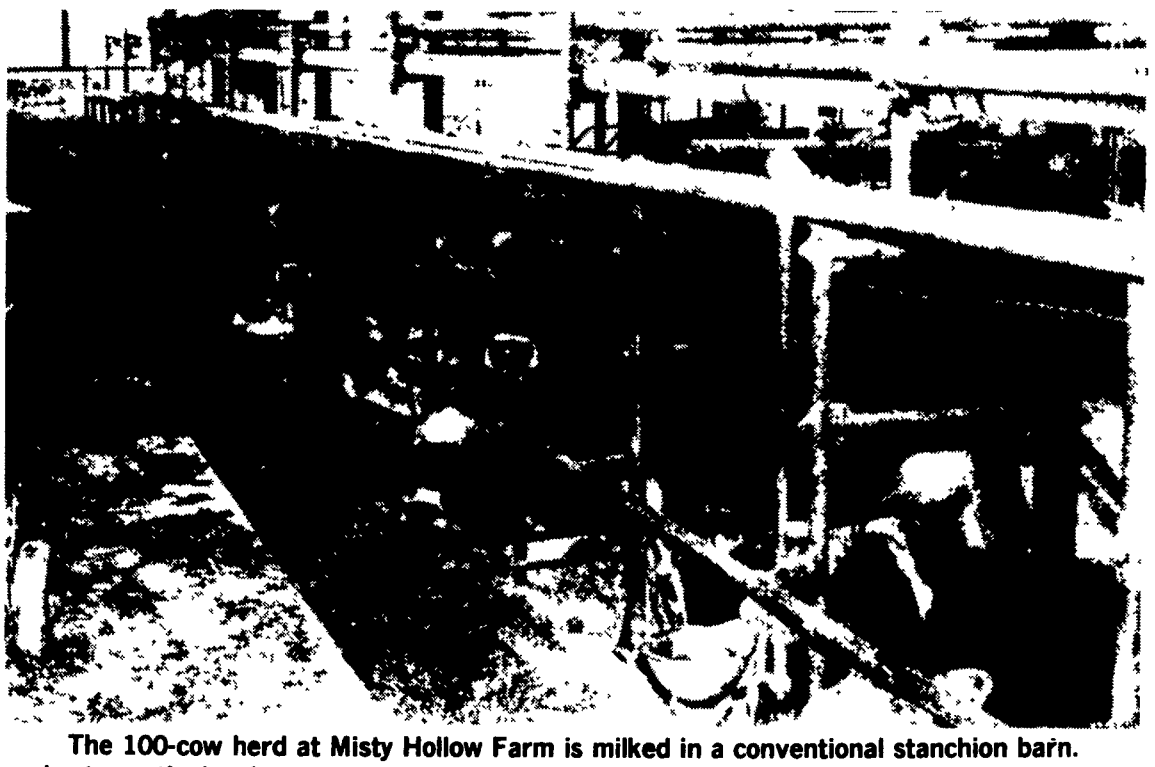
He breeds 25 to 30 percent of his animals to young sires and selects the top three or four TPI bulls in the breed for the rest of his herd. "I thinks it's any dairymen's responsibility to help prove the young sires," Ulrich said. He selects the young sires on a random basis without regard to bloodlines.

Top Brass is one sire Ulrich holds in high regard. "I think he's going to have a tremendous impact on the breed," the Quarryville Jersey breeder said. Ulrich noted he is pleased with the Top Brass daughters in his herd which have been freshening. "Before Top Brass the 2 year olds were not what I wanted genetically." He added, "Hopefully, he'll help push us over the 700 pound plateau."

Ulrich expressed frustration with his herd average. "It seems like we've been knocking against 700 for so long but just can't seem to make it. We seem to have hit a plateau."

Presently, Ulrich is working with a local feed company to improve the herd's RHA. A total mixed ration program is on the drawing board, he commented.

He currently feeds approximately 10 pounds of alfalfa haylage, 18 pounds of corn silage, nine pounds of baled alfalfa hay, high moisture corn, and a 25 percent topdress.



The 100-cow herd at Misty Hollow Farm is milked in a conventional stanchion barn. Last year the herd averaged 13,800 pounds of milk and 678 pounds of fat.

He houses his milking herd in a stanchion barn, which the Quarryville dairymen noted was designed for 58 head. A loafing barn takes up the slack. Ulrich and his father originally milked 58 cows during their partnership which lasted from 1969 to 1974. When Ulrich bought out the partnership he "realized 58 cows were not nearly sufficient to do the job."

Future expansion depends on the plans of his hired man, Jeff Keller, and his 16-year-old son, Tim. Ulrich credits notes Keller, who has worked for him for the past nine years, with playing a key role in the herd's progress. The opportunity for him to buy in at any time is there, Ulrich explained.

Keller maintains the farms equipment and works with the heifers. He presently owns 15 Jerseys, Ulrich added.

Ulrich has started his calves in hutches for the past six years. In that time he reduced the herd's calf mortality rate from 20 percent to 2 percent. He recently added an eight-pen calf kennel which he notes is easier on the person feeding. Previously, calves were raised in the back part of the barn where environmental conditions were poor, he added.

Calves are kept on a milk diet for three months. Ulrich has found the extended period on milk provides the calves with a better start and helps them grow more rapidly.

At 4 months of age the calves are moved to a three-sided open front barn in pens of eight and grouped by age. When the heifers reach 10 or 11 months, they are moved to a nearby, open-housing type heifer barn. After a pregnancy confirmation and near calving time, the heifers are moved back to the main barn area.

He gears his breeding program to freshen heifers in the fall to meet base production demands. The heifers range in age from 1 year 10 months up to 2 years and 3 months.

During high school Ulrich became active in the management of the herd by selecting herd matings. Since that time the herd has become 100 percent AI.

Through working with the sires he has witnessed changes in the Jersey breed which have secured and increased his alliance to the breed. "At one point I thought the Jersey breed was not progressing the way it should," he said. However, within the last 10 years the breed has made real progress, he noted.

"I don't think 800 pounds of fat is out of reach for the breed. In fact I think it is very much within reach," Ulrich said.

Misty Hollow Farms has raised Jerseys since the beginning and Ulrich never considered changing the color of the cows on the farm. "That's what I was born and raised with," he commented. He professes loyalty to the breed and readily cites its advantages.

"I'm really high on the breed," Ulrich said. While the breed is working with a smaller genetic pool than the Holsteins, he feels it has made just as much progress production wise.

Highland Magic Duncan's dollar value at $236 is quite remarkable, Ulrich commented. He noted only the Holstein's Comin-On Holsteins Chief owns a higher dollar value among active AI sires.

He classified the Jersey's as the "breed of the future" due to the Hutches have reduced calf mortality from 20 percent to 2 percent since Robert Ulrich began using hutches six years ago.

The Ulrich family's farm is located on Spring Valley Road, Quarryville, in southern Lancaster County.

Local Dairymen Hear Purina Research Data

The 1987 Purina dairy meeting was held Wednesday at the Plain and Fancy Restaurant with a sizable group of farmers attending when you consider the nice weather for doing spring work.

Wendell Law, Keystone division sales manager, called the meeting to order and said that the purpose of the meeting was to obtain knowledge of the research projects, show how to utilize roughages and provide the economics of feeding high performance products. He showed the relationship between corn production and milk production based on 1940, 1960 and 1980 figures. Over the 40-year period, both corn and milk production doubled and Law suggested what factors caused this increase: genetics, management and nutrition. "But," Law said, "an acre is still an acre. And a cow is still a cow. We have been able to increase the output without increasing the size of the acre or the cow. Some of the nutrients that are required for corn and cows include: energy, nitrogen and protein, potassium and calcium, phosphorus, trace minerals, vitamins and fiber. Our challenge is to find out how you balance these nutrients to get the best production."

Dr. David W. Weakley, senior nutritionist at the Purina Missouri research center, gave some of the research behind the high-energy line of feeds. "In a typical lactation curve," Weakley said, "cows tend to increase production rapidly. The problem in early lactation is that dry matter intake lags behind the peak production. This generally takes off body weight to get enough energy to produce the large amount of milk. Consequently, you have a problem the first two or three months where intake lags behind production. This is where high-energy feeds come into play. Basically, concentrates with high fat give a high energy value feed."

Weakley showed how the different ingredients such as protein, carbohydrates, fats and fiber effect production and fat test. "It's important to keep a balance of ingredients," Weakley said. "Because some ingredients depress milk fat and others increase it. Vegetable oil tends to depress milk fat tests," Weakley said.

In addition, Weakley showed the Purina research farm facilities with slides that indicated some of the methods and equipment used to monitor feed intake in research projects. Most of the projects are fed by hand. However, Weakley showed one trial out that uses Farmtronix computerized feeding system distributed through the Purina dealerships. This feeding system allows the operator to punch in the feed data for each cow and automatically feed the cow the amount she needs when the tripping device hung on her neck chain comes into range of the feed trough unit.

Larry Wile, Purina dairy specialist, discussed how to maximize forage profits through income from milk and fat where cows need to balance energy and fiber. "The key to pure profits is the forage on your farm," Wile said. "You grow forage on your farm, and the feed person must high percentage of milk, over 50 percent, which is used for manufacturing. Jersey milk is ideal for manufacturing, he continued, because of its high fat and protein content. He speculated that end-product pricing will become a reality.

"In the future protein pricing has to be a must," Ulrich said. Presently, markets in Federal Order 4 do not pay a protein premium, he added.

For every 100 pounds of Jersey milk, producers can manufacturer 12.35 pounds of cheddar cheese compared to 9.85 pounds from Holstein milk. Jersey milk averages 3.88 percent protein compared to Holstein milk which averages 3.1 percent protein, he explained.

He hopes a decision in the Great Basin marketing order concerning protein-base pricing results in a positive ruling and sets a precedent for the Federal Orders nationwide.

Until that time, he plans to continue to improve in the breeding and management programs of the farm. He credits his entire family with the progress achieved at Misty Hollow Farm. "Everyone works together." Tim works in the evening and on weekends. His daughters, Jennifer, 12, and Stephanie, 10, as well as his wife, Linda, help on weekends and when needed. His father, retired since 1976, also fills in where needed, Ulrich noted. When Keller takes off every other weekend, "It becomes family day on the farm" with everyone pitching in, he said.

During the week in the daytime the workload falls to Ulrich and Keller. They raise almost all of the feed for the herd on a total of 182 acres. As a time saving measure, they started no-tilling corn into the rye two years ago. In fields where corn follows corn, they employ the conventional moldboard plow to prepare the field, Ulrich explained.

Ulrich double-crops rye for ryelage. He harvests hay and stores it in random stacks. Haylage and high moisture corn are stored in oxygen-free silos and the corn silage is stored in a stave silo. Ulrich prefers to harvest haylage at 50 percent moisture. Grain corn is custom harvested.

Visitors to the Pennsylvania Jersey Cattle Club's annual meeting will be able to see the facilities of Misty Hollow Farms, home of a promoter of the "breed on the move."

receive AEB funds on a matching basis. In 1986 Pennsylvania's egg promotional expenditures totalled $70,000, with $35,000 coming from AEB.

Although the marketing order being proposed emphasizes promotion and new product development, not less than 5 percent of the funds would be earmarked for nutritional research. This portion would include the continued funding of an egg nutrition center in Washington being managed by United Egg Producers.

All marketing order revenues would be administered by a 22-member board of directors. Representation from both large and small egg producers would be included on the board, Bushway said. If the program proved ineffective producers would have the opportunity to vote it out in five years.

"Pennsylvania is one of the few egg states that does not have a checkoff program," says Hoffman. "That one-half cent a dozen is really very minor," he said, adding that California, the nation's number-one producer of table eggs, is checking off one cent per dozen.

Bushway underscored the need for an aggressive promotional program by showing tapes of checkoff-funded television commercials being aired by other commodity groups. She pointed out that beef's precipitous decline in popularity came on the heals of a beef referendum in 1980, when producers voted against a national checkoff. Under the $1-per-head beef checkoff instituted last year, advertising expenditures are projected to hit $65 million in 1987. The dairy and pork industries plan to spend $200 million and $20 million, respectively, on advertising this year, the Northeast UEP's director said.

Bushway also noted that a strong promotion program will be vitally important in countering animal rights groups that have "zeroed in on egg producers." She held up an example of post cards being distributed nationally by one group featuring a photograph of a plate of bacon and eggs labeled "the breakfast of cruelty." She said that UEP has received more than 35,000 of the pledge cards, on which consumers have indicated that they will stop eating bacon and eggs for breakfast until egg and pork producers overhaul management practices that animal rights activists see as inhumane. "One large chain store in the Northeast is being inundated with these cards," Bushway reported. She also pointed out that legislation has been introduced in Washington that would place a 5-cent tax on all pet food to raise $500 million to combat animal cruelty.

"This state can be the swing state on the marketing order," Bushway stressed. adding that Pennsylvania, with its 17 to 18 million laying hens, ranks third nationally in the production of table eggs.

If the marketing order does come to a vote, Bushway believes that producers will support it. Her intuition was supported at Monday's meeting when a vote including 41 flock owners in attendance revealed that 30 would vote in favor of the checkoff and 11 would oppose it. According to John Hoffman, Monday's vote may be the first poll taken on the issue in the country.

"You're very efficient producers, but it takes more than that today," Bushway summed up. "You've got to market your product."

Conference Speakers See Bright Future For Ag

The most urgent message from the University is an "underfunding" problem, according to the Dean. The problem comes mostly from the fact that federal funding has not kept up with the need. He noted that H.B. 63 is providing for $5 million for research and extension, and that the governor has asked for $5 million to be added on a continuing basis for agriculture extension. Hood said, "This will make significant steps toward restoring programs badly decimated by reductions in federal funds."

In a news conference preceding the event, Hood said some of the 30 Extension staff positions now vacant across the state would be filled if H.B. 63 passes. The influx of new funds would permit the university's College of Agriculture to begin a rebuilding process, he said.

Hood also emphasized that farmers of the future will need to be good businessmen. "They must be very aware," he continued, "that producing more isn't the only goal." The emphasis must be on increasing profitability and minimizing costs of production.

In addition, Hood noted that a primary emphasis will be on "enhancing the image of agriculture." He said the picture of agriculture in trouble has led to misunderstanding among students and potential future leaders in agriculture. "We must address this head on, and inform students of the tremendous career and job opportunities on the farm and related industries. We must try to communicate that to young people."

One step toward improving the image is the Governor's School for Agriculture, something Hood said is "increasing the understanding of agriculture among high school students."

The economy was a focal point for the conference and Spencer's comments on the global interrelationships was echoed by many speakers. He said, "Our economy is woven into the fabric of the world economy. We are as interdependent on the world as the world is interdependent on the United States."

He expressed concern about the huge trade deficit, pointing out, "We owe the world more than it owes us. The U.S. trade deficit is the one big world problem." He predicted that the total deficit could reach $750 billion by 1990.

Furthermore, Spencer said, "The debt in our national economy is a big worry." He said the only way to reduce the national debt is to have higher individual taxes and higher corporate taxes.

H. Louis Moore, professor of agricultural economics at Penn State, also said the federal deficit is not good. He agreed that higher taxes or less spending are the answers, but added that these two solutions "are not in favor."

The trade deficit is also a concern to Moore who said, "We are now a major debtor nation," with a trade imbalance of $170 billion in 1986.

Very good news on the economic front is low inflation – 1.1 percent in 1986, and an estimated 3.5 percent in 1987.

The national economy is enjoying an unprecedented growth rate, and Moore said, "There is very little talk of recession and we will probably celebrate the fifth year of growth in November, which will be the longest period of growth since World War II."

Speaking specifically of the ag economy, Moore agreed with other speakers that Pennsylvania has not suffered like other parts of the country. Nationally, agriculture is still in a recession, Moore said, and farmland values continue to decline in the Midwest.

He pointed out, however, that while land value in Iowa has decreased by 59 percent, and in Minnesota and Nebraska by 55 percent, Pennsylvania farmland value is down just 15 percent in the northern and western part of the state. In New Jersey farmland values have risen 27 percent, showing that alternative uses determine the value of the land.

Moore also pointed out that in Iowa farmland is now worth $841 an acre, while in Pennsylvania the average value is $1,450 per acre. In New Jersey it is now $3,913 per acre.

"Exports are in a deep, long slide," according to Moore, and American agriculture is not as competitive as it was in the 60's. Furthermore, he noted that the surplus problem is getting worse, especially in grain.

Moore noted that the ag industry accounts for 20 percent of the gross national product. Food remains cheap, with American consumers spending just 14.7 percent of their income on food. In Britain consumers spend 18 percent of their income; in the Soviet Union they spend 37 percent; and in China they spend 60 percent.

Moore acknowledged that there is a trend toward fewer farms, and that there will be more "super" farms in the future. He noted, however, that most corporate farms are family corporations, with Pennsylvania now having over 200, mostly in livestock, dairy and poultry.

Moore reiterated the position of Spencer and Hood, acknowledging the strengths of Pennsylvania agriculture as proximity to markets, a strong base in a number of enterprises, and competitive ag related firms. Strong lenders with a commitment to agriculture are a real benefit to Pennsylvania agriculture.

A relatively good economy and a strong commitment to be survivors mean Pa. farmers are less stressed than their peers in other parts of the country.

Moore said he believes agriculture, industry and growth can coexist, making for a strong position for Pennsylvania agriculture. He cautioned farmers to learn to live with a lower return on investments, but advised them to place more emphasis on marketing rather than production and on management and biotechnology.

Speaker after speaker noted the interdependence of agriculture with the general economy, and Dr. Jill Findeis, assistant professor of agriculture economics at Penn State, noted the importance of a strong agriculture to the rural community. She said, "Agriculture is an important industry; we need to counter the idea that agriculture is declining in importance."

Findeis noted that agriculture is dependent upon the rural communities, with an increasing number of farm households earning income off the farm. In farms which produce from $40,000 to $100,000 per year, over 60 percent of the farm income comes from off-farm employment.

Often the income is "permanent," in that the farm cannot survive without it. No matter what the reason, Findeis said off-farm job opportunities provide a choice for farm households, both for the short term and the long term.

Findeis noted that research shows that more jobs are being created in the ag processing and retailing end of the picture than in the farm input suppliers and in agriculture production.

William R. Gillis, assistant professor of agricultural economics at Penn State, also spoke of the importance of strong rural areas, saying, "Economic diversification is the key to future rural economic vitality." Part of a comprehensive economic strategy would include recruiting new industries and strengthening existing firms, encouraging entrepreneurs, vitalizing downtowns, attracting retirees and promoting tourism.

Marketing, Management Are Keys To Profitability

BY SALLY BAIR
Lancaster Co. Correspondent

LANCASTER — While much of the information presented at the "Future of Pennsylvania Agriculture" conference dealt with analysis of trends and predictions for the future, a portion was designed to give down-to-earth advice to farmers.

Marketing and management were the two most important words offered by the speakers on "keys to profitability," and applied to almost every farming enterprise.

Virgil E. Crowley, professor of agriculture economics at Penn State, told hog farmers, "Marketing has been taken for granted. It must receive the same attention as production. You must keep track of markets, and be aware of alternatives that exist in marketing." he said options and hedging are important tools for successful marketing.

To counteract low consumer demand for red meat, Crowley said hog producers must keep better records and control both the quantity and quality of feed. He noted that feed costs are over 50 percent of the cost of production. Hogs need adequate shelter and farmers should make sure they have competent labor. In the future producers must be aware of technological advances, he said.

Larry Jenkins, associate professor of agricultural economics, stressed that dairymen should operate their business enterprises like the "businesses downtown." Like Cowley, Jenkins said, "You must emphasize profit, not production. You've been misled to think that more production means more profit, but that is not so. The most profitable herds are not necessarily the largest nor the highest producers."

Jenkins said, "You must know how to use the tools of financial analysis, because it is a business." He said cash flow, balance sheets, income statements and complete analyses are important for a successful operation. It is important to control costs, carefully analyze and capital expenditures. Jenkins said, "You must distinquish between what increases earnings and what increases prestige. Added prestige will not pay the debt."

"Efficiency" is the key word, according to Jenkins, in labor and capital, production and machinery.

Speaking about poultry, Milton E. Madison, assistant professor of agriucltural economics, also stressed the need to keep good records to know costs. In poultry, he said there is a tremendous increase in demand, primarily because of the continued development of new products.

In field crops, John Yocum, senior research associate at the Landisville Research Farm, noted the stiff competition domestic tobacco faces on the international market from countries such as Brazil and Zimbabwe.

If there is another bad marketing year, Yocum predicts that farmers will drop their production of tobacco, but he noted that it is a high value cash crop, and on small farms there are not of alternative choices for high income cash crops.

Raising tobacco is attractive in this area because farmers are familiar with it, because of the availabililty of labor and because it supplies winter work. He maintained that the future of tobacco in this area depends upon what happens with the 1987 crop.

Corn is another crop that has seen a decreased export market. While new uses for corn have increased and represent 20 percent of the production, H. Louis Moore, professor of agricultural economics, says that cannot increase at a faster rate. There is only one year's supply in storage, but that is a carryover which was never necessary before. Moore noted, however, that "cheap grain equals cheap livestock and products."

Berks Co. To Honor Conservationists

LEESPORT — The Berks County Conservation District, along with the Berks County Agricultural Stabilization Conservation Service will again be sponsoring a banquet to honor conservation efforts in Berks County. This year it will be held at the Kutztown Grange Hall on Friday, April 3, at 7:00 p.m.

Dr. Maurice K. Goddard, former D.E.R. Secretary for Pennsylvania, will be the featured speaker for the evening.

Jack Gounder of WEEU who is also a district director will act as master of ceremonies. District Chairman, County Commissioner Vernon K. Shaffer will conduct the opening and make some introductions.

To be honored as Outstanding Conservation Farmer of the Year will be Lester W. Gelsinger of North Heidelberg Township. He has a family dairy farm and has been using conservation practices on his land for many years. They milk 100 cows and several family members are involved in the operation. Among the conservation practices used by the Gelsingers are: contour strip farming, diversion terraces, conservation tillage, grass waterways, a manure storage facility, cover cropping, and a conservation crop rotation. Mr. Gelsinger has been an ASCS County Committee Member for many years.

Four other farmers to be recognized for their conservation efforts are Lee J. Katz of Penn Township, David Braucher of Bern Township, William T. Mitchell of Centre Township and Norman Lamm of Heidelberg Township. They will all receive Berks Conservation District signs for their farms. The Outstanding Conservation Educator of the Year is Lowell Thomas who teaches in the 5th and 6th grades in the Hamburg School District. He has been a part of their outdoor education program for 15 years. This past summer he was the director of the Youth Conservation Leadership Camp which is sponsored by the Conservation District at Camp Joy.

Robert Murton, who has been a concerned sportsman for many years and has held offices in the Federated Sportsmens Association and the Izaak Walton League will receive the Outstanding Conservationist Award.

The Berks County Conservancy will be honored for all their many efforts as the Outstanding Conservation Organization.

The Forestry Award Winners for 1986 are James and Beverly Geiger of Ruscombmanor Township who have been carrying out a woodlot management program on their 84 acres. They also won the Regional Award in the M.K. Goddard Forestry Contest.

John A. Lutz and Sons will be recognized for the Conservation Tillage Farming Award. This is the first time the district has awarded such an honor. The Lutz's have been using no-till farming practices for many years and have been generous in sharing the knowledge they have gained.

For tickets call the Berks County Conservation District office by March 27 at (215) 372-4655. No tickets will be sold at the door. The Kutztown Grange Hall is located just south of Main Street at the east end of Kutztown.

Lancaster Water Clinic To Offer Free Nitrate Screening

LANCASTER — Concerned about the quality of drinking water in your home? Does the quality of the water your livestock drink affect their health and performance? If you are a homeowner or farmer and depend on your own well or spring, these are questions you should be asking yourself.

"The quality of water from a private supply is the responsibility of its owner," says Dr. William Sharpe, water resource specialist at Penn State University. "If you don't test your water, no one else will."

Farmers and homeowners of Lancaster County will have an opportunity to learn about managing their water supplies. Water quality experts Dr. Bill Sharp and Joe Makuch along with Dr. Richard Croyle of Biometrics Lab in Quarryville will speak and be available for consultation at the "Safe Drinking Water Clinic" to be held at the Farm and Home Center in Lancaster on March 24.

The program will run from 1 to 4 p.m. and be repeated at 7 to 10 p.m. On March 25 the same program will be held in the "all-purpose" room of the Blue Ball School from 7 to 10 p.m. only. These programs are free to the public and free nitrate screening tests will be offered to all program participants. Bring in a sample of your water for testing. In addition local water testing labs and treatment equipment dealers will have exhibits. For more information contact the Lancaster County Cooperative Extension Service at 394-6851.

Montgomery County Holstein Club Holds Annual Meeting

BY SHARON B. SCHUSTER
Maryland Correspondent

GAITHERSBURG, Md. — The Montgomery County Holstein-Fresian Club held its 63rd annual meeting and banquet on March 11. State association president, Joe Schwartzbeck, and secretary-treasurer, John Morris were in attendance.

Production awards were presented to Amy Savage, Dennis Savage, Melvin Savage, Chris Savage, Wayne and Cindee Savage, LeRoy Savage and Bob Raver and Savage-Leigh Farms. Certificates recognized the recipients for having cows which produced over 50,000 pounds of milk or over 100,000 pounds.

All-Maryland Awards were also presented by Schwartzbeck and Morris. Robert Johnson received the All-Maryland and reserve junior All-Maryland junior calf awards. Christopher Savage captured the reserve All-Maryland senior and junior yearling awards and the junior All-Maryland senior and junior yearling awards.

The awards for reserve junior All-Maryland senior yearling, and junior All-Maryland aged cow went to Amy Savage. Kelli Ann Savage took home the awards for reserve All-Maryland intermediate yearling, reserve junior All-Maryland senior yearling, and junior All-Maryland intermediate yearling.

Darryl David Walker took home the reserve junior All-Maryland aged cow award. The award for All-Maryland junior best three females went to Savage-Leigh Farms.

The focus of the evening was definitely on the juniors. Cindee Savage gave an overview of the newly formed Junior Holstein Association. She reported that the Montgomery County Club purchased a full page ad in Southeastern, "promoting the juniors in Montgomery County. That's to show how much we think of them," she added. And to wind up the evening, Savage held a fun auction for benefit of the Junior club.

A "syndicate" formed on the spot, with state president Schwartzbeck, club president Doug Burdette, Arthur Johnson and Wayne Savage, each kicking in $100 to purchase the first item up for bid — a cake with a Holstein theme.

Directors for the club were also elected. Returning to serve a second term are Doug Burdette, Dennis Savage and John Doody.

balance this forage. The cow is basically a ruminant animal and depends on forage for feed. You are getting your return on your forages as you process them through the cow. So our major factor is how do we balance the grain versus forage?" Wile said. "We have a limiting factor related to the amount a cow can eat. The considerations you need to look at include: energy pounds, fiber percent, forage dry matter, moisture, number of feeding times, days in milk and milk pounds. The dairyman's biggest opportunity for increased production and income is to balance grain and forage," Wile said. "If your high-producing cows stallout or fail to peak properly, you may have created a fiber problem by overfeeding grain. You need to have an accurate program where you program for energy on the energy-balanced cows and you program for fiber on the energy deficient cows," Wile concluded.

The Fuerst harrow cleans ridge tops, creating excellent seedbed. Unique "Spreading Action"® tines hug the soil at faster speeds to shred and evenly spread no-till stalks in the spring.

Dozens of uses:

The harrow used behind a disc or cultivator, incorporates herbicides in one pass. Used alone, it covers broadcasted seed, renovates, maintains pastures and more.

The harrow/cart (an optional harrow carrier as shown) follows tight turns, has folding wings for easy transport. Harrow and cart are available in 16 to 42 ft. widths.

"I believe the harrow works as good as a stalk shredder; it lifts and shatters the stalks and yet doesn't tear up the ground."

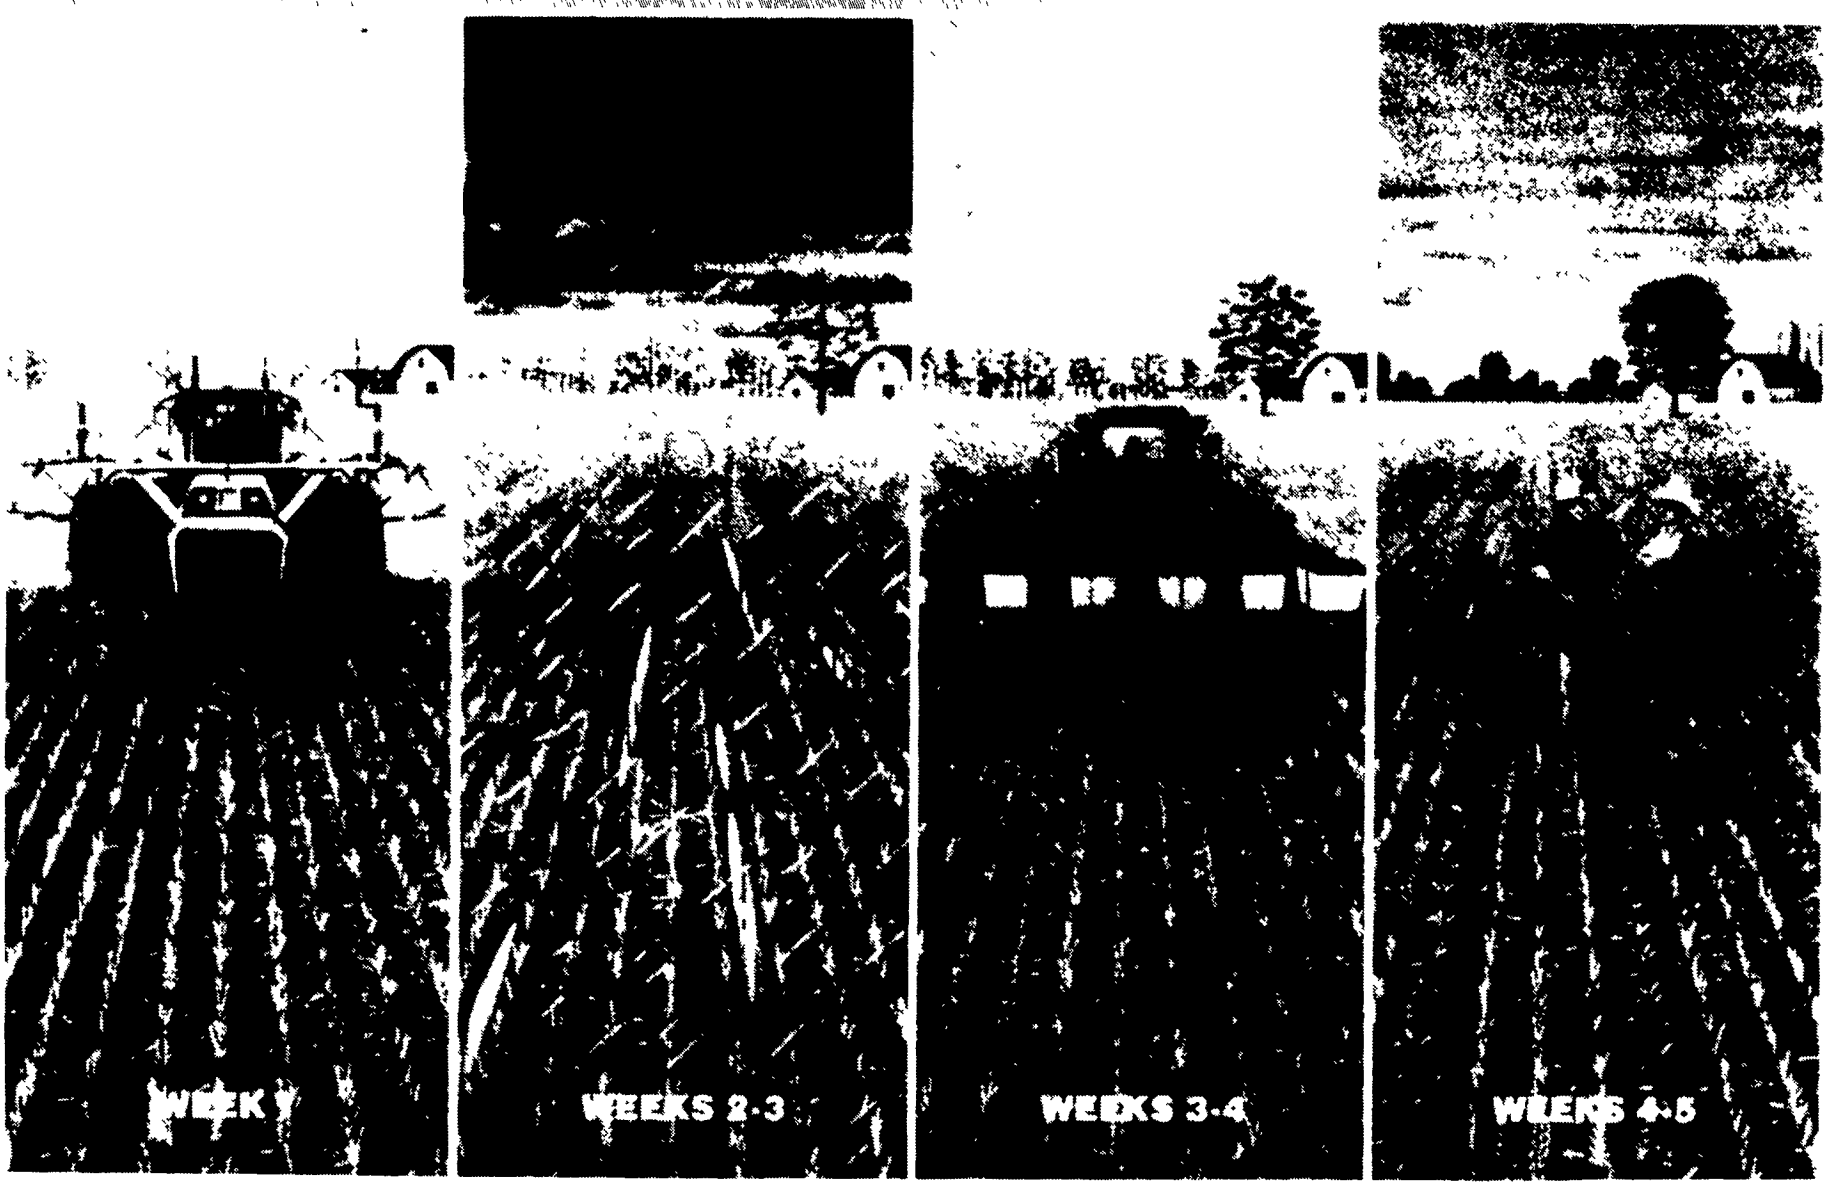
EXTRAZINE® 90 DF™ THE GROWERS' CHOICE FOR AN EARLY START.



Growers who use EXTRAZINE® 90DF™ herbicide early preplant (EPP), 2-4 weeks before planting, report the head start ends weed problems and saves money. No longer do they face later potential problems with preemergence (PE) treatments (soil too wet to work, too dry to activate herbicide, weeds too tall for foliar kill.) They also see EXTRAZINE EPP burn down weeds, ending the need for costly contact treatments.

By applying EXTRAZINE EPP, growers take full advantage of earlier spring rains to activate EXTRAZINE, unleashing its highly effective weed killing action on both grasses and broadleaves. Meanwhile, on untreated fields at this time, problem weeds can be emerging and flourishing everywhere. And the rains are preventing those growers from entering their corn fields.

Planting Day! The effective weed kill of EXTRAZINE EPP lets growers plant into a clean seedbed. But other growers are in trouble, because the early rains have produced heavy weed growth. Now they're busy either discing or applying a costly contact and preemerge treatment—hoping to get some burndown and rain to activate their traditional PE treatment.

Weeks after the treatment of EXTRAZINE EPP, growers watch their young corn thriving in a weed-free field. On other planted fields, growers are still waiting for rain, while new weeds are emerging and competing for moisture. No wonder growers are switching to EXTRAZINE EPP. Backed by a performance agreement, EXTRAZINE assures commercially acceptable weed control. See your participating dealer for details.

The Milk Check

TOM JURCHAK
County Agent

Milk Prices Follow Cheese

The sudden drop in cheese prices in late January finally caught up with the Minnesota-Wisconsin Price Series in February. Coupled with falling butter prices it drove the M-W down 43 cents below January, the largest drop in one month since December 1983. Added to the 21-cent fall since it peaked for the year at $11.91 in November, it makes a total cut of 64 cents in three months.

With butter and cheese prices hovering slightly below support prices the first week of March, it isn't likely that the M-W will drop much more before it bottoms out in April or May. In fact, if wholesalers start early to replace inventories of butter and cheese before the Spring flush we may see little change.

In any case, enough's enough and 64 cents in three months is certainly more than enough and all of this will be reflected in your milk check from January to April. The peak in your Class I price of $14.46 for January in Order 2 will fall to $13.82 in April all because of butter and cheese prices.

Without the benefit of an over-order pricing mechanism that other Federal Order areas use and that more nearly reflects the supply-demand situation in Eastern markets your prices will fall with the dairy product prices in the mid West. Of course your Class II prices have already taken the 65 cent cut from $11.94 in November to $11.29 in February and you're also losing money on your milk check because the butter fat differential has dropped in four months from 17.7 to 15.7 cents per poind per hundred following the butter prices.

Order 2 Prices

Having said that, you won't be surprised to learn that the uniform or blend price in Order 2 for February was $12.42 or 34 cents less than January. The big cut came in the Class II price of $11.29 that showed the full impact of the 43 cent drop in the M-W last month. The Class I price was still up at $14.43 because it takes two months for the M-W to catch up to the Class I price. So, whether or not the M-W drops further this Spring you'll still be getting lower prices in your milk check because of the lower Class prices and lower Class I utilization as more milk comes to market in the Spring months starting in March.

Speaking of Class I utilization, it dropped 2.5 percent in February below January in Order 2 and contributed to your lower blend price. On a daily basis Class I sales fell six percent in February below January and five percent below last February. This was surprising because all during 1986 and up to January of this year you were selling more fluid milk than the year before. Now suddenly it falls 5 percent.

The big change from a year ago is the reported lower retail prices in New York City that have been linked to the market penetration by out-of-state handlers. Of course, there's more to Order 2 sales than those in New York City, but it was hoped that the change would have increased consumption or at least maintained it. On the theory that there's a reason for everything, hopefully there will be answers for this.

IRS Helps DTP

Once again the Internal Revenue Service is giving some relief to farmers in the Dairy Termination Program.

The IRS has decided to provide another tax saving by allowing the difference between the sale price of the cows sold for beef and the average price of milk cows to be treated as capital gains.

The average price for milk cows will come from the monthly USDA publication "Agricultural Prices" which includes them by states in their reports for January, April, July and October. The price quoted for Pennsylvania in April 1986 was $865 a head; in July it was $840; in October $850 and in January 1987, $880. If you sold cows in other months use the price announced in the most recent quotation before the sale. The difference between the beef price and the dairy cow price is reported on IRS Form 4797 and taxed at the 40 percent capital gains rate. This applies only to cows held for two years or more.

The savings in taxes could be significant depending on your sale price so you may wish to file an amended return for 1986 and save some tax money but it will also decrease your Social Security. If your tax advisor needs more information on this tell him to get the regulations from the IRS Bulletin 1987-10 released March 9.

PSU Survey

Blair Smith and Jack Kirkland of Penn State University are conducting a survey of the 418 farmers in the state who are participating in the Dairy Termination Program to learn their reasons for getting in the program and their future plans for the use of their facilities. It's a mailed questionnaire that will be received during March and April so do your best to provide the information requested and we'll share the results with you.

RCMA Organizes

Members of the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency who are not members of another milk marketing cooperative are organizing by regions to elect directors and delegates. Meetings have been scheduled in New York and New England from March 18 to April 2 to take this first step for independent producers to participate in running RCMA.

Each of the 11 regions in that area have been designated geographically to represent a uniform volume of milk and to allow the election of a director for the region and one delegate for every 300 independent producers. Delegates and directors from the co-ops will be represented in the same proportion. Here in Pennsylvania five regions have been designated and April 6 is the meeting date for Region 12 which includes 10 northeastern counties and northern New Jersey.

The meeting will be held at 1 p.m. in the Department of Agriculture building in Tunkhannock. Meeting dates for the other Pennsylvania regions are April 7 for the nine north central counties in Region 13; April 8 for Region 17 that includes Lancaster and York counties and Maryland; April 9 for Region 14 in the southcentral counties; Region 15 meets on April 13 for the central Pennsylvania counties around Sunbury and April 14 for Region 16 including the southeastern counties and parts of Delaware and southern New Jersey.

All producers who have signed contracts with RCMA are invited to attend the meetings and participate in the election of delegates and a member of the board of directors who will be responsible for running the cooperative. That includes determining the over order premiums and distributing them to the members. If you want to participate in organizing this new cooperative for over-order pricing sign a contract before the meeting date and attend the meeting in your region.

RCMA Meeting Set For Lancaster

LANCASTER — Dairymen in the Northeast are attempting to form a bargaining agency known as the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency for the purpose of negotiating higher prices for the milk they produce.

An information meeting, scheduled for 7:30 p.m. Monday March 23 at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center, will discuss over-order pricing and the ramifications of supporting the RCMA effort.

Representatives from RCMA and local milk handlers will be present, with an opportunity for questions and answers. The meeting will be conducted by the Lancaster County Cooperative Extension Service.

Pa. Ayrshire Breeders Elect Officers

CARLISLE — Pennsylvania Ayrshire Breeders unanimously approved a new slate of officers for the 1987 business year at their annual meeting March 14 here at the Embers Restaurant.

Ann Young, West Grove, will lead the organization as president. Owner of Timberlawn Farms, Young is the first woman to serve as president of the group since the 1920s.

John Rodgers, Belleville, was elected vice president. Milt Brubaker retained his position as secretary-treasurer and Betty Kieffer retained her position as assistant secretary-treasurer.

Directors re-elected include: Wilda Kline, Paul Kemerer, Curt Sweinhart, Delmas Hernley, Harold Kulp, Sharon Nolan and Amos Rudderow. Re-elected to the young sire committee were Ann Young and Glen Seidel. The youth committee of Barbara Radar, Betty Kieffer, John Ocker III and Ed Kulp were re-appointed.

Earl Keefer said that three Pennsylvania Ayrshire farms will be visited as part of the 1988 World Ayrshire Conference. The three farms, Ardrossan, Masonic Homes and Conebella Farm, will be part of the Pennsylvania tour on Oct. 1.

The Pennsylvania Ayrshire Association was assessed $2,900 to help finance the World Conference, slated for a United States run from Sept. 29, 1988 to Oct. 14, 1988. John Rodgers, chairman of the committee formed to find ways to generate the total, explained the committee's suggestions.

In the national brochure, he said, the Pennsylvania pages could bring out historical and cultural aspects of the Keystone state. Funds could then be solicited from other groups and businesses.

The committee recommended area clubs fund part of the assessment. Rodgers noted the central club has contributed $500 to the fund.

Proceeds from the sale of an Ardrossan calf at the 1988 National Convention, he explained, will go towards the assessment.

Rodgers proposed a listing of Pennsylvania Ayrshire breeders in the national brochure at a cost of $25 per listing.

He reported the committee's final suggestion was to sell and then resell a calf at the 1987 Elite Sale and direct the additional funds towards the assessment.

The breeders at the meeting voted to accept the group's suggestions and directed them to pursue the options.

For the financial year of March

Wenger Optimistic About Ag Preservation

BY SALLY BAIR
Lancaster Co. Correspondent

LANCASTER — Pennsylvania State Senator Noah Wenger told members of the Lancaster County Farmers Association last week that for the first time he is optimistic about agriculture preservation legislation being seriously considered for passage.

Speaking about Senate Bill 156, Wenger said it was voted out of the Senate Appropriations Committee with a 15-0 vote, and could be considered in the Senate shortly. He noted, "We want it considered when the budget is being put together, before the money is all spent."

Under provisions of the bill, $50 million would be set aside for the purchase of development rights, paying the difference between the value of land for farming and for development. The money would be distributed to counties in two cycles.

Wenger explained, "In the next fiscal year, $25 million would be sent to counties that have a program in place." It was explained that current ag preserve designations would be "grandfathered" into the proposed new law.

A similar bill has been introduced into the House, with a different funding proposal.

As for the bill's chances to become law, Wenger says, "Governor Casey campaigned on the premise of agriculture preservation, so I feel optimistic that he'll keep his commitment and sign it."

Wenger noted that there is presently $3 million extra in the governor's budget for "ag development," though there are no specifics about how it will be used.

As the budget is reviewed, Wenger says Republicans are estimating a $300 million surplus, and while the governor is proposing to spend it all, there is a feeling that some of it should be returned to the municipalities to make up for monies lost through revenue sharing.

Lancaster County Farmers Association President Don Ranck told the group the local Association has been "struggling with the concept of agricultural preservation." He explained that the greatest philosophical concern is that the cost is falling on farmers entirely. He noted that in areas zoned for agriculture the market price of land sold for agriculture has not been greatly different from other land.

One of the primary questions of the whole issue, according to Ranck, is who will pay the bill if land is placed in a preserve.

Bill Adams, director of natural resources for PFA, spoke about the Senate Bill and said there are currently 59 designated agriculture areas in the state with 1,936 farms participating.

Adams also reviewed information in the Manure Management Manual which is available to help farmers managing animal wastes.

daughter with a CTPI of plus 600. She produced a top record of 22,480 milk and 830 fat in 365 days.

Margie Ann Dick, secretary-treasurer of the Virginia Holstein Association, noted in previous years the sale was held in-conjunction with the state show in Harrisonburg. This year it was moved to Rocky Mount and held separately. The criteria for consignments were also adjusted.

William Kent served as auctioneer for the event. The Virginia Holstein Association and Ownby Auction Company co-managed the sale.

The WESTERN WISCONSIN SPRING CLASSIC averaged $1,386 on 43 cows.

A 3-year-old cow by Marshfield Elevation Tony topped the sale by selling for $2,250. Classified GP-83, her first record stands at 21,260 milk and 772 fat in 365 days.

Her dam, an EX-90 2E GMD sired by Kingstead Fond Hote, produced a top record of 19,780 milk with a 4 percent test and 796 fat in 346 days. She owns a lifetime record of 176,000 milk and 6,640 fat in 3,552 days.

Selling for $2,075 and the second best price was an just-fresh 2 year old. Fresh March 1, the Bova daughter was producing 53 pounds of milk per day.

Her dam, a VG-86 Astronaut King daughter, produced a best record of 20,920 milk and 830 fat for a 4 percent test in 312 days. The next dam, EX-91, completed three records over 1,000 pounds of fat.

Keith Stump auctioneered the event and Alvin R. Piper Associates managed the sale.

The ROC-E-HILL COMPLETE DISPERSAL held in Missouri averaged $1,340 on 84 cows and $1,134 on the entire 124 head offered for sale, including the half-lots.

A 6-year-old daughter of Marshfield Elevation Tony topped the sale with a bid of $3,150. The second high bid, $2,900, came on a just-fresh 2-year-old cow by Harmony Corners Duke.

The ZELSON FARM COMPLETE DISPERSAL held in New York averaged $1,230 on 102 head.

Topping the sale with a bid of $4,500 was a 3-year-old Ijon daughter. Classified VG-86 and fresh one month, she completed a first-calf record of 17,193 milk and 648 fat.

Her yearling first calf sold for $2,100 and her month-old heifer by Mel-EST Valiant Irose Melvin sold for $1,100.

The sale topper's dam by Simpsons Apostle classified VG-88. She produced a top record of 25,751 milk and 1,020 fat. The next dam scored a VG-86 rating.

A 5-year-old daughter of Marshfield Elevation Tony commanded the second high price of $3,300. Classified VG-88, she owns a Cow Index of plus 793 milk and plus 34 fat. She completed a high record of 23,500 milk and 957 fat as a 3 year old. Her 2-month-old calf by Chief Mark sold for $1,700.

Her dam, an EX-90 Pawnee Farm Arlinda Chief daughter, produced a high record of 26,000 milk and 1,100 fat with a 4.6 test.

Owner Wayne Hudson reported 18 animals were sold to Florida buyers, 19 animals sold to Pennsylvania buyers, and 11 animals sold to Texas buyers. It was a strong sale from beginning to end, he added.

The sale was held to dissolve a partnership between Hudson and his sister, Elaine Tompson. He plans to crop farm for the next year.

David Rama served as auctioneer and the Cattle Exchange managed the sale.

The 10TH GRANT-LAND SPRING CLASSIC held in Wisconsin averaged $1,750 on 48 head, including seven calves which sold with their dam and were not counted as individual lots. In the sale, 21 milk cows averaged $2,240. Eight bred heifers averaged $1,694. The 26 calves and yearlings averaged $1,327.94.

A just-fresh 2 year old sold for $5,600, the high price of the sale. Sired by Bell, she owns a PTPI of plus 683. Her 2-day-old heifer calf by Walkway Chief Mark sold for $1,700.

Her dam, a GP-84 Glendell daughter, produced a high record over 32,000 milk, 1,200 fat, and 1,000 protein as a 3 year old. She owns a Cow Index of plus 473 milk, plus 30 fat, plus $76, with a CTPI of plus 504.

The next dam, EX-90, produced records with 4.1 and 4.3 percent test. Her lifetime milk record exceeds 100,000 milk.

A fancy September calf sold a bid of $3,325 to register the second highest sale price. Sired by Hardy Starwars, she measured 48 inches at the withers on sale day.

Her dam, a GP-84 Chads Farm Starmaker daughter, produced a high record over 15,000 milk.

Sale chairman Kirk Novinski noted the sale averaged $650 better than last year but the same as 1985. He explained that last year the sale was held two days before the accepted bids for the buyout program were announced. The timing causing many breeders to pull their consignments or consign calves in anticipation of the program. Consequently, the numbers in the sale were down with calves accounting for a higher percent of the total sold.

Mike Snyder of Snyder-Hager Sales managed the sale and read pedigrees. Jerry Wilkinson volunteered his time and served as auctioneer.

1, 1986 to March 1, 1987, the association operated in the black and posted an ending balance of $5,895.41.

Joseph Rudderow of Mount Laurel, N.J., was announced as a finalist in the outstanding national Ayrshire boy contest. He will represent the Pennsylvania Association at the national convention in Manchester, N.H., April 22 to 25.

Discussion concerning a possible name change of the associationj .. regard to last year's union with the New Jersey Ayrshire Association. The group decided to let a committee study the possibilities.

Keefer said the Spring Calf and Heifer sale will be held at the Bedford Fairgrounds on April 18. The association plans to catalog 36 animals for the event.

The group elected to join the Pennsylvania Agriculture Advisory Council of the College of Agriculture at Penn State.

Discussion was held on the feasibility of holding a spring show before the spring sale.

Charles Gable reported that the PDCA judging school will be held in Franklin County on July 14 and 15. The official judge for the event will be Richard Keene. The Ayrshire Association is permitted to send six to the school, he explained. Gable said PDCA needs to update its judge's list. In response to this, it has eased the rules for first time judges to join the approved list. He said that at the school, individual not on the list have score in the top third of the group not on the list as opposed to everyone competing.

Brubaker said the group's eighth sire is ready for distribution through Atlantic Breeders in Lancaster. The sire is Lavack Farms Stetson, sired by Selwood Royal Welcome.

The group will pursue the possibility of sending a state herd to the World Dairy Expo in Madison, Wis.

Harold Kulp, Pottstown, offered to host the 1987 Ayrshire Field Day at his farm on July 11.

For 70 Years Farm Families

Many families took their first step to successful farming when they stepped into their local Farm Credit office.

They came to us for a loan to buy the land and build the house and raise the barn.

As farms are passed on from generation to generation, many of them grow into family corporations.

And Farm Credit remains a part of the picture. With loans to help plant the seeds and harvest the crops. Or buy more land for future generations.

There's a very good reason why we want farmers to prosper. It's because we're farmers, too. The Farm Credit System is owned and controlled by the farmers who use it.

So the next time you need a loan, look up the family member who isn't in the photographs you see here.

But who's always been in the background.

Gunsmith Uses Multiple Skills To Craft Intricately Inlaid Pennsylvania Long Rifle

BY BARBARA MILLER
Lycoming County Correspondent

WATSONTOWN — What would you give for a Pennsylvania long rifle inlaid with gold, silver and ivory? Most people would expect to pay for it with money, but Rick John of Selinsgrove traded a new 450 Honda motorcycle and a used shotgun to obtain the gun from Dave Hontz of Watsontown. It was only the second rifle Dave had created.

"He's one of these guys that can do anything," says Dave's wife, Becky, referring to his ability to fashion things with his hands.

After conversing with Dave for a time and seeing examples of his handiwork, a visitor agrees with Becky's statement. Dave says he discovered his talent for handiwork while majoring in industrial arts at Millersville University.

Following college, Dave taught shop for a few years in Manheim Township, Lancaster County, and Warrior Run High School, Watsontown. Presently, he is working as a tool designer for a Muncy firm.

Through the years Dave has accumulated skills in metal and woodworking. At one time, he entertained thoughts of becoming a jeweler and worked with jewelry, gaining a certain amount of expertise in the craft. He fashioned wedding rings for himself and his wife, as well as for a few relatives.

While in college, Dave created a grandfather clock and marble topped tables, and worked on a smooth bore flintlock pistol along with other projects.

In addition to his ability to make things with his hands, Dave possesses another talent — making something out of nothing. When the Hontzes moved into their present vintage Watsontown home, Dave noticed the attic floor was composed of "very nice boards." He coupled that knowledge with the family's need for cupboards and soon the Hontzes were enjoying handsome new cupboards — albeit, reincarnations of the attic floor boards.

"I told Becky she could pay $3,000 for new cupboards or have them for nothing," Dave reflects.

In much the same way, Dave created his modest workshop, which was in poor condition when they bought the place. With a few minor adjustments, Dave altered a discarded porch to fit onto his workshop and used bricks someone else was thowing away to make a chimney for his pot bellied stove. He discovered the stove in his wife's grandmother's celler and she gave it to him for just hauling it away.

Dave utilized his talents in constructing the long rifle replica. He incorporated parts of an old piano discarded by a church and leftover gold from his wedding bands to create the rifle.

Dave traces his interest in guns to a metal working course he took at Millersville under the tutelage of Henry J. Kauffman. Kauffman authored a book about long rifles entitled "The Pennsylvania-Kentucky Rifle," which Dave used extensively for reference.

During the course Dave began work on a 69 caliber flintlock pistol that he wasn't to finish until years later. The completed pistol contained a 200-year-old flintlock pistol barrel from England which was a gift from Kauffman. The gun's stock is walnut with brass trimmings, some of which Dave cast in his shop.

Eventually, Dave became intrigued with Pennsylvania long rifles and registered for a course on the subject at Williamsport Community College.

"I signed up for the course," Dave recalls, "and dragged my gun pieces to Williamsport every week." And every week, he spent 20 hours in his shop working on his gun.

"I led a lonely life," Becky sighs.

Thirteen weeks later, Dave reports with a note of pride, he had completed the gun. He says he thinks course instructor Bill Kennedy doesn't recall his name, but remembers him simply as "The guy who got the gun done." Dave explains that the class included several fellows who were taking the course for the third time and were still working on their first gun.

His first Pennsylvania long rifle and the one to follow, Dave says, are typical examples of a gun made by J.P. Beck, a gun builder from 1760 to 1811. When finished, the 45 caliber gun was almost 5 feet in length with a 42-inch rifled barrel and a curly maple stock.

Dave received the stock in rough carved J.P. Beck style and purchased a rifled barrel. He fitted dovetails on the bottom of the barrel to make it seat well in the wood. The rifle is replete with a compass shaped scrimshawed ivory inlay on the rifle stock and an ivory sight.

He purchased the brass butt plate and trigger guard in rough cast form but fashioned all the other trimmings from sheet brass. The toeplate features an attractive brass pierced heart inlay and the trigger guard bears an engraved fish. This symbol, Dave says, was often found on early guns, perhaps to insure good hunting. And, to denote the potency of such a weapon, Dave engraved a burst of shooting stars on the barrel. This year for the first time, Dave bagged a deer with this gun in flintlock season.

In 1981 Dave began work on his second rifle, partly because of a request from Rick John, who had seen and liked his first one. This was a 50 caliber rifle with a shorter, 38-inch barrel more intricately and elaborately fashioned than the first.

A rising sun theme is repeated three places on the rifle with inlays of gold, silver and ivory. Dave said he used the symbol because Rick is a Honda dealer and because he liked it. The largest sun of scrimshawed ivory inset with 14 caret gold is located on the carved cheekpiece.

The lock of the gun features another gold rising sun with silver

(Turn to Page B4)

A man to whom creativity comes naturally, Dave Hontz crafted this Pennsylvania long rifle. Later, he made a second one which he traded for a motorcycle and a used shotgun.

Homestead Notes

Dave Hontz inlets the lock on a Pennsylvania long rifle stock.

Details are what make Dave's handcrafted Pennsylvania long rifle special. The photo at far left shows the brass patchbox and pierced inlay. The next photo illustrates the lock of the gun with a rising sun inlay of 10K gold. The rays are of silver. Third from left is the engraved trigger guard and toe plate also bearing the rising sun motif. This rising sun of silver is a spring loaded hidden release for the patchbox. At right, another rising sun inlay, this one of ivory worked with scrimshaw, is located on the carved cheekpiece. The sun is made from 10K gold.

rays. Dave created the rays by cutting into the metal with a jewelers saw and pounding silver into the cuts. The final rising sun, also made of silver, is located on the toeplate and serves as a hidden release for the patchbox.

The gold used in the rifle came from his wedding bands, while ivory was from old piano keys. "You can't buy ivory anymore," he explains.

Other areas of the gun feature intricate pierced brass inlays, ingravings and a hand-wrought trigger. Dave also enjoys showing off the spiralled nose cap.

After finishing the gun in 1983, Dave contacted John and the "dickering process" began. After spending approximately 300 hours on the gun, Dave wasn't anxious to part with it. It took two weeks before the two reached an agreement.

"If I can turn something I made into something I want, that's neat," Dave exclaims with a smile.

Dave says John is very appreciative of the flintlock he bought from him and always displays it prominently in his home. John also claims it is a good shooting gun, winning in competition evry year.

Dave enjoys the challenge of leaning a new skill. Currently, he is renovating and old hit and miss engine. "I try to challenge myself to do more than I can do," he says.

He sees a new chllenge approaching onthe horizonin the form of another flintlock. And, maybe this time the customer who will want it will have — a new car?

Dave fitted both Pennsylvania long rifles with hand-wrought triggers.

On being a farm wife - And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Ah, can it be already? Our annual Holstein state spring cattle show and sale looms ahead this week, bringing a mix of anticipation and dread. The dread part is based in memory of past cattle hauling adventures, like losing hay on the highway, near-collisions with no-yield drivers, and parts of the truck sides flying off around the ears of startled heifers.

Still, none of our show mishaps comes even close to the high-drama adventures of Chester Countian Carl Yoder and his show rig convoy partner Harvey Stolzfus.

Yoder and Stolzfus pulled out last Labor Day, bound for the Fall Holstein show at State College. Headed west on the turnpike, his pickup packed with show equipment and trailer filled with cattle, Yoder thought he saw smoke rising occasionally from under the rig. Pulling over at the Hershey exit, his pickup lost drive power.

Lifting the truck hood, Yoder found oil departing beneath and flames flicking up around the sides of the motor. With precise timing, a state trooper headed East spied the fire and hustled over with an extinguisher. He tossed it to Yoder with the request to put the fire out himself, so he wouldn't "get the stuff" all over his uniform.

Fire out, Yoder sent Stolzfus on ahead, left an assistant with the cattle, and went with the trooper to a phone to call a neighbor with a similar truck. While the light hookups connected, the trailer brakes and borrowed truck didn't. Still, the owner offered the substitute pickup for the rest of show week. Yoder, proceeding with extra caution, pulled into the Ag Arena just a few hours late.

Show week was uneventful, at least until show day. While Yoder's wife was assisting at the show desk, her brother went to the parking lot, to move her year and a half old car. The drive shaft fell out.

Show ended, Yoder planned an early departure, remembering the long, steep haul down Seven Mountains and his inoperable trailer brakes. When the trailer clearance lights refused to connect as well, Stolzfus offered to bring up the rear with his rig. Headed out of town, the two rigs were promptly separated by traffic light stops.

Still, Yoder continued on, shoving the borrowed pickup into second as he cleared the mountain and started down the long grade. Strange. What looked like sparks bounced off the road behind him occasionally. Near the bottom, he eased up into third, and the sparks and hings of smoke disappeared. Imagination does funny things to one's mind, anyway. And, where was Harvey?

But flashing lights and attempts to pass by a pickup to his rear weren't imaginary. On the flats near Milroy, Yoder finally pulled off into a field, to be greeted with "two guys running up from behind" who yelled about a fire.

On the back of the borrowed pickup, flames licked around his portable milker. As Yoder frantically pitched the milker to the ground and stomped the fire, a Roadway trucker halted his big rig mid-highway and dashed over with a fire extinguisher.

The milker had pushed hay and straw bits through the truck bed, where they ignited on the muffler beneath. News of fire on a truck hauling a silver trailer down Seven Mountains had swept the CB channels.

And, as he pulled back on the road, there in the rear view mirror, finally, was Harvey.

Down the road just a bit farther, Yoder pulled off for gas. But, Harvey had disappeared again. Shortly, he came pulling in, but relates Yoder with a chuckle, "He looked a little mad."

Seemed Stolzfus had been halted by a state trooper, who pulled him off and insisted he had a fire on his rig, because it had been "all over the CB." Harvey, unaware of Yoder's plight, had to do some fast talking to convince the trooper that he indeed did not have a fire in his pickup and silver trailer.

One year previous, to and from the State Holstein Show at Meadville, this same traveling pair dealt with flat tires, absence of jacks, and Yoder's truck motor cracking two heads.

Carl Yoder's truck departs for the Farm Show complex this week with a brand new motor and a new transmission.

Now he's worried he won't have anything to talk about all week.

Cheese Adds Up To Good Taste — And Wise Nutrition

There are plenty of good reasons for including cheese in your diet, including great taste. But while taste is reason enough for some, others look for much more in the foods they serve their families.

Cheese can stand up to almost any homemaker's test. It is an excellent source of calcium, which helps bones form, repair and reform themselves, and of vitamin B-2 or riboflavin. Riboflavin promotes healthy skin and clear vision. And, like other vitamins, it helps your body utilize energy.

Homemakers concerned about making the most of the food budget will be pleased to note that cheese can be used as a meat substitute. Like meat, cheese is a source of "complete" protein, providing you with all the amino acids you need for protein production.

Yet another benefit of consuming cheese is that recent research has revealed that certain cheeses — Cheddar, Swiss and Monterey Jack — can help prevent tooth decay. These cheeses apparently prevent dental plaque from forming on your teeth.

Sold on cheese? Then check out the recipes below featuring farm-fresh cheese and great taste!

BRUNCH DISH

2 cups onion-garlic or cheese-garlic croutons
1 cup plain croutons
1 cup (4 ounces) grated Cheddar cheese

2 tablespoons chopped chives or ½ teaspoon onion powder
Dash of pepper
4 slices bacon, cooked crisp

Spread croutons over bottom of buttered 10x6-inch or 7x11-inch baking dish. Sprinkle grated cheese evenly over croutons. Combine rest of ingredients, except bacon, and beat to blend. Pour mixture over croutons and cheese. Crumble bacon over top and bake at 325 degrees for 55 to 60 minutes. (Or if you prefer your bacon crisp, crumble over dish when you take it from the oven.) CHEESEY CABBAGE ROLL-UPS

8 large cabbage leaves
Boiling water
1½ pounds ground chuck
1 cup (4 ounces) shredded Cheddar cheese
1 12-ounce can vacuum-packed corn, drained
½ cup chopped onion
1 tespoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 8-ounce can tomato sauce
1 beef bouillon cube
½ teaspoon caraway seed
½ cup (2 ounces) shredded Cheddar cheese

Pour boiling water over cabbage leaves to cover; allow to stand 10 minutes. Meanwhile, combine ground chuck, 1 cup Cheddar cheese, corn, onion, salt and pepper just until blended. Remove cabbage leaves from water. Place ⅔ cup meat mixture in each leaf, fold in sides and roll lengthwise; fasten with wooden picks. Combine tomato sauce, bouillon cube and caraway seed in large covered skillet over medium heat. Add cabbage rolls, cover and cook over low heat for 40 to 45 minutes. (If sauce is too thin, remove rolls and keep warm while thickening sauce. Return rolls to skillet.) Sprinkle with half cup Cheddar cheese. Cover and let stand 2 to 3 minutes to melt cheese.

ANSWER - Last week Cook's Question Corner offered a Liverwurst recipe for a reader from Lebanon. This week, Helen Mill of Honesdale shares her liverwurst recipe

Liver Sausage
(Liverwurst)

35 pounds pork scraps (or hogs head)
15 pounds calf meat (or ribs)

Save meat broth

7 pounds liver
7 pounds dried bread
2 ounces sweet marjoram
1 pound salt
1 ounce allspice
Onions and garlic if desired (We like onions)

Cook all meat until loose from bone Cool. Cut liver in half inch slices, scald in boiling water until almost cooked Soak bread in cold water and squeeze dry. To 10 pounds broth in which meat has been cooked, add spices, etc. Grind all meats through fine grinder with onions. Add remaining ingredients to meat broth. Mix well. Stuff into casings. (If 2 ounces borax is used to a pail of water, the casings will not mold so fast). Tie about 5 sausages to a string. Have a kettle of water near boiling point. Put sausages in and cook until sausages float to top. Cool them quickly in cold water. Hang up to dry. (To keep sausages from spoiling, put them in a brine made of 4 pounds salt to 3 gallons water.)

Note: This is an old recipe from the late 1800s. You do not have to put this in casings if you don't want to. We put the finished product in square pans and cool, then cut it into squares, wrap and freeze. It is delicious with pancakes, etc. or as a luncheon meat.

ANSWER - Mrs. Belinda Myers, Dallastown, requested a recipe for a light, soft doughnut. Thanks go to Esther Shertzer, Columbia, and Julia Petre, Waynesboro, for the following recipes.

Doughnuts

1¾ cups milk
½ cup shortening
½ cup sugar
½ cup mashed potatoes
1 package active dry yeast
½ cup warm water (110° to 115° F.)
2 eggs, beaten
½ teaspoon vanilla
6½ to 7 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
2 teaspoons salt

Scald milk; stir in shortening, sugar and mashed potatoes. Cool to lukewarm. Blend well.

Sprinkle yeast over warm water and stir until yeast is dissolved. Add to milk mixture. Stir in beaten eggs and vanilla Sift 6½ cups flour with baking powder and salt; add gradually to yeast mixture, mixing well after each addition. Add another ½ cup flour if needed to make a soft dough you can handle (use no more than necessary). Turn into greased bowl; turn dough over to grease top. Cover and let rise in warm place until doubled, about 1½ hours.

Roll to ½ inch thickness on floured board. Cut with floured doughnut cutter. Place cut-out doughnuts on waxed paper; cover with cloth and let rise in warm place until doubled, about 30 minutes. Fry in hot salad oil (375° F.). Put top side of doughnut in hot oil first Glaze with the following glaze or shake them in a bag containing sugar to coat them. Makes about 4 dozen.

Doughnut Glaze

1 pound confectioner's sugar
½ cup rich milk
1 tablespoon butter, softened
1 teaspoon vanilla

Mix together and dip doughnuts in to glaze.

Note: By reserving centers, you can make Pecan Rolls: Lightly grease 12 medium-sized (2½ inches) muffin pan cups. In the bottom of each cup, place 1 teaspoon brown sugar, 1 teaspoon light corn syrup, ½ teaspoon water, 3 pecan halves and 3 or 4 raisins. Arrange 4 doughnut centers on top, over with cloth and let rise in warm place until doubled, about 30 minutes. Bake in moderate oven (350° F.) 25 to 30 minutes. Makes 12 rolls.

Place on floured board or waxed paper. Cover, let rise until doubled in warm place, about 1 hour. Place raised side up in heated fat (350° to 375° F.)

and mash into cup with spoon. Potatoes and potato water should be blended smooth before adding remaining ingredients.)
4 beaten eggs
1 cup melted shortening (half margarine, half solid vegetable shortening)

This mixture must be lukewarm to the touch of a finger before adding yeast mixture. If it is, add yeast mixture, still using a wooden spoon. If not, let mixture cool before adding yeast.

Next weigh out 6¾ pounds unbleached flour. Add about half of the flour and begin working with your hands. Keep working in more flour until all flour is added and you have a smooth elastic type of dough. Cover dishpan with a clean towel and let rise in a warm place until approximately tripled in size. Grease 13 to 15 aluminum pie tins. Place 1 pound of dough in each pan. Work the pound of dough into a cakelike shape. Cover pans and let rise until shape has begun to rise along sides of pan. Then glaze cake with glaze mixture, cover top with sliced crumb mixture and loose crumbs. Fill your oven and bake ½ hour at 325°F.

Crumb (or Rivel) Recipe

4 cups flour
1 cup brown sugar
1 cup granulated sugar
1½ sticks margarine
1 stick butter
¾ cup vegetable shortening

Mix all ingredients by hand. Form a handful of mixture into a roll that is 1 inch in diameter by 4 inches to 6 inches long. Refrigerate for several hours before use. Save 1 cup for crumbs. Before baking yeast (or potato) cakes, glaze top with very thin coating of the following glaze mixture:
1 beaten egg
1 tablespoon granulated sugar
Enough flour to make a paste mixture (about 2 to 4 tablespoons)

Be very careful not to get any glaze mixture onto the sides of pan. After glazing, cut a roll of refrigerated crumb mixture into slices as thin as possible. Cover the top with slices. Sprinkle top with small amount of loose crumb mixture. This is enough to cover the tops of cakes made in the preceding recipe.

1 3-ounce package instant vanilla pudding
Whipped topping

Mix ¾ cup sugar with peanut butter until crumbly. Put half the peanut butter crumb mixture into shell. Prepare vanilla pudding as directed and pour half into shell. Mix jelly and remaining sugar until crumbly. Pour over pudding. Pour remaining pudding on top. Sprinkle reserved peanut butter crumbs on top. Chill for 1 hour and serve with whipped topping.

ANSWER - Darlene Kates, Mauricetown, N.J., requested a recipe for arrowroot cookies. Thanks go to A. Martin, Ephrata, for the following recipe.

Teething Cookies

Break 2 eggs into a bowl. Stir in one direction until creamy. Add 1 cup sugar. Continue stirring in the same direction. Gradually stir 2 to 2½ cups sifted flour into mixture and continue stirring until mixture is stiff. Roll out dough with rolling pin, between 2 lightly floured sheets of wax paper to a thickness of ¾ inch. Use a drinking glass and a salt shaker to cut out doughnut shaped cookies. Place cookies on a lightly buttered cookie sheet. Let formed cookies stand overnight (10 to 12 hours). Bake in a preheated oven at 325°F. until lightly browned and hard. This recipe makes approximately 12 durable and relatively crumbproof teething biscuits.

(I used a scalloped-shaped cookie cutter with a hole in the middle. You could also make them the size and shape of the arrowroot teething cookies.)

Clarksburg Youth Wins Trip

UNIVERSITY PARK — James M. Scott Jr., Clarksburg, who raises and markets livestock, has won a trip to the 36th Annual 4-H Commodity Marketing Symposium at the Chicago Hilton and Towers April 26 through 29.

An 18-year-old freshman majoring in animal science at Penn State, Scott is one of 32 young people nationwide selected by the Cooperative Extension Service to attend the event sponsored by the Chicago Board of Trade. The son of James Scott Sr., he plans a career in the swine industry or with the Cooperative Extension Service.

The symposium is designed to help young people understand how the basic principles of marketing, distribution and utilization apply to commodities sold in cash markets and traded in futures markets of major exchanges.

Delegates participate in seminars, tours and activities that focus on the use of futures markets as a management tool and that help in adapting market information and functions to their ongoing 4-H projects. They will visit the Chicago Board of Trade as the market opens, and when trading closes they will simulate actual pit trading.

The symposium is arranged by National 4-H Council, a nonprofit educational organization that uses private resources to expand and strengthen the 4-H program.

Each participant in the symposium has completed an outstanding 4-H commodity marketing project. A 4-H member for eight years, Scott raised his first two market hogs at a loss of $10. Since then he has raised hogs and steers with a total value of $2,935 and marketed them for total profits of nearly $3,500. Last year he farrowed 18 market hogs for sale in the fall.

Foresters Push Green Islands Amid Gray Concrete Of Cities

SYRACUSE, N.Y.—Urban foresters recognize that most people can't see the forest for the skyscrapers.

And no wonder. The very concept of an "urban forest" seems contradictory. Forests and cities aren't supposed to grow together.

Yet 60 to 80 percent of urbanized areas in the temperate regions of the world meet the criteria of forests, says Rowan A. Rowntree of the U.S. Forest Service.

Cities are more wooded than we think. Trees cover about 30 percent of the land in an average U.S. city. Islands of green have survived among the gray concrete.

Tree-Filled Bronx

Even in densely populated New York City, there are 4,500 acres of oak and hickory forests, most of them in the Bronx. In the borough of Queens, there are as many trees as there are people, about 1.8 million. The Forest Preserve District of Cook County encompasses 65,000 acres of metropolitan Chicago.

In as much as 80 percent of any city, excluding its central business district, there is three to four times more vegetation surface—leaves, shrubs, and grass—than artificial surface—streets, sidewalks, parking lots, and houses.

"When we say cities are made of concrete and building materials, that's not really accurate," Rowntree says. "They are made up mostly of vegetation." Among the exceptions are some cities in the arid Southwest, such as Tucson, Ariz.

Only recently have foresters paid much attention to the urban-forest ecosystem, which can influence local climate and provide a habitat for other plants and animals.

Rowntree is counting trees in selected cities across the country by studying aerial photographs and satellite images. He is project leader of the Forest Service's Northeastern Forest Experiment Station in Syracuse.

The Forest Service began a small urban-forestry program in 1978. That year it joined the American Forestry Association in sponsoring the first National Urban Forestry Conference.

Nationally, urban forests are estimated to number in the millions of acres. From the air, Rowntree says, a typical U.S. city, except in the Southwest, appears to be about a third trees, a third grass, and a third artificial surface. About half the city is residential; a fourth is parks and vacant land; and the other fourth is commercial, industrial, and institutional.

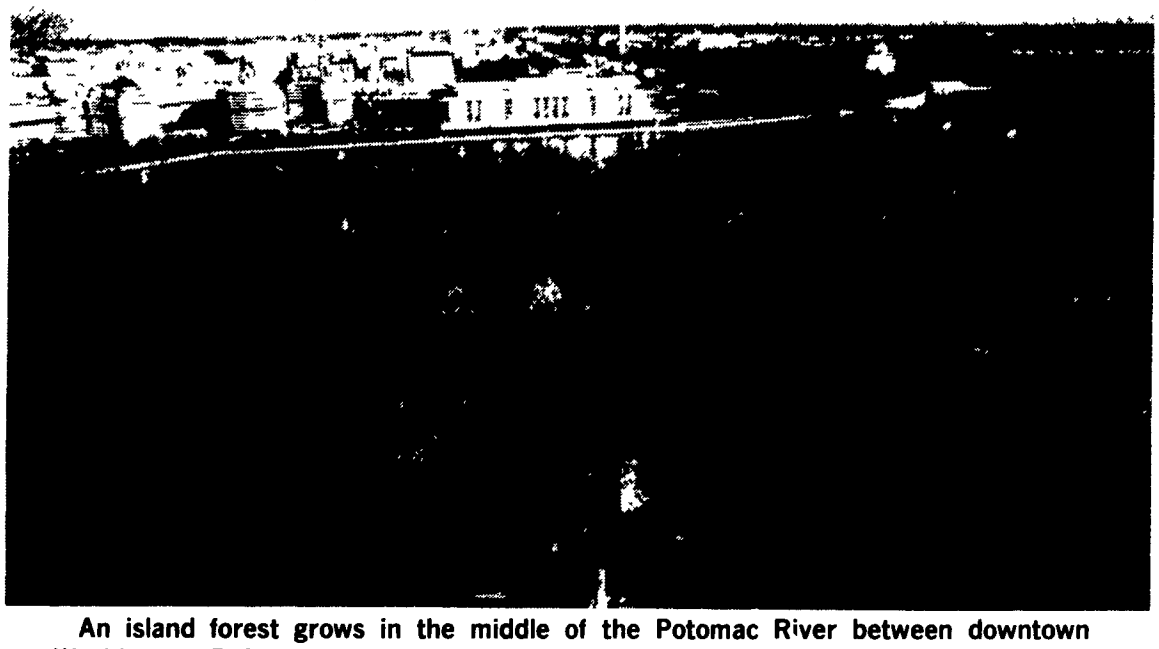
Wooded Hillsides

Among the most-forested cities are those built on hills, such as Birmingham, Ala., and Cincinnati, where much of the land is still undeveloped hillsides.

A Forest Service study of New Orleans trees—live oak, crape myrtle, slash pine, loblolly pine, and southern magnolia—concluded that they constitute "a genuine forest." About 21 percent of the developed part of the city is covered by tree canopy.

"Looking down on Salt Lake City, you see a landscape that looks like Connecticut," Rowntree says. "In what was almost a desert basin, the city over the years has created an urban forest." Tree cover reduces water runoff about 20 percent.

In Carmel, Calif., trees are revered citizens. Some 32,000 trees, mostly tall Monterey pine, crowd the one-square-mile town, far outnumbering its 4,700 people.



An island forest grows in the middle of the Potomac River between downtown Washington, D.C., and the high-rise office buildings of Arlington, Va., on the opposite bank (not seen). The trees of Theodore Roosevelt Island constitute an "urban forest," found in more cities than many people realize.

"Ours is actually a village within a forest," says City Forester Gary Kelly, who keeps a computerized inventory of every tree. "We have no sidewalks, no curbs; we have trees along the streets and trees in the middle of streets that you have to drive around."

On a much larger scale, Atlanta is a rapidly growing city within a forest. More than 743,000 acres of forest land and an estimated 62 million trees make Atlanta one of the most heavily forested urban areas in the country.

But the Atlanta Regional Commission, concerned that urban sprawl might eventually create a terribly hot city, has sought advice from the Forest Service. In 1984, Trees Atlanta Inc., founded by the parks commission and city businesses, began an urban reforestation program in a number of barren downtown areas.

Dayton, Ohio, officials consulted the Forest Service about reducing summertime temperatures downtown. Rowntree says recommendations included planting more trees on streets and parking lots and converting some lots from black asphalt to perforated concrete blocks to allow grass to grow through. The air temperature above a "green" parking lot is about 10 degrees cooler, he says.

Computers Aid Planning

Rowntree hopes eventually to develop computer programs to help individual cities determine the "optimum plan for urban vegetation, species of trees, size, and location, just as they prepare optimum plans for sewer pipes, roads, and utility lines," he says.

"We could program for maximum summer shading, for example, then feed in maximum access to low sun in winter." Sunshine in winter can be critical, particularly for people using solar collectors for heating.

Yet even without leaves, a single sugar maple can cause about a 40-percent reduction in sunlight reaching a southern exposure, says Gordon M. Heisler, forest meteorologist at the Northeastern Forest Experiment Station in University Park, Pa. "A bare tree still has all those branches and twigs, and a large mass up there in its crown."

Genesee County Museum Offers Heirloom Vegetable Seeds

MUMFORD, N.Y. — Order blanks for obtaining seeds for Heirloom Garden vegetables are now available at Genesee Country Museum.

The Heirloom Garden is a collection of seed representing typical varieties of vegetables grown in 19th century gardens of northeastern United States.

The garden offers a unique way to observe the advances made in vegetable varieties and garden practices. Growers may see the conical headed Early Jersey Wakefield cabbage; the ancient corn Black Mexican, delicious and tender when young and producing deep purple kernels at maturity; large winter storage roots of Winter Keeper beet and Black Spanish radish; tiny fruited pear and plum tomatoes colored yellow and red from the days when tomatoes were considered poisonous and grown as ornamentals.

The Heirloom Garden project, now in its eighth year, is a cooperative effort with Genesse Country Museum and the Vegetable Crops Department of Cornell University. Two different sized packets are available; a small packet for those with limited space and a large packet which will plant a garden approximately 10 feet by 20 feet.

Genesee Country Museum's Heirloom Garden vegetables are pictured in an article about heirloom vegetables published in the spring issue of Early American Life's "Gardens" publication, now on the market.

The vegetable types in the seed packets have been researched by Roger Kline of Cornell University and Robert Becker of the Agricultural Experiment Station, Geneva, N.Y.

Order blanks for seed packets are available now on a first-come, first-filled basis. More information about the program is available by writing to SEEDS, c/o Lynne Belluscio, Genesee Country Museum, Flint Hill Road, Mumford, NY 14511.

In 1986, many Heirloom gardeners brought their produce to be judged at Genesee Country Museum's Agricultural Society Fair, held the first weekend in October each year. Included in the judging were vegetables from several living history museums all the way from Toronto, Canada to South Carolina.

Genesee Country Museum opens for its 12th season May 9, and will remain open seven days a week through Oct. 18. The museum is a collection of over 55 buildings which have been moved to the museum site, placed in a village setting and taken back in time to their 19th century condition.

THE MICRO WAY

LANI BLOOMER

Use Your Microwave As A Yogurt Maker!

Did you ever think of using your microwave as a yogurt maker? It works!

Freshly made yogurt has a sweeter taste than commercial yogurt. You can make it tarter, though, by letting it incubate longer. Homemade yogurt costs less than half the price of the store containers, and you can lower the price even more by using dried milk in place of the fresh milk. Yogurt will keep two weeks in the refrigerator, if it's not used up first!

To make yogurt, a milk and yogurt mixture needs to incubate a long time at a temperature close to 115 degrees. In many yogurt makers, this takes about eight hours. In a microwave it takes about four hours to make a quart of yogurt.

I can hear you now, "Four hours! If she thinks I'm going to spend four hours making yogurt, she's crazy!" No, I wouldn't spend four hours doing this either!

It only takes about 15 minutes of your time to make yogurt, but these 15 minutes are spread out over four hours. So, if you'll be around the house to check the temperature, try making yogurt. You'll be surprised how easy it is!

Tips For Making Yogurt

-You need a thermometer that will measure 115 degrees to make yogurt. It does not have to be a microwave-safe thermometer, but that makes it easier. If your oven has a temperature probe, that's perfect!

-You need 1/3 cup yogurt to mix with milk each time you make yogurt. The first time you make yogurt, buy plain, live culture yogurt (read the label to make sure). The live culture is needed to culture the fresh milk. Choose a brand with no additives, sugar, or flavoring for the best tasting yogurt.

-When you make yogurt, set aside 1/3 cup of what you make to be used as the starter for your next batch. After 5 or 6 batches, you may notice your yogurt getting thinner and runny. If this happens, use commercial yogurt again for your starter.

-Yogurt making is delicate; don't stir, jiggle, or move the mixture during incubation or it turns watery. After chilling you may separate the yogurt into smaller containers.

-Heating temperatures that are too high will kill the yogurt culture, or cause curdy, separated areas. Use your oven's lowest setting (10, 1) for best results. Power levels higher than defrost (30, 3) can be used, but you may find overheated spots on the outer edge of the container.

-To use only powdered milk for the milk, mix three cups dry milk with 3 cups water and refrigerate overnight. The refrigeration gives the best flavor with powdered milk, but is not essential.

-If your oven has a temperature probe and memory stages, you may be able to set the oven to maintain the 115 degree temperature for 3 hours. Watch the time and use the lowest power level available. If your oven has HOLD or WARM cycle, using 1 percent power, this is perfect!

Yogurt

1 1/2 cups nonfat dry milk crystals
1 1/2 cups water
2 cups 2 percent or skim milk
1/3 cup plain, live culture yogurt

1. Combine dry milk and water in a 2-quart glass measure or casserole. Stir in 2 percent or skim milk.

2. Scald milk: leave uncovered with microwave on high for 6 to 8 minutes, stirring once, until steaming. (Or set temperature probe for 185 degrees.) Don't skip this step!

3. Cool milk to 115 degees. This takes about 45 minutes at room temperature. Stirring occasionally speeds the cooling.

4. Mix about 1/2 cup of the scalded milk into the 1/3 cup yogurt, stirring until smooth. Then pour this into the rest of the milk and mix well. Cover container with plastic wrap and insert thermometer (if it is microsafe) or probe through the plastic. Put the container in the microwave and plug in the probe if you are using it.

5. Microwave on low power (10, 1, or defrost) until the temperature reads 115 degrees. This will take 1 to 4 minutes, or set your probe for 115 degrees. Turn oven off, leaving the yogurt inside for one hour.

6. Repeat step #5 twice, so yogurt incubates in the microwave for 3 hours at 115 degrees. It should be thick, set and mildly tart. If you want it thicker or tarter, incubate it longer.

7. Refrigerate to chill thoroughly. After chilling, spoon into smaller containers if desired. Makes 1 quart.

Note: these times are for a 600 to 700 watt microwave. You may have to lengthen the step #2 scalding time for a lower powered oven. If you use defrost (30) or medium (50), for the brief reheating times in step #5, you may need less time. The incubation time will not be affected by the oven's power level.

Using Yogurt

-Mix 1 cup yogurt with 1 to 2 tablespoons brown sugar, or a packet of sugar substitute, to make a topping for fresh fruit.

-Substitute yogurt for sour cream in recipes to reduce calories.

-Mix yogurt with an equal amount of water and use as a substitute for buttermilk in baking.

-Mix yogurt with an equal amount of mayonnaise in tuna, potato, or macaroni salads to reduce calories.

-Add 1 to 2 tablespoons jam or 1/4 cup fresh fruit and 1 tablespoon sugar (if desired) to 1 cup yogurt to make fruit flavored yogurt.

Franklin County 4-H Families Devote Time, Love To Raising Seeing Eye Pups

BY BONNIE BRECHBILL
Franklin Co. Correspondent

CHAMBERSBURG—Danny LaBonte, a slight, soft-spoken 13 year old, is developing a warm relationship with Irene, a four-month-old black Labrador puppy he has had for six weeks. Every day after school, he plays with Irene and takes her for walks. At night, she sleeps on plastic on the floor beside his bed, attached to the bed by a leash. The first few nights Irene spent in the LaBonte home, Danny slept on the floor next to her.

In January 1988, Danny will give Irene away. After that, he will see her only once more in her lifetime.

Danny, a first-year 4-Her, and the six other members of the Seeing Eye Club of Franklin County are raising puppies for The Seeing Eye, Inc. of Morristown, NJ. Club members get the puppies from Morristown at eight weeks of age and return them after 11 months. Those 11 months are filled with firm, loving training.

Danny's mother, Marsha LaBonte of Shippensburg, thinks the Seeing Eye project is much more work than other 4-H projects. "You don't leave the animal outside in a pen," she noted. "You interact with it all the time."

The Seeing Eye project, even more than most 4-H projects, is a family affair. A mother who objects to a dog in her child's room or under her kitchen table would be a big obstacle to a 4-Her who wished to become involved.

Besides performing the usual tasks of feeding and walking the dog, the 4-Hers must keep the dog as their constant companion to accustom it to the type of relationship it will have with its blind master.

The dog must lie obediently under the table at mealtimes. No one is permitted to give the dog table scraps. The dog is also not allowed to have food treats for good behavior, as all rewards must be verbal.

Whenever the dog is outside, someone must be with it. In short, the whole family—not just the 4-Her must devote themselves to making an obedient, well-mannered dog out of a lively puppy. Their only reward is knowing how much that dog will mean to the blind person who receives it.

Danny's family has always had dogs and cats, but was "out of practice on puppies," according to Mrs. LaBonte. "I had forgotten about the garbage chewing," she said. "It's going to be hard for Danny to give her up, though."

Club leader Donna Boyd and daughter Kelly know all about giving up a dog. "We cried for three weeks after we returned the first one," Donna said. "This time we'll be better prepared." Their 110 pound German shepherd, Vinnie, returned to Morristown March 17. They picked up a black Labrador puppy the same day.

For the 11 months that 4-Hers are "foster parents" to the puppies, they must bring them to monthly training sessions to practice commands the dog must know to assist a blind person. The club also goes on outings to bowling alleys, nursing homes and shopping malls, to accustom the dogs to situations they will encounter as guide dogs.

Donna Boyd leads the training sessions and gives the 4-H handlers useful tips she has learned while helping Kelly raise two guide dog puppies.

When the dogs and kids arrive for a training session, some from as far away as Hagerstown, Md. and Fulton County, Pa., the puppies greet each other enthusiastically. "Let them play a little, but don't let them get nasty," Boyd advised.

A recent training session began with the handlers and their puppies forming a circle. For the benefit of the first-timers in the group, Boyd gave detailed instructions on how the puppy must be handled. "The dog works on your left side," she said. "Take the leash in your left hand and coil the extra in your right hand. Don't wrap it around your hand. Use the dog's name first, then give the command. Be sure you start out walking on your left foot."

Six dogs received the command "Forward." Some, such as Atlas, handled by Rhonda Garling, 16, of Chambersburg, circled effortlessly. Other, younger dogs romped under their masters' feet and tried to drag, rather than lead, them around the circle.

When the dogs are commanded to stop and sit, Boyd told the handlers, "Give your dog words of encouragement when he does something right. Give commands in a firm, low-pitched voice, but when you praise him, do it in a high-pitched voice. This will help him learn the difference."

Rhonda and Atlas demonstrated a figure eight maneuver. Atlas, a 6 month old golden Labrador, is her third Seeing Eye puppy.

Rhonda recently visited her second Seeing Eye puppy, Dora, in Morristown.

Dora, like all Seeing Eye puppies raised by 4-Hers, returned to Morristown training center at the age of one year. She was given a physical, spayed, and allowed a month to adjust to the kennels. She then worked with a sighted trainer every day for three months, in any weather. It was during this training period that Rhonda was allowed to see Dora. She followed the dog and trainer around the streets of Morristown and watched as Dora learned various techniques she will need to assist a blind person.

One important lesson a Seeing Eye dog must learn is when to intelligently disobey a command his master gives. For example, the dog must disobey the command forward if obeying it would put his master in danger from an approaching car or an obstruction on the sidewalk.

When the three months of intensive training are up, Dora will be placed with a blind person and undergo more training with him or her. Rhonda will then be sent a picture and letter telling her where Dora will live. She will never be permitted to see Dora again after the dog is given to the blind master. "That would be too emotionally difficult for the dog," Rhonda explained.

The Seeing Eye, Inc. covers the costs of raising the puppies, who have been bred for intelligence, size and temperament. When the 4-Hers get the dogs in Morristown, they receive a leash, collar and brush for the dog, along with a training manual. The Seeing Eye reimburses the family for the dog's food. Local veterinarians who perform the required check-ups on the dog may send their bills directly to The Seeing Eye.

Ninety-five percent of the puppies raised by 4-Hers pass The Seeing Eye's physical and are accepted into the training program. The few that are rejected are offered back to the 4-Her who raised them. If the 4-Her is unable to take the dog, it is given a physical to determine if it qualifies for police or narcotics work. Many of the rejected dogs pass that physical and enter the field of law enforcement.

A common reason for rejection by The Seeing Eye is carsickness, an obviously undesirable trait for a dog who must accompany his blind owner everywhere.

Tory, an 8-month-old German Shepherd being raised by Luke Sanders of Fulton County, was often carsick on the hour-long drive over the mountains to Chambersburg for the monthly meetings. However, frequent car trips with the Sanders family have gradually accustomed Tory to the motion of the car, and Luke is confident that she will pass her physical and be admitted to the training program.

The Seeing Eye project benefits not only the blind persons the puppies will eventually serve, but also the 4-Hers who raise them. The kids, who all seem devoted to their charges, learn day-in, day-out responsibility for another living creature.

A bonus of participating in the Seeing Eye Club is learning to speak in public. During a recent demonstration at the Franklin County Nursing Home, several of the club members gave talks about the history of The Seeing Eye, the training the dog will receive after it returns to Morristown, and experiences they have had with their dogs. The group also demonstrated the dogs' ability to obey commands.

While most of the handlers are 4-Hers, 4-H membership is not a requirement for obtaining a Seeing Eye puppy. At least one adult is raising a puppy, and more are welcome.

More information and an application may be obtained by calling Donna Boyd at 264-9192 or Bob Kessler at the Franklin County Extension office, 263-9226.

Danny LaBonte, left, and 11-week-old Irene, compare notes with Chris Richards and Keena. Both dogs are black Labradors.

Kelly Boyd is working to train Vinnie, her 11-month-old German Shepherd.

Residents of the Franklin County Nursing Home enjoy an opportunity to make friends with a guide dog puppy.

Winners Listed In State FFA Project Record Book Contest

STATE COLLEGE — Over 500 FFA members from across Pennsylvania participated in the state FFA project record book contest. This contest awarded gold, silver, bronze, and honorable mention awards to the top record books in the state. Books entered in the state contest had previously been selected as winners in their respective counties or areas.

Judges for the contest were a committee of vocational agriculture teachers from the various FFA regions of Pennsylvania — Dr. Kenneth Rhodes and John Bierbower from Derry High School, Dale Ishman from Towanda High School, Cynthia Shaffer from Middleburg High School, Robert Leib from Cumberland Valley High School, Blaine May from Chambersburg High School, Donald Reinert from Kutztown High School, and Ron Frederick from Twin Valley High School. Also, Dr. Robert Walker from the Pennsylvania Department of Education and Donald Mincemoyer from the Ag Ed Department of Penn State. The committee was organized through the Pennsylvania Vocational Agriculture Teachers Association.

All vocational agriculture students are required to maintain project record books as part of their in-school curriculum. Project books teach students the fundamentals of record keeping and, especially with animal and crop records, how to analyze these records. This information is useful to students in their agricultural careers.

Quilts Top Sale Bill For MCC Relief Sale

BY SUZANNE KEENE

LANCASTER — For the next two weeks Allen Carr's phone will ring incessantly. As chairman of the Mennonite Central Committee's Pennsylvania Relief Sale, Carr will be fielding questions about the 31st annual sale until the first quilts hit the auction block in the Farm Show Complex Saturday, April 4.

Known best for its colorful, top-quality quilts, the sale also offers a smorgasbord of homemade goodies, including strawberry pie, homemade ice cream, and chicken and pork barbecues. Antiques, handcrafts from over 30 developing countries, a painting/carving by Amishman Aaron Zook and a 1941 Pontiac 4-door sedan (on display until sale time at Peifer Pontiac in New Holland), round out the sale bill.

Over 300 intricately pieced and stitched quilts, constructed by chuch and women's groups across the state, are the kingpin of the auction. Some of the coverlets will be sold during the auction beginning at 9 a.m. Saturday, while others carry price tags.

But what sets this sale apart from others is that the quilts, like everything else offered at the sale, are donated. Many churches and individuals, including but not limited to those of the Mennonite faith, contribute quilts, food, handicrafts and time to the sale, Carr said.

Proceeds from the sale, which last year totaled $314,000, go toward implementing the Mennonite Central Committee's world relief programs. The MCC has over 1,000 volunteers working in over 40 countries throughout the world to relieve suffering and to help people in those countries learn to produce their own livelihood. Some funds also stay in the United State to help victims of disaster.

For Paul Hoover, who has served as sale treasurer for 30 years, participating in the sale is an exciting challenge. "It's a lot of work, but it's exciting," says the retired bank president. "There's something that happens to the individual who gives." That nething, difficult to describe in ds, is more than adequate payment for the hours of volunteer w rk that go into making the sale a success.

"So many people come together and work with so little friction," Hoover said. When a job needs done, someone is always there to do it.

The first relief sale, dubbed the Tri-County Relief Sale, was held on a Morgantown farm in 1957 and netted approximately $5,000 for the While quilts are the main attraction at the Relief Sale, homemade food is a definite second. Paul Rohrer, left, his wife, Ada, center, and Sam Gish will be making homemade ice cream with their 5-gallon freezer powered by a 1928 John Deere engine.

MCC, Hoover recalls. Each year the sale continued to grow and in 1975 Gov. Milton Shapp invited sale organizers to move the event to the Farm Show Building for the country's bicentennial celebration in 1976.

Since its relocation, the sale attracts approximately 15,000 to 20,000 people each year. They will travel from as far away as the midwest to examine, and purchase, the exquisite quilts and crafts and to sample the homemade food.

In its 30-year history, the sale has netted $3,185,800. Treasurer Paul Hoover is especially pleased that sale organizers have been able to keep administrative costs to a minimum. In 1986, administrative costs accounted for only 11.9 percent of the proceeds, the lowest of all operating relief organizations, Hoover said.

This year's sale events will begin with an open house Friday, April 3 from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m. The 250-member Pennsylvania Men's Chorus, conducted by Martin E. Ressler, will perform at 7 p.m.

A breakfast of ham and egg omelet, pancakes and sausage will open Saturday's events beginning at 6 a.m. Display booths open at 7 a.m. and small items will be auctioned at 9:15 a.m. The chicken and pork barbecue will begin at 10 a.m. and the antique auction is slated for 10 a.m. Children's activities are scheduled from 10 a.m. to 1:30 p.m.

Ag In The Classroom Returns To Lancaster Co.

Ag in the Classroom was back this week with children in fourth grade in several Lancaster County school districts learning more about agriculture and how important it is in their lives.

John B. Groff was one of three dairymen in the Hempfield School District who talked to students in the district's six elementary schools about the dairy industry. He brought "Midnight" with him to introduce the children to the dairy cow and explain how they produce the milk they purchase in stores. Her size was impressive to the fourth graders, and they were excited to be able to touch her and watch Groff "milk" her. In the classroom they learned about good nutrition and the complexities of the modern dairy farm.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

During those warm days a while ago, I made a start on my spring work. Several wheelbarrow loads of twigs were hauled from the yard together with pine needles.

Also removed from the garden were some fences which protected my cabbage and peanuts from a groundhog that lives under an old locust stump near the edge of the garden. I'd surely like to get rid of this animal as he's eaten quite a bit of my garden produce.

When I look through the seed catalogs, I'm amazed at the number of things that are for sale other than the usual vegetables, fruits and flowers that you'd expect to see there.

An in-house bird feeder intrigued me but the price was too high. The advertisement says that with the aid of a "one-way mirrored effect the birds are in your house but can't see you from their side."

There is also a full line of bee equipment plus the bees themselves. Then there are canning kettles, food dehydrators, apple parers, cherry pitters and onion bags.

And if you don't want to use chemical sprays and powders, you can buy a 17-inch vinyl-molded Great Horned Owl or a 6-foot inflatable reptile to scare off hungry birds. To help your garden along, you might purchase a package of ladybugs to devour the destructive insects. Or maybe you'd want to try some packages of earthworms to increase the soil fertility. Whatever you want, they have it.

Now if the weather cooperates, I hope to have the garden rototilled and planted with sugar peas before the end of the month.

PERFORMANCE THAT COUNTS:

Now you can select a Simmental bull that increases growth while improving calving ease.

Some said it was impossible. But again, the doubters were wrong.

519,000 Records Analyzed * by Cornell University showed:
• Birth weight-down • Weaning weight-up. • Yearling weight-up.

Simmental bulls can give you calving ease plus growth.

* Cornell University analyzed all of our performance records from 1970 through 1981. All 519,000 progeny of all 7,436 sires were included. Compared with 1970, sires used in 1981 showed marked improvements in expected progeny difference values for birth weight, weaning weight and yearling weight.

Let Eby Custom Build One For You!

When you've got livestock to haul, you don't want to worry about your trailer.

Consider one made of aluminum from M.H. Eby. They're built tough - tough enough to stand up to years and years of hauling. And they're nearly maintenance free. They'll never come apart at the seams or need expensive paint jobs.

Eby custom builds all-aluminum livestock trailers in nearly any size or shape - from bumper hitch models like the one on the left to 48' possum bellies. Please give us a call or write for more information.

Life Is Sweet At Chester County's Annual Maple Sugar Festival

BY MARJORIE KEEN
Chester Co. Correspondent

COATESVILLE — Approximately 6,000 people attended Chester County's seventh annual Maple Sugar Festival at Hibernia Park last Saturday. The techniques of backyard maple sugaring, from tree identification to candy making, were demonstrated by the county parks staff and commercial maple producers. There were hayrides and bluegrass music; a pancake breakfast was served all day.

The popular festival was originated by Chester County Parks and Recreation Director Richard Sprenkle, a native of western Pennsylvania, where festivals are traditionally held at the end of each sugaring season. "The idea's not new with me," said Sprenkle.

The idea is novel, however, for southeastern Pennsylvania, attracting all ages. A check of the parking lot last Saturday showed license plates from Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey and New York.

According to Sprenkle, many Chester countians aren't aware that Pennsylvania ranks third in maple syrup production, after Vermont and New York. In 1980, the latest year for which figures are available, Pennsylvania's yield was 56,000 gallons of pure maple syrup. The state's nearly 500 commercial producers are located in the northern counties and the Allegheny ridge.

Gay Deats of Kinnan Century Trees, Middlebury Center, Tioga County, was making candy at the festival. She is a fifth generation member of a farm that processes maple syrup from 3,000 tree taps. It's hard to know exactly how many producers there are, according to Deats, because Pennsylvania no longer keeps statistics and most operations are limited to family groups.

Deats' sister and brother-in-law, Lee and John Fazzari of Flanders, N.J., travel to the farm in Tioga County each sugaring season to help. Last Saturday they were helping with the candy and distributing samples at Hibernia Park.

Although the season that needs warm days and cold nights is nearly ended in Chester County, northern Pennsylvania probably has another month of maple sugaring. Deats says that the festival to end the Tioga County season takes place in early May.

Finger lickin' good: Jo Anna Rosenberger just couldn't wait six hours for the tasty maple sap to be boiled down to syrup.

Richard Sprenkle, founder of Chester County's Maple Sugar Festival, displays tools needed to tap maple trees.

Taste testing is a popular pastime for festival goers, including these two young maple syrup connoisseurs from Spring City.

CATTLE ON FEED UP 15 PERCENT---Cattlemen placed 150,000 more animals in feedlots in February than they did a year earlier. That represents a 15 percent increase in cattle placed on feed this February over last.

Cattle being fed for slaughter March 1, however, were down 3 percent from a year ago and 10 percent below two years earlier in the seven largest cattle feeding states, the USDA reported yesterday.

IOWA STATE STUDY SAYS FARMERS SITTING TIGHT—A study conducted by Iowa State Universitty revealed that fewer farmers are undergoing bankruptcy or foreclosure than the researchers expected. ISU extension sociologist Paul Lasley said two-thirds of Iowa's farmers have moderate to low debt loads. "But still, people are not taking any risks." He said almost everyone has either been burned financially or knows someone who has in the farm recession. The study involving 1,817 farm operators began a year ago. It asked participants if they were going to expand their operations by buying or renting additional land or by making major equipment purchases. Most are neither expanding nor reducing the size of their operations, the study showed. Lasley said the few who were planning to expand came from among the younger, better educated, larger scale operations who had more farm sales and larger debt loads.

CATTLE BULL MARKET WON'T MATCH 1978-79---Observers are pointing out similarities between the current cattle market and the last major upswing in 1978-79, but most analysts and retailers do not expect top prices to reach levels that saw fed steer prices top at $79.25 in April of 1979, $15 per cwt. higher than last Friday's $64.27 closing price for April cattle.

The difference, analysts say, is in the demand factor with people more prone to switch to poultry and production on the increase in that industry. "If the demand for beef was as strong as it was in 1979, fed steer prices would be in the $80 range now," said Bill Lawless, president of Lawless Commodities.

$50,000 PAYMENT GETS MIXED REVIEWS—Lawmakers are not jumping with enthusiasm over administration efforts to close loopholes on the $50,000 ceiling on farm program payments. House Agriculture Committee chairman Kika de la Garza (D-Tex.) said the proposal will be studied but he added, "those extra payments are, in effect, part of the process of making America more competitive without bankrupting farmers." Some lawmakers fear too rigid enforcement of the ceiling would force some producers out of the program and cause them to increase their production, which in turn would expand the supply of agricultural goods forcing prices down and damaging both farmers and taxpayers.

FARM CREDIT'S SPECIAL LAND SALE A SUCCESS—The special terms on sales of farmland by Farm Credit Services of St. Paul has successfully served its purpose. The system sold nearly a quarter-of-a-million acres of land in Minnesota, Wisconsin, North Dakota and Michigan since the special sale began in January. Terms of interest as low as 4.9 percent and down payments as low as 10 percent brought thousands of calls and resulted in sales of all targeted land at prices averaging above appraised value. Most of the buyers were operating farmers and 25 percent of the sales have been for cash, reported Glen Callin, senior vice president of FCS of St. Paul.

Maple Sugar Festival

Except for a few demonstration trees, most of the sugar maples tapped for the "Hibernia syrup" were actually in another Chester County park, Springton Manor, not yet open to the public. The demonstration trees were popular with finger-licking children, as was the taste test of raw sap, commercial syrup and Hibernia syrup.

After learning how to identify the sugar maple, a tree owner could buy taps at the festival and take home free instructions for collecting sap, boiling it down and canning the syrup that results after six hours of boiling. Festival goers could also pick up recipes that substitute maple syrup for sugar. For those who did not plan to make their own, pure Pennsylvania maple syrup was for sale, along with maple butter and maple sugar candy.

Get Vegetables, Flowers Off To A Good Start

FLEMINGTON, N.J. – Starting vegetables and flowers from seed indoors can be a gardener's delight or disaster. There are several keys to success. If one is critical, it's providing adequate light.

Seedlings need a lot of light to develop into sturdy, vigorous plants that will thrive in the garden. Even a sunny, south window is usually less than ideal. Of course, a greenhouse would be perfect, but a simpler and less costly solution is fluorescent light. A two-tube "shop lite" is an excellent plant growing fixture; they are often on sale and relatively inexpensive, too.

There is no need to use special lights; cool-white fluorescent tubes are fine for raising seedlings. If the fixture is hung with chains; it can be easily adjusted for height of the plants. Adding an automatic timer to turn the lights on and off makes things really convenient. Gardeners who have been less than successful starting seeds in the past should try lights, 14 to 16 hours per day, 4 to 6 inches, above the plants.

Temperature is important, too. Many seeds germinate best at temperatures in the 70's, even 80's, but most seedlings will grow best indoors at temperatures around 65 to 70°F, during the day and somewhat lower at night. Inadequate light and/or high temperatures produce the tall spindly seedlings that gardeners often end up with starting seeds indoors.

Seeds should be started in sterile planting medium. Soil straight from the garden, may contain organisms that cause "damping off," a deadly problem that can wipe out seedlings in no time. The easiest way to avoid the problem is to use a commercial soiless mix. These products also make it difficult to over-water plants, another hazard to avoid.

Growing good transplants indoors is a challenge. The right light, temperature, and mix can help gardeners meet it.

Adams Co. Farmers Assn. Still Growing

The Adams County Farmers' Association membership is still climbing. Chairman David Donaldson at the regular March meeting of the Board of Directors reported. The total number of member families is more than 864. Before the membership year ends June 30 David has hopes of reaching 900. More associate members are being accepted because of the Blue Cross/Blue Shield health insurance group plan which is much cheaper with better coverage than the individuals insurance. Pennsylvania Farmers Association has the largest group plan in the state with more than 10,000 families covered.

County Information Director, Mrs. Calvin F. Bream reported on a regional information training meeting she and Mrs. Norman Beamer attended at the Light House Restaurant, Chambersburg.

Mrs. Ray Grimes, co-chairman of the Women's Committee announced a CPR course to be held Monday, March 9 and Thursday, March 12.

She also announced the Women's Seminar, or Spring Fling as it was once called, will be held at Hickory Bridge Farm, Orrtanna, Tuesday, April 21. A very prominent and entertaining speaker is being sought. Keep the date open and watch for a future announcement.

Mrs. Grimes announced a Youth Conference to be held at Bucknell University June 21-25. If any boy or girl is looking for summer fun and education and has completed his/her Junior or Senior year in high school, call Mrs. Ray Grimes, 334-1022 or Mrs. Thomas Clowney 334-5405. It isn't necessary to be a Farmers' Association member.

The Adams County Farmers' Association Women's Committee will distribute coloring and good-health information booklets to all county 5th graders. These books emphasize the importance of protein pro-teens.

The directors approved the purchase and distribution of REWARD SIGNS in the CRIME WATCH PROGRAM being carried out by the Farmers' Associations throughout the state. Signs are plastic and will cost members $1.00 each. However members that get their reservations for the Spring Meeting to Thomas Clowney NOW at 361 Barlow Road, Gettysburg, 17325, will get a free sign at the dinner and meeting being held at the Gettysburg Fire Hall, March 30 at 6:30 P.M. A meteorologist from the National Weather Bureau, Harrisburg, will be the featured speaker.

The summer picnic has been set for July 27, 1987.

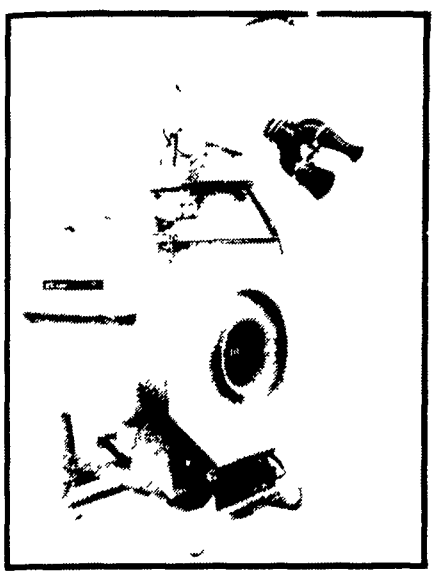
MODEL C-400 "CANNON"

Versatile Sprayer For Many Different Applications Of Insecticides And Fungicides!



Aerodynamic Design Of The "Cannon" Head Delivers

MORE AIR!

39" fan produces 280 MPH air speed. Allows you to cover 100-130 feet which means fewer trips thru the fields, fewer drive roads and more crop per acre. This design gives a well-defined, easily controlled mist, yet small cannon covers crop close to tractor.

MORE PENETRATION!

High air velocity produces a finer mist which penetrates short dense growth or tall crops such as sweet corn. Also allows smaller volumes of water with excellent coverage and fewer trips to the water tank.

Binkley & Hurst Bros. Inc. Is Ready To Make A Good Deal On A New High Performance Tractor That's Got More Of What You Need...TOP PERFORMANCE And FUEL EFFICIENCY

case Call (717) 626-4705 And Trade Up Now! case

TAKE A CLOSE LOOK AT "TOTAL PERFORMANCE"

There's Sure To Be A "Total Performance" Tractor That Belongs On Your Farm.

Whether you farm 200 or 2,000 acres, you probably have at least one tractor in the 95 to 182 horsepower range.

The 96 Series, with the 95 PTO hp 1896 and 115 PTO hp 2096, handle chores from feedlot work all the way through the toughest primary tillage operation.

Electro-hydraulically controlled power shift transmissions improve efficiency and make shifting to the optimum gear a pleasure, not a chore. A high capacity, Category II 3-point hitch, Case IH CON TROL hydraulics and dual speed PTO allow maximum use of new and existing equipment.

Moving up in power, the five 94 Series tractors share the total performance features of the 96 Series. The 2294 - 131 PTO hp, 2394 - 162 PTO hp, 3394 - 162 PTO hp, 2594 - 182 PTO hp and 3594 - 182 PTO hp; each one a tractor with its own unique capabilities.

One look at these heavyweights and you'll see why the Case IH reputation is growing. Massive inboard planetary final drives easily handle the stresses delivered to them under the toughest drawbar loads.

The 2294 has special features like dual speed PTO to handle a wide range of implements while the larger models are available with electro-hydraulically controlled 24-speed power shift transmissions for maximizing drawbar efficiency and fine-tuned planting and chemical application.

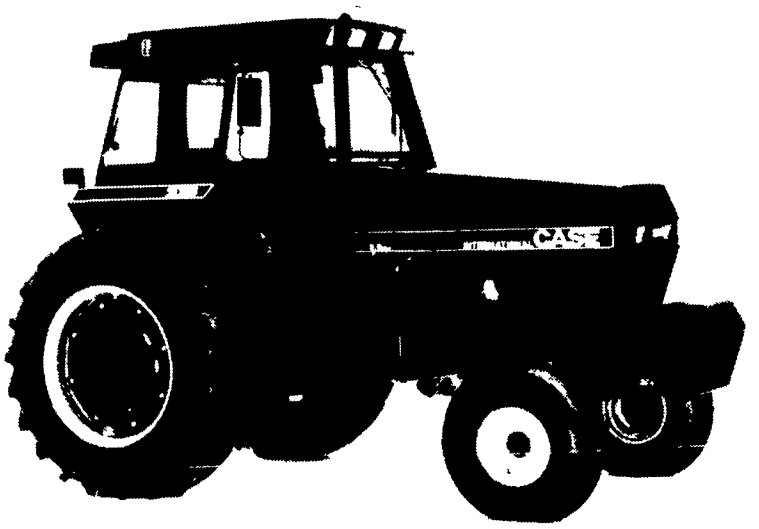
Silent Guardian cabs virtually isolate you from sound and weather. Deluxe, fully-adjustable air/oil seat gives you a ride that rivals luxury cars. Advanced electronic instrumentation and convenient controls make operation almost second nature.

The 5.9 liter six-cylinder Case IH diesel in the 96 Series incorporates the latest proven diesel technology, computer-assisted design and advanced manufacturing techniques.

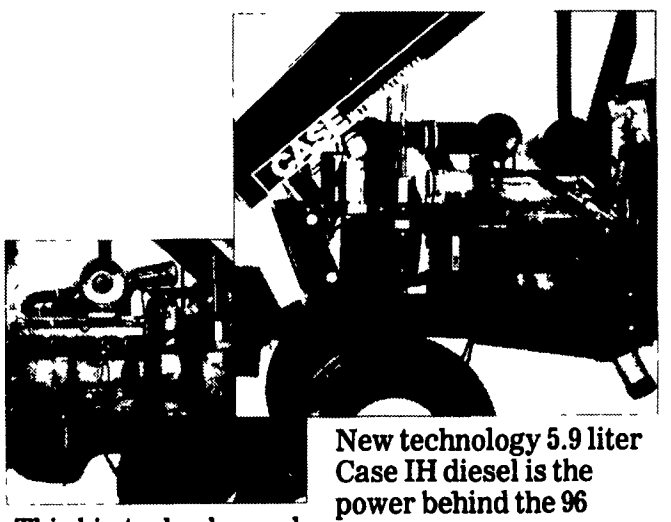
Both the 1896 and 2096 are turbocharged for improved efficiency and the 2096 gets an additional boost through aftercooling.

The 94 Series tractors are powered by 504 cubic inch turbocharged diesels.

All engines are turbocharged, high-torque diesels to bring you optimum performance and fuel economy. Turbocharging packs more air into each cylinder where precision designed pistons thoroughly mix fuel and air for complete, controlled combustion. The high-torque characteristics of these engines provide increased lugging ability for greater productivity. The wide rpm operating range of these engines get loads moving quickly and hang on to keep you pulling without need for frequent shifts.



Mechanical Front Drive on the 1896, 2096, 2294, 3394 and 3594 provide Case IH 4-wheel drive efficiency throughout this power class. The high clearance, fully mechanical drive uses limited-slip front differentials to provide improved traction over competitive models.



New technology 5.9 liter Case IH diesel is the power behind the 96 Series. Computer-assisted design has helped improve fuel economy and reliability.

This big turbocharged 504 cubic inch diesel provides the power for the 94 Series. Spring-assist hinged hood allows easy access for maintenance.

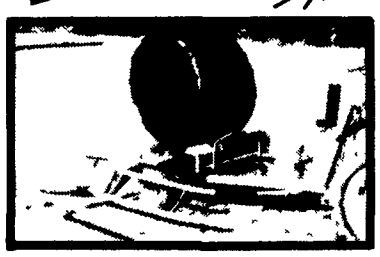
THE NEW ROUND BALE WRAPPER
Round Bale Wrapping — An Economical Efficient Method Of Making Silage



This is the Silawrap system:

- The lift-arm places the bale on the turn table.
- Silawrap film is then attached to one of the bale strings
- As the turn table is rotating, the rollers will slowly turn the bale
- The Silawrap film is stretched around the bale overlapping 2-3-4 or 5 times according to the setting of the gears.
- The film is cut, film end secured and bale tipped off.

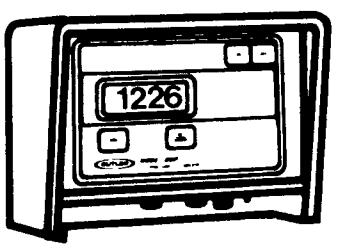
OMP-5 Scale System combines cost effectiveness accuracy and reliability



The new Butler "Polygon" Ensilmixer features an exclusive 20-sided polygon drum design, with special mixing paddles for superior waterfall type mixing action. Allows mixtures to move forward for continuous mixing action, unlike round drums, where mixtures tend to slide back, interrupting smooth mixture flow. Also, stainless steel drum has a smoother surface, with less cling of wet, sticky materials to the drum sides for more efficient mixing.

Exclusive loading hopper design eliminates hopper dead spots, and exclusive design of front unloading gate provides a positive and adjustable rate of unloading. Five lifting scoops at the rear of the polygon drum (more than any drum mixer) funnel the ration to the discharge auger and give a fast, unequaled, steady unloading rate.

100 cu. ft. (80 bushel) and 170 cu. ft. (145 bushel) mixing capacity sizes.

USDA Conducting Avian Flu Survey

WASHINGTON – U.S. Department of Agriculture animal health officials are conducting a national survey of live-bird markets and auctions to check for signs of avian influenza, an infectious viral disease of poultry.

"The survey will locate poultry dealers and live-bird markets throughout the United States that sell live birds directly to the consumer," said Bert Hawkins, administrator of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service. "Once these dealers and markets are identified, we will sample and test birds to determine any past or present exposure to avian influenza viruses."

Specialty, exotic or show birds are exempted from the survey if they are accompanied by health certificates.

Hawkins said testing is performed using virus-isolation and serological methods. Veterinarians take blood samples and tracheal swabs from selected birds. All of the samples will be tested at the National Veterinary Services Laboratory in Ames, Iowa.

"If avian influenza is found, we notify state officials to clean and disinfect the market or dealer premises," said Hawkins.

Avian influenza can be transmitted by movement of contaminated equipment, vehicles, clothing and personnel. While the disease is not harmful to humans, it is devastating to poultry, and, once established in an area, can spread quickly from flock to flock.

"Avian influenza viruses can hitch-hike back to farms on contaminated trucks and cages," explained Hawkins. "That's why biosecurity measures must be practiced by dealers and owners of these markets and auctions."

Hawkins urged market operators to switch from wooden to plastic crates because they are easier to clean and disinfect. All equipment, cages, and trucks should be cleaned and disinfected after delivery before they return to farms. He also warned market owners that birds not immediately sold to customers can infect and spread avian influenza to new arrivals, thus multiplying opportunities for contaminating equipment and spreading disease to poultry farms.

"The premises of dealers, auctions and live-bird markets should be cleaned and disinfected after birds are sold to prevent the risk of infection," said Hawkins. "Everyone must cooperate to avoid a widespread outbreak of avian influenza that could devastate the poultry industry."

A 1986 outbreak of avian influenza in commercial flocks resulted from the movement of birds through live-bird markets in the Northeast.

In 1983-84, an outbreak of H5N2 avian influenza in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia and New Jersey cost taxpayers $65 million dollars to eradicate, and required the destruction of more than 17 million birds.

The survey of live-bird markets and auctions will be completed by April 15.

MAEC Reports Record-Breaking Bull Test

STATE COLLEGE – The Meat Animal Evaluation Center's 14th Annual Bull Performance Test has just been completed, with a record 82 bulls completing the test.

The overall average daily gain on test maintained by the 82 bulls was 4 pounds per day – the highest ever for the group average at the MAEC.

There were also several individual records broken. The top gaining bull was an Angus bull consigned by Erin Krueger that maintained a 5.11 pounds-per-day gain through the 140 day test. This is the first bull to ever complete the test with a gain in excess of 5 pounds per day.

The purebred Simmental bull consigned by Oak Hills Farm, posted the top adjusted 365 day weight of 1491 pounds, to ever be attained. There are three Angus and two Simmental bulls with adjusted 365 day weights of over 1400 pounds.

There are 10 bulls that posted an average daily gain for the entire test in excess of 4.50 pounds. There were new breed records established for average daily gain by an individual in each of the Angus, Charolais, Polled Hereford and Simmental breed groups.

This was the first year that a British breed bull posted a frame score of 8 in the test. The Angus bull was consigned by Anne-Ellson farm. We also have the tallest Polled Hereford tested here in the bull consigned by Penn State University. This bull had an adjusted yearling height of 54.7 inches.

Of this exceptional group of bulls the top 60 will be sold. The sale group consists of 23 Angus, 15 Polled Herefords, 14 Simmentals, seven Charolais and one Red Angus.

The bulls that are offered for sale have all passed a comprehensive breeding soundness and semen exam, have had their feet trimmed and will have health papers to go anywhere.

The sale will be held at 12 noon on Friday, March 27, in the Ag Arena at The Pennsylvania State University, located in State College.

Lakeview Wins At Chianina Futurity

HOUSTON, TX – Karen Brothers and Lake View Farm were included in the number of folks that traveled from 13 states to attend the National Italian Fullblood Chianina Futurity at the Houston Livestock Show and Rodeo February 23, Houston, Texas.

The trip to Houston was successful for East Berlin Chianina breeder Dr. Carl Brothers, Lake View Farm, and his daughter Karen as she exhibited the senior champion fullblood female and Lake View Farm exhibited the reserve grand champion fullblood bull.

In his remarks, Judge Dale Overpeck of Granbury, Texas stated ease of traveling is a requirement for top Chianina cattle. "I'm looking for a female who can get out there and walk and take care of a calf," Overpeck said.

Of the bulls, Overpeck commented he was pleased with the overall quality presented. He told the audience "... they've got some style, balance, length and soundness to produce what our industry needs."

For his senior champion female, Overpeck selected Karen Brothers' entry, CR Pandora. The senior champion is sired by Rocking Arrow BJ I and is out of Xanadu I.

Overpeck's selection for reserve grand champion bull was Rocking Arrow Overdrive. First named senior champion bull, the reserve champion bull is sired by Faletto's Image, the American Chianina Assn. 1985-86 Show Sire of the Year. His dam is Cara I.

Young Lamb Nutrition

Lambs born during the late winter months require some special management, and in particular nutrition. If lambs are nursing their mother or being reared on bottle, by about 8 to 10 days of age they need something besides the milk as a source of nutrients for optimum growth. A ration that is 14 to 16 percent protein, highly nutritious and highly palatable can be offered to lambs in creep if they are with their mother or offered in a separate box in the pen if the lambs are being reared on a bottle.

There are many formulations that will work for this creep feed, but one that is practical and quite successful is a ration that is composed of 10 to 15 percent soybean meal, 30 to 35 percent chopped high-quality hay, about 5 percent molasses and the remainder cracked grain (Ration 1). This should all be mixed and self-fed.

The reason this needs to be furnished to the lamb nursing his mother is that the ewe will furnish her lambs about all the feed they need only for about the first 10 days of their life and after that the lambs requirements for food are beyond the capacity of most ewes to feed. The cheapest way to get the lamb the nutrients he needs is to offer him this extra feed in a creep or in some other manner. Table 1 suggests some possible rations.

Lambs nursing their mothers should have creep feed by 10 days of age. It should be in the night lot or barn and available at least 12 hours a day. It has been found that ewes will start slackening off on their milk production after the lambs are about 15 days old, and the ewes are not giving very much milk by the time the lambs are about 10 weeks old. In the case of spring-born lambs, the milk production of the ewe lasts a bit longer. In any case, by the tenth week after a lamb is born, if he has had the high quality feed available in addition to his mother's milk, he will be eating so much of it and become so accustomed to it that he can be weaned from his mother and scarcely notice it as far as his nutrition is concerned. The best way to wean lambs at 10 to 12 weeks of age is to remove the ewes and leave the lambs in the environment where they have been in the habit of feeding.

If lambs are being reared on a bottle arrangment, they should have their milk supply reduced gradually after 2 to 3 weeks of age so that they will be encouraged to eat more of the available dry feed. It is much cheaper, and by the time these lambs are five to six weeks old they should be pretty well weaned from the milk supply and eating the dry, supplemental feed.

The lambs that are being raised on a combination of bottle milk and extra feed need a bit more protein in the dry feed than those nursing their mothers because the latter will nurse longer. Think about a 16 to 18 percent protein ration (more soybean meal) for lambs that are getting dry feed and bottle because they are going to be weaned by the time they are 6 to 8 weeks old.

Table 1. Suggested Creep or Supplementary Rations for Lambs Between Birth and 50 to 60 Pounds

Ingredient,	Ration 1	Ration 2	Ration 3
Cracked grain[a]	50	65-70	80

IHO Speakers Urge Cattlemen To Reduce Fat In Beef

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — Beef industry authorities from four universities urged breeders and producers to reduce fat content in beef during CELEBRATION '87, the International Hereford Organization's first show, sale and seminar, held here Feb. 27 through March 1.

Dr. Gary L. Minish, Associate Dean of Agriculture and Life Sciences, Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University served as program moderator. The speakers were: Dr. Thomas R. Pierson, Professor of Agricultrual Economics, Michigan State University; Dr. Warrie J. Means, Extension Meat Specialist, University of Kentucky, College of Agriculture; Dr. James R. Stouffer, Professor of Animal Science, Cornell University; and Dr. Harlan Ritchie, Extension Beef Cattle Specialist, Michigan State University.

"Each of these doctors presented extensively researched proof that leaner beef is the only alternative for our industry," stated Andy Sweet, executive secretary of the IHO.

Dr. Thomas Pierson, the first speaker, stated that the consumer continues to become more health conscious and consequently rejects conventional fat beef. The only way to change this trend is to begin providing and promoting leaner, healthier beef, he said.

Dr. Warrie Means emphasized that "trimming" beef programs only evade the true problem of fat content in meat. His presentation demonstrated the lean beef must begin through calculated efforts of the breeder.

Dr. James Stouffer introduced advanced ultrasound technology able to detect the actual percentage of lean and fat composition in an animal. Stouffer, who has been developing ultrasound techniques for cattle since 1958, also determined the fat content and rib eye size of every animal competing in the show portion of CELEBRATION '87, as part of the animal's entrance requirements.

Dr. Harlan Ritchie delivered documented facts proving that breeders need to become involved immediately. Ritchie described the "war with chicken" as a sink-or-swim battle demanding action from the beef industry.

The IHO offers a traditional Purebred Registry for Hereford Cattle and an advanced Appendix Registry, a new approach for breeders who seek to improve beef quality by expanding the genetic pool, principally in response to consumer demands for lean beef that conforms to health conscious diets.

Hereford Sale Grosses $128,000

LOUISVILLE, Ky. — More than $128,000 was grossed at the International Hereford Organization's first sale during CELEBRATION '87, on Feb. 27 at the Kentucky Fair & Exposition Center, Louisville.

The sale portion of CELEBRATION '87 was the first to require ultrasound testing of each animal at a show. This procedure provided information on fat content versus lean muscle and rib eye size and was conducted by Dr. James Stouffer at Cornell University, a specialist in ultrasound testing.

A high price of $60,000 was paid for a one-quarter interest in "Panama Jack," of Empire Farm, Litchfield, Conn., and New Frontier Genetics, Pierpoint, Ohio. The bull was purchased by Bernie Chaus, Cornwall Bridge, Connecticut; Steve Wilson, Pine Ridge Farm, Ontario; Norman Thomas, Spring Glen, NY and Bobby Hull, One Farm, Willowbrook, Illinois. The purchase established the value of Panama Jack at $240,000.

Panama Jack was later awarded junior bull calf champion, during the CELEBRATION '87 Bull Show on Sunday, March 1. Born March 25, 1986, and weighing 1225 pounds, the bull's fat content, determined by ultrasound, measured .15 inches thick and ribeye measured 12 inches. Panama Jack was sired by RHS Raleigh 29 and its dam was GLA Special Lady.

The highest selling female was "Miss Longbranch 7D T586 of Longbranch Farms, Brandenburg, Ky.; Rattle 'N Snap Farms, Columbia, Tenn., and Keith's Log Cabin, Owensboro, Kentucky, which sold for $6300 to Curry Farms, Winchester, Kentucky. Born April 7, 1985 and weighing 1528, Miss Longbranch's ultrasound measured fat content was .52 inches thick with ribeye of 12.8 inches. Her growbone height was 59 inches.

"We are very encouraged by this support of the IHO," said Andy Sweet, executive secretary of the IHO. "The sale indicates that breeders are very interested in investing in leaner cattle and working toward the ultimate development of consistently lean beef."

Swine Producers Elect Officers

LANCASTER — The Lancaster/Chester Swine Producers elected officers and delegates at the organization's meeting held at the Lancaster Farm and Home Center on March 12.

New officers are: president, Eric Zeiset, Elizabethtown; vice president, Bob Fahnestock, Lititz; secretary, Ronald Butt, Chester Co.; treasurer, Ken Emery, Ephrata.

Three newly appointed delegates include John Henkel, Strasburg; Bob Fahnestock, Lititz; and Abe Fisher, Gap.

USDA Offers To Extend CCC Loans

YORK — Producers holding Commodity Credit Corporation loans on 1985 and 1986 crop feed grains, rye, soybeans and wheat may, at their option, extend those loans for 12 months. This would be the second 12-month extension for 1985 loans, D. Wayne Kurtz, County Executive Director for the York ASC Committee said.

Kurtz said the action was taken to encourage producers to take advantage of all available on-farm storage space. He added that the action would also give additional marketing flexibility to producers who have outstanding loans on barley, corn, oats, rye, sorghum, soybeans or wheat.

Storage costs for the added 12-month loan period will be paid by CCC for all the above commodities except soybeans. The Agriculture and Food Act of 1981 and Food Security Act of 1985 prohibit CCC from paying storage on soybeans.

Producers who wish to extend their loans must request extensions in writing at their county ASCS office. The request must be filed no earlier than 60 days before the loan maturity date.

Advance storage payments will be issued for all crops except soybeans. The annual storage rates are 26.5 cents per bushel for wheat, barley and corn, 47.32 cents per hundredweight for grain sorghum and 20 cents per bushel for oats.

Producers extending their loans may repay them at any time during the extended 12-month period.

From National Pork Producers Council

Pork Producers Call For Safe Drug Use Program

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — The elected leaders of the nation's pork producers have taken steps to establish a national safe drug use program. The action, taken by delegates at the annual meeting of the National Pork Producers Council in Indianapolis on March 5, will eventually lead to an overall quality assurance program in U.S. pork production.

Delegates at the NPPC meeting made it clear that their action was based on pork producers' concern that drugs used in treating animals are effective and that the food products derived from those animals are safe and nutritious. An important part of the program will be better producer/veterinarian relationships to assure that when certain drugs are used on animals in a manner other than indicated on approved labels, those uses will be carefully administered under strict control and in a professional manner under a veterinarian's guidance.

The delegates agreed that such uses must provide for precise identity of animals and extended withdrawal periods to provide adequate margins of safety, and supported by tests of animals for drug residues when available and necessary. A special task force made up of producers, university swine specialists and veterinarians reported that when so-called extra-label uses of drugs are administered under such veterinarian's guidance and controls, effective treatment of animal diseases is preserved while presenting no hazard to the safety of food.

The pork producer delegates, in a related action, reiterated their support for mandatory identification of all slaughter hogs back to the last farm of ownership.

NPPC has been working with the U.S. Dept. of Agriculture, packers and marketing agencies for over a year to develop an ID system that serves the needs of producers and consumers but does not place an unfair burden on any one segment of the industry. It is generally accepted within the industry that disease control programs can only be accomplished through an effective identification and traceback program. NPPC will continue its participation in the effort to develop an effective mandatory identification program.

Of particular immediate concern to pork producers is an indication by the USDA and the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) that some sulfa-based products now used in hog production may be banned unless sulfa residue violations are reduced to below one percent. A voluntary sulfa-safe program launched by NPPC approximately one year ago, and involving on-farm testing and a massive producer education effort, has reduced sulfa violations from about six percent to approximately four percent.

NPCC Proposes National PRV Eradication Program

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — Elected leaders of the nation's pork producers have endorsed a plan that over a 10-year period would rid the industry of pseudorabies, a disease that annually costs U.S. producers an estimated $30 million dollars.

The action to approve a 10-year timetable for PRV eradication and control came during the annual meeting of the National Pork Producers Council (NPPC) delegates, March 5, at Indianapolis.

The delegates based their action on the results of PRV pilot projects conducted in several states during the last three years. Those tests, evaluated in the fall and winter of 1986 by several industry groups, including NPPC's own PRV Producer Oversight Committee, indicated that PRV control is feasible by applying tools already available, and utilizing methods that should be acceptable to hog producers.

The program has an estimated overall price tag of $1?? million. That amount would come from three major sources: State and federal governments and producers. No direct payments by producers or use of producer checkoff funds is envisioned in the massive effort. The producers' share of the cost would come from labor required for testing, "down time" and vaccination. According to estimates provided by the PRV Oversight Committee, the average cost of clean-up per sow capacity in infected farrow-to-finish herds would be about $45, or the cost of vaccinating the breeding herd and offspring for two years.

Entry into the control and eradication program would be voluntary on the part of any state, and decisions on advancing from one stage to another in the program would be determined by individual states as their financing situations permitted.

The program would be in four stages, with a state being declared PRV-free on the basis of standards yet to be determined.

The delegates at NPPC's annual meeting agreed that the NPPC should provide the leadership to gather all industry groups and respective governmental agencies together in a joint effort to secure the necessary funding to get the program underway as soon as practically possible. NPPC plans to seek funding from USDA's Animal Plant Health Inspection Service compatible with the 10-year eradication plan starting in 1989. In the interim, it will seek inclusion of $2.8 million in the APHIS 1988 budget to maintain and expand PRV control efforts already started by cooperative agreements in pilot project areas.

The hydraulic system of the 561 Bale Thrower includes a large capacity reservoir; hydraulic filter and highly visible speed indicator. Speed control and electronic thrower steering device are tractor mounted and standard equipment.

Massey 'Autotronic' System Honored At Paris Show

DES MOINES, Iowa – Massey-Ferguson has struck gold at Europe's biggest farm equipment show with its "Autotronic" system of automatic control on its new 3000 Series tractors.

The Autotronic system, which uses a micro-processor to automatically control various tractor functions to increase its output and operating economy, has won the company a Gold Medal Award for technological achievement at this year's SIMA, the world-renowned international farm machinery show in Paris, France.

The unique system is standard on the M-F 3050 (60 PTO horsepower), M-F 3060 (68 PTO horsepower), M-F 3070 (80 PTO horsepower) and M-F 3090 (95 PTO horsepower) tractors. All of these models were introduced to Canadian and United States dealers and customers in November, 1986.

The show's Gold Medal Award is awarded by a special committee of technical and farming experts, who judge new machines to decide which will make the most significant contribution to further progress in agricultural mechanization.

M-F's winning Autotronic system frees the driver from having to carry out a number of repetitive, monotonous aspects of operating the tractor's transmission, four-wheel-drive, differential lock and power take-off.

The automatic control of these functions provided by the microprocessor eliminates any mistakes or misjudgments the driver might take. As a result, the tractor operates consistently at a higher level of output and efficiency, giving savings on fuel, wear and tear, and improved safety.

The automatic control system can be combined with a second on-board computer that provides a comprehensive tractor management system. These "Datatronic" models can "think" out the most cost-effective way of operating by feeding the driver with information on 16 areas of the tractor's performance, including a comparative mode, which he can use to adjust his methods of driving or implement settings to maximize output and minimize costs. Incorporated is a wheelslip control system which automatically keeps wheelslip to within any pre-set limit.

Krause Introduces 2 Row Crop Cultivators

HUTCHINSON, Kans. – The emphasis has been placed on heavy duty consturciton or Krause's new row crop cultivator.

Two models are being introduced, a rigid bar model and a flat fold model. The rigid bar model will have row spacing of 28 inches through 40 inches on four row; 28 inches through 40 inches on 6 row, and 28 inches through 30 inches on eight row. The flat fold model will have row spacing of 36 inches - 40 inches on six row, 28 inches - 40 inches on eight row, and 28 inches - 30 inches on 12 row.

The new cultivator will feature the Krause K-Tine shank designed to have the rigidity of a C-shank but the flex action of a tine. These heavy duty tines have a high point load to keep sweeps running level and provide years of flexing in the field. The K-Tine shank has a 21 inch clearance and a 55 degree stem angle.

Rigid models have a 5-by-7 heavy tool bar and flat fold models have a rugged 7-by-7 tool bar to provide strength and durabiltiy. Other standard features include a straddle type 3-point hitch and quick adjustable yoke mounted 4-by-12 gauge wheels. The pivots have hardened steel sleeves and case hardened pivot tubes. All pivots are regreasable.

The 3 inch square adjustable gang extensions allow vertical adjustment on the rear extension and horizontal adjustment on the side extensions. In addition, two 18 inch stablizier assemblies are standard on the 6 row and larger models. All folding models offer right and left tool bar gauge wheels with 6.70 x 15SL tires and two 4x16 wing lift cylinders and hoses.

Available as accessory equipment for the new row crop cultivator are 3 to 5 shank conversion kits, both full row and half row. Other options include rolling shields, down pressure spring, and tool bar stands.

Krause is offering its new cultivators in rigid bar and flat fold models.

Moorman's To Hold Fly Meeting

FREDERICKSBURG – Moorman's Mfg. Co., makers of livestock minerals and supplements, will hold a luncheon to discuss fly control on Thursday, March 26, at 11:15 a.m. at Esther's Restaurant in Fredericksburg.

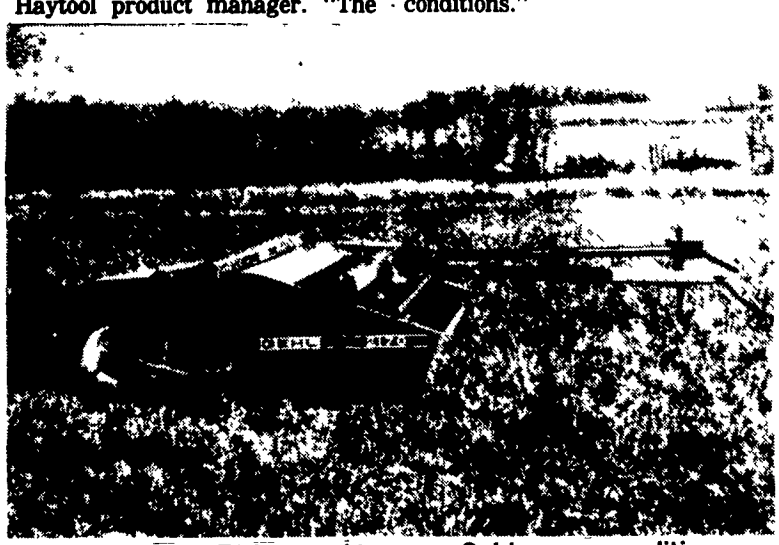
The main topic of the meeting will be the economic importance of controlling horn flies in beef and dairy operations. Anyone interested in minimizing losses due to horn fly populations is invited to attend. For more information call Pete Crout, 717-738-1326, or Warren Wenger, 717-865-6723.

Gehl Offers Mower Conditioners

WEST BEND, Wisc. – Gehl Company's two new pull-type sicklebar mower conditioners are built for fast cutting, fast drying and worry-free performance.

Both the 7-foot Model 2140 and the 9-foot Model 2170 feature simple pivot-arm knife drive for high-speed cutting. "The sickle drive is powered off the lower conditioning roll so you get 'flywheel-type' momentum for extra cutting energy when you need it," says Jim Phillips, Gehl Haytool product manager. "The intermittent ribbed rubber conditioning rolls provide 35 percent more working edges than continuous ribbed rolls. That means more crimping action and faster drying time."

The mainframe is a 4-inch by 8-inch by ¼-inch structural beam. It provides outstanding strength and durability. According to Phillips, "The cutterbar is exceptionally strong and the drives are designed to stand up to the toughest working conditions."



The Model 2170 is one of two new Gehl mower conditioners from Gehl that feature simple design, easy adjustments and lower maintenance, says the company.

John Deere Day

Deere & Company Territory manager Don Worner (right) honored Landis Bros Inc., of Lancaster for more than 60 years of John Deere sales and service at John Deere Day held at the Lancaster County Farm and Home Center last week. From left are Dick Miller, Landis Bros secretary/treasurer, and John Rineer, president. The plaque commemorates the 150th anniversary of Deere & Company, as well as its dealers' contributions to company success.

About 300 attended the event, which included new product reviews and films on equipment safety. Landis Bros is the fourth oldest dealership in the 13-state Syracuse Branch.

New Loader Fits Current And Older Deere Tractors

MOLINE, Ill. – John Deere has introduced the model 265 loader, replacing the 260, for John Deere two-wheel-drive 50-series tractors, the 55-series utility tractors just introduced, and earlier tractor models, including those with mechanical front-wheel drive (MFWD) and hydraulic front-wheel drive (HFWD).

The loader can be equipped with 61, 73, 85 and 96 inch materials buckets or a 73 inch heavy duty digging bucket. Also available are a 67 inch manure fork, a forklift attachment with telescoping boom, a pallet fork, a round bale fork, and a grapple for round bales or silage.

The new round bale/silage grapple provides 30 percent more clamping force and three times the tine strength of previous grapple designs. It can handle bales up to 6 feet in diameter.

Since the loader is self-leveling, the bucket remains at the same angle throughout the raise and lower cycle. Single-lever control of both boom and bucket makes the loader easy to operate. Hydraulic metering is precise for smooth and careful positioning of heavy loads, and a built-in regenerative function makes dump speeds fast and even. In addition, built-in lockouts minimize internal oil leakage to help prevent boom and bucket settling.

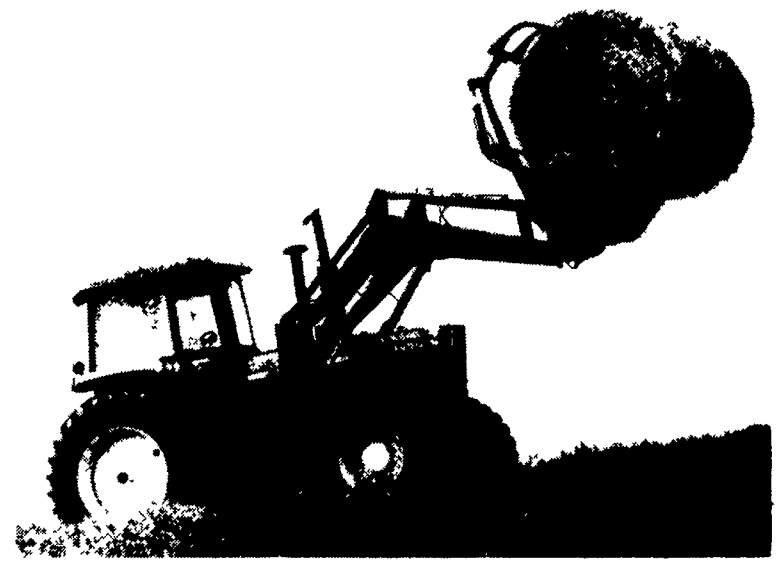
Bucket rollback force has been increased substantially over the earlier 260 model, enabling an operator to maneuver a round bale of up to 2,000 pounds in any position and at all heights. Dump angle has been increased over most of the lift range; at 8 foot 2 inches, for instance, the dump angle is 85 degrees, so the bucket can empty completely when dumping.

To park the loader, the operator simply lowers the integral parking stands, pulls two pins, backs the tractor out and uncouples the hydraulic lines; no tools are needed. Handling attachments is just as simple: release the spring-loaded locking pins and back the tractor away.

Wider boom members, large boom pins, bigger knee plates and other improvements increase the durability of the 265 in all applications.

For purposes of example, the 265 loader mounted on a John Deere 3150 MFWD tractor can lift 3,197 lb. at full height of 12 ft. 11 in., or 5,280 lb. for an 18 in. lift; clearance in the dump position is 10 ft. 7 in.; breakout force is 4,781 lb.; and maximum digging depth is 10 in. By comparison, the 265 mounted on a 4250 MFWD tractor would increase lift capacity to 3,375 lb. at full height of 13 ft. 2 in., or 5,544 lb. at 18 in.; dump clearance would be 10 ft. 10 in.; and breakout force would increase to 4,973 from 4,781 lb., but digging depth would be reduced to 7 in.

The 265 can be mounted on these current John Deere tractors: 2950, 2950 with mechanical front-wheel drive (MFWD), 2955, 2955 MFWD, 3150 MFWD, 4050, 4050 MFWD, 4250, 4250 MFWD, and 4450. It also fits earlier models including the John Deere 2840, 2940, 2940 MFWD, 3130, 3130 with hydraulic front-wheel drive (HFWD), 3140, 3140 MFWD, 4030, 4030 HFWD, 4040, 4040 HFWD, 4230, 4230 HFWD, 4240, 4240 HFWD, 4430, 4430 HFWD, 4440, and 4440 HFWD.



Bigger, stronger and more versatile than the earlier 260 model, John Deere's 265 loader can be mounted on many Deere 30, 40, 50 and 55-Series tractors.

Crop Insurance Sign-Up Deadline Is April 15

WASHINGTON, DC — Farmers throughout the nation are facing a new reality this year that makes crop insurance about the only protection against disaster short of an act of Congress. The deadline for signing up for crop insurance this spring is getting close, and officials are cautioning producers to study their options carefully. There aren't that many left, they say.

All farmers for most commercial crops are now eligible for Multiple Peril Crop Insurance and will not be eligible for low-cost disaster loans without it. Furthermore, mandatory disaster payments are also discontinued and many FmHA loans may also be conditioned upon the grower being insured. A combination of a change in the 1985 farm bill, and administrative rulings make crop insurance about the only protection against crop damages or losses for farmers in 1987.

In most states throughout the South, the deadline for signing up for crop insurance on most spring crops is March 31; in other areas the deadline is generally April 15. However, says one crop insurance official, it's not just a matter of signing up for crop insurance that's important, it's planning a reasonable program of protection with a local crop insurance agent.

"Farmers need to work with an agent on a proposal based on their individual yield records of their farm," says E. Eugene Gantz, executive vice president, American Association of Crop Insurers. "That can increase the amount of coverage and reduce the premium rate if the farmer has above average yields."

To rely on anything else is to take risks that few farmers can afford, he points out. "It was Congress that acted to remove most other disaster assistance protection for 1987, and it is only Congress that can put it back," says Gantz. And given the federal budget realities, it would take a major disaster of widespread magnitude to get Congress to reinstate such relief, even on a short-term basis, he adds.

A crop insurance policy also helps a producer at the bank, Gantz notes. It provides additional collateral for negotiating operating loans "because it puts a value on the crop equal to the insurance protection in force."

Last year, crop insurance protection nationally totaled an estimated $15 billion. Estimated loss payments to farmers nationwide are also estimated at about $850 million.

Excel To Market Vacuum Packed Beef

WICHITA, Kans. — Excel Corporation announced recently that Kansas has been selected as the first state-wide test market for its 28 Excel Brand fresh, vacuum-packed beef cuts.

The test market for Excel Brand products-- the only vacuum-packaged, fresh USDA Choice beef cuts available-- began March 16.

"We're confident that Kansas will enjoy the fresh beef cuts, and when they're successful in the heart of beef country, we know they'll be well received in other parts of the nation," said Excel President William G. Fielding.

"If properly refrigerated and unopened in its original vacuum packaging, Excel Brand beef will remain fresh for seven days or more without freezing. That way it's always fresh and ready to prepare at your convenience," Fielding said.

The oxygen-free environment in the extra-strength vacuum packages maintains the purity, natural goodness, flavor and tenderness of the branded cuts, he said.

The slightly deeper color of vacuum-packaged beef is consumers' assurancfe that the seal preventing oxygen and bacteria from reaching the meat is still airtight. A few minutes after Excel beef packages are opened, the beef assumes the rosy color consumers expect of fresh cuts of USDA choice beef, Fielding said.

He added that although there is no need to freeze beef cuts used within a week, Excel's original vacuum package is an ideal freezer wrap.

Excel Corporation is a subsidiary of Cargill, Inc. It operates beef-processing facilities in Booneville, Ark.; Marysville, Calif.; Dodge City and Wichita, Kan.; Rock Port, Mo.; Cozad and Nebraska City, Neb.; and Friona and Plainview, Texas.

Pinkeye Vaccine Offers Protection

UNION, N.J. — Schering Animal Health has introduced a new pinkeye vaccine, called Piliguard Pinkeye I, that offers season-long protection with only one shot.

One intramuscular, 2-ml injection of Philiguard Pinkeye I is equivalent to two doses of aluminum hydroxide-adjuvated bacterin and provides season-long immunity to M bovis Since cattle don't need to be worked twice, the new vaccine saves money, labor and time.

"This piliated vaccine requires no booster for complete protection, even under stress or harsh environmental conditions," says Dr. Greg Sumner, veterinarian at Schering.

Field studies show that Piliguard Pinkeye 1's unique oil-adjuvant formula produces no undesired reactions following administration. Cattle vaccinated with Piliguard Pinkeye 1 have experienced only low levels of tissue irritation and have not been subject to carcass trim due to injection site reactions, reports Dr. Summer.

Piliguard Pinkeye 1 is USDA-approved for intramuscular use and has no injection site restrictions.

For more information about Piliguard Pinkeye 1, write to Robert Young, Schering Animal Health, 1011 Morris Ave., Union, N.J. 07083, or call him at 201-820-6221.

SCS Cites Improvements In Erosion Control, Water Quality

LEESPORT – Efforts of a federal conservation agency to target its help to areas with serious soil erosion and water quality problems are paying dividends reports State Conservationist James Olson.

The USDA Soil Conservation Service is using several programs in this effort to make major reductions in soil and water management problems. The number of tons of soil saved has almost doubled from 1984 to 1986 in the 14 southeastern counties of the Mason-Dixon Erosion Control Area, reports Olson. Over 700,000 tons were saved last year compared to 380,000 in 1984.

Similar progress has been reported in the upper portion of the Conestoga River Watershed through the Rural Clean Water Programs. Since its start in 1982, 74 contracts have been signed covering 5,505 acres. These contracts are to improve both ground and surface water conditions. Monitoring of both surface and ground water quality continues on two farms and a smaller watershed by the U.S. Geologic Survey.

Closely related is the state cost share program in farm nutrient management in six high priority watersheds in portions of Adams, York, Dauphin, Lebanon, Lancaster and Chester counties. A total of $1.9 million has been obligated for 100 farm nutrient management plans to improve water quality. The USDA Soil Conservation Service assists conservation districts by providing technical planning and application assistance for Best Management Practices.

"All of these programs are located in southeastern Pennsylvania and had an impact of doubling tons of soil saved in the last two years, stated Olson. However, directing efforts to the most serious problems is happening in other parts of the state, too."

Land treatment watersheds are providing extra dollars and technical help to four watersheds. Clover Creek, Blair County, Buffalo Creek, Union County, Rock Creek, Adams County and Cedar Run in Clinton and Centre counties are involved in this program. According to Olson, Clover Creek was one of the first of this type program in the country. Clover Creek is in its fourth year of a 10-year program. About 70 percent of its funds to reduce soil erosion and improve the quality of Clover Creek have been contracted with farmers in the valley.

"Targeting is occurring in each county," states Olson. SCS and conservation districts have selected the area in the county with the highest erosion rates. "Our field office staffs have been directed to give priority assistance to farmers in these areas."

The Soil Conservation Service is the technical arm of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. It provides help to farmers and other land users through locally governed county conservation districts. SCS is responsible for protecting the soil and water resources on private lands of the nation. Their offices are located in most counties of the state.

Financial Videotapes Available

NEWARK, Del. – To provide local farmers with more financial management tools, Delaware Cooperative Extension is developing a library of videotapes on financial management. These half-inch VHS tapes cover a wide range of subjects and can be borrowed for home study. They vary in length and some are part of a series.

To date, the following titles can be ordered by calling county extension offices in Newark (451-2506), Dover (697-4000) and Georgetown (856-7303). The requested videotapes will be delivered to the appropriate county office for borrower pick-up. There is no charge for their use.

There's no trade secret on how to produce a big shelling hybrid for your farm.

You start with a farm family like Doebler's. One with 52 years of corn breeding behind it. Then you stick with the basics—from testing inbreds to pulling tassels and grading seed. No shortcuts. And you test. At eastern ag colleges. At Doebler's seven research stations. On farms all across the East.

It works. Let our hybrids show you just how well.

Why not call your nearby dealer. He has the details to help you pick a winner for your farm. All Doebler hybrids come in the full bushel bag, of course. The price just could surprise you.

DOEBLER 89X-C, 120 days. A big sheller everywhere — 165.4 bu. average in 1986 farm tests, 152.5 in '85. Shakes off drought and leaf diseases. Good standup. Deep kernels. Hard cob.

DOEBLER 86X, 119 days. Excels where leaf disease major problem. Like southeast and southcentral PA . . . and south. Super stalks. Solid yields. 167.9 bu. average last year in 23 trials.

DOEBLER 75X, 113 days. Records say it all. Pennsylvania's all time corn champ with 281.6 bu. in 1986 state five-acre contest. And stunning 170.3 bu. average in 33 farm trials elsewhere.

DOEBLER 70X-C, 112 days. New for 1987. And a real silo filler. "C" gives you bigger yields and a larger, greener plant than 70X-A. But retains good health and sturdy stalks.

DOEBLER'S Hybrids grown FOR THE EAST

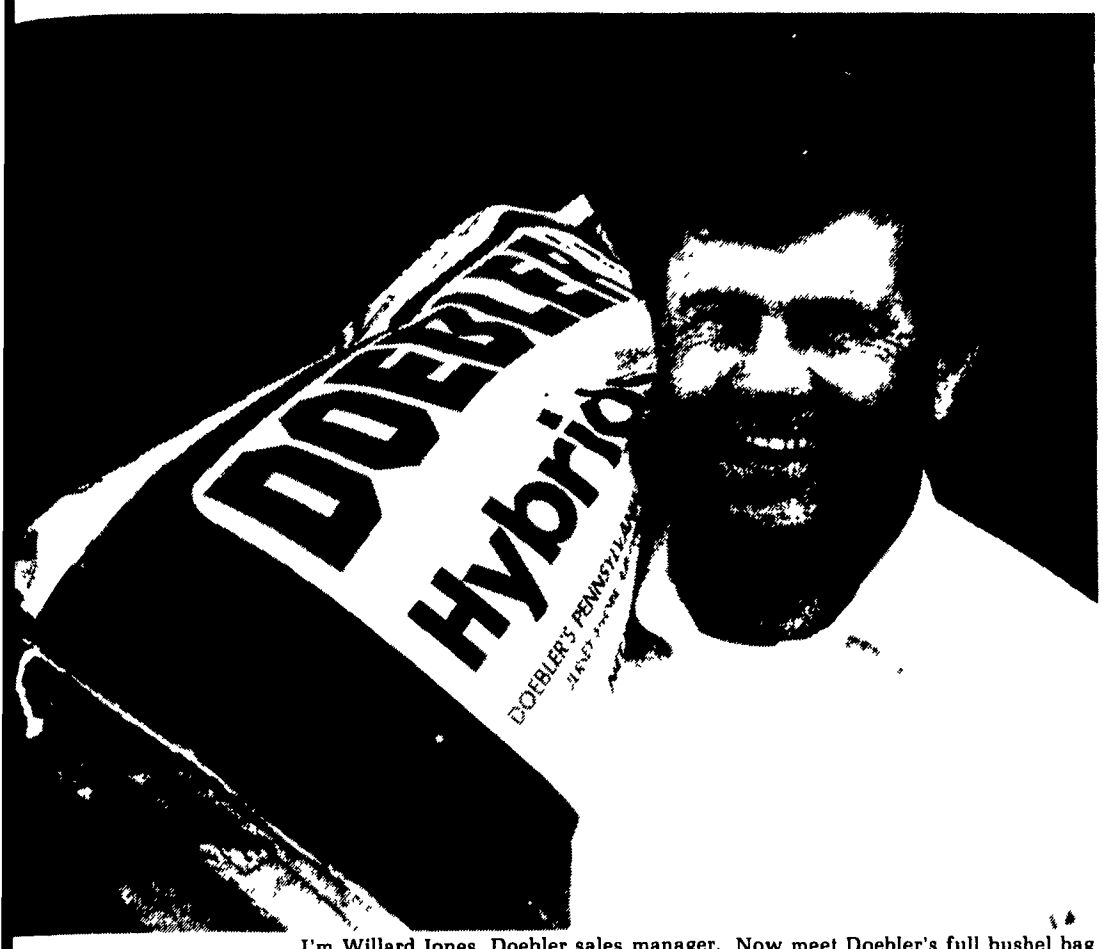
DOEBLER'S DOING IT.



I'm Willard Jones, Doebler sales manager. Now meet Doebler's full bushel bag

DOEBLER 65X, 103 days. Chop or ombine. Looking great at Cornell, Penn tate, everywhere. 166.5 bushel average last ear in 52 farm trials. Super stander. Good isease resistance.

DOEBLER 48X, 90 days. Big producer Penn State and Cornell trials. And on area rms. Medium height. Excellent stander. opped 156 bu. average last year in 13 rm trials.

DOEBLER 48X-E, 87 days. Quicker dry down than 48X. Same great stalks. And what a sheller. 150.8 bu. average last year in 13 tests, 159 bu. at Perry, NY, 157.9 bu. at Jersey Shore, PA.

DOEBLER 370A-3, 85 days. Another modern three way. Go two ways with this one. Fill silo, pick rest. Good standup. Healthy plant. Large ears. Averaged 151.9 bu. in 13 trials last year.

Farmers Encouraged To Obtain Pesticide Certification

EAST PETERSBURG – Area farmers who apply their own pesticides will benefit from attending a pesticide application training meeting and getting a state certification to use restricted products, according to Jim Bowersox, sales manager of Chemgro Fertilizer Company in East Petersburg.

"More and more, some of the most popular and effective pesticides available today are being classified 'Restricted Use'," Bowersox says. "If area farmers want to preserve their right to choose and use all available pesticides, they need to become certified."

Besides protecting a farmer's right to use the pesticides of his choice, Bowersox observes, certification makes good business sense.

"Certification can help farmers get more for their chemical dollar," the dealer emphasizes. "For example, studies show that poor mixing or calibration can cost $10 or more per acre. Certification helps fine-tune mixing, calibration and application skills. That means better control of weeds, insects and diseases. And it can mean more profits."

Equally important, the farm chemical expert says, certification training provides a valuable update on changes in pesticide laws and regulations.

"Beyond business considerations, however, certification is the responsible thing to do," the dealer continues. "It demonstrates a professional attitude toward the responsible use of farm chemicals. And by increasing awareness of safety procedures, it helps farmers take those steps necessary to protect themselves, their families and their farms.

"The Extension Service and the State Department of Agriculture have designed a program that meets U.S. Environmental Protection Agency requirements, yet is easy to understand for any farmer with pesticide experience," the weed specialist concludes.

Pesticide applicator training is offered on a regular basis by the extension service on a county or regional basis. Dates and places for the course are available by contacting the county extension office.

Loan Period On '86 Crop Honey Extended

YORK – The U.S. Department of Agriculture recently extended the deadline to March 31 for producers to apply for Commodity Credit Corporation loans on 1986-crop honey, according to Milton Hertz, Administrator of USDA's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. The application period had expired January 31.

The cut-off date will remain March 31 for future crops of honey, according to Hertz.

The two-month extension will benefit producers, cooperatives and the federal government, because it will give producers more time to obtain benefits under the new loan repayment program, commonly known as the honey buy-back.

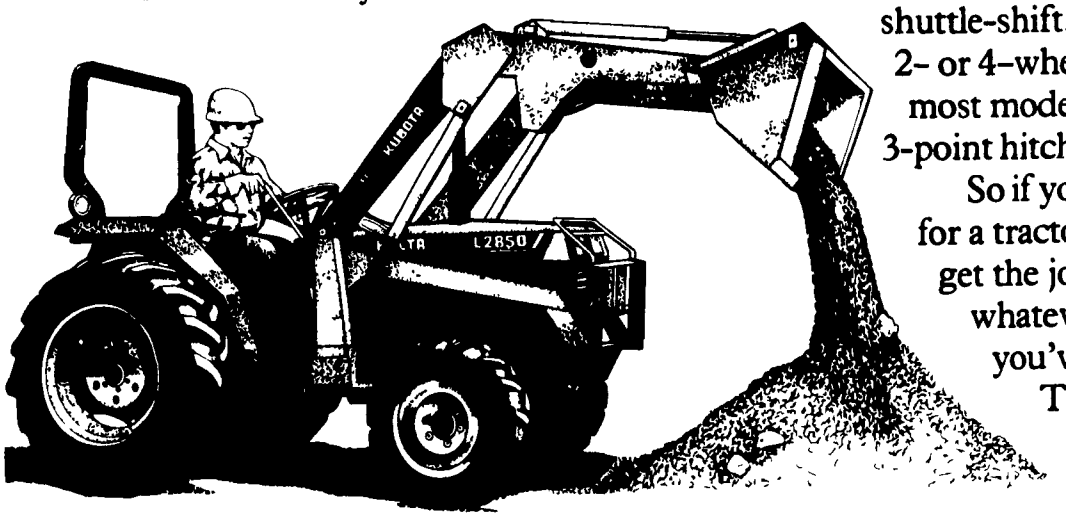
THEY HOLD DOWN MORE THAN ONE JOB.

Kubota's mid-sized tractors are very versatile. You'll find them at work on farms, in parks, nurseries, estate homes and even on construction sites.

The reason is simple. Our L-Series tractors come with features you'd expect to find only on bigger, heavier machines. For example, 3-, 4-, or 5-cylinder diesel engines with PTO horsepower from 21 to 40.

Other features you can select include 8x7 or 8x8 mechanical or hydraulic shuttle-shift. A choice of 2- or 4-wheel drive on most models. A hefty 3-point hitch. And more.



So if you're looking for a tractor that can get the job done, whatever it is, you've found it. The Kubota L-Series.

Good Management Essential To Successful Swine AI Program

BY RICHARD BARCZEWSKI
University of Delaware

NEWARK, Del. — Artificial insemination in swine enables a pork producer to use superior genetics in his herd by reducing the number of boars needed, thus freeing resources to purchase fewer but superior boars. In addition, A.I. can reduce the risk of disease by allowing for a closed herd or by limiting the number of outside animals that need to be brought into the herd.

To take advantage of A.I., you must be a very good manager. Perhaps the single most important factor in achieving maximum conception rates with A.I. is heat detection. High conception rates with A.I. depend upon breeding at the proper time.

Inseminating should be done every day the sow or gilt stands to be mounted if heat detection is done once a day. With twice-a-day heat detection (12 hours apart), it's best to inseminate 12 to 24 hours after the onset of heat.

One drawback to A.I. in swine is the need to train a boar for semen collection. Just as with natural breeding, some boars are shy and won't work. However, most boars can be trained with patience to mount a dummy sow and allow collection.

Collection equipment should be sterile and never cleaned with soap or detergents. Containers used to hold semen during collection must be insulated and warm. Large variations in temperatures can damage sperm cells and result in lower conception rates.

Boars can usually be collected two to five times per week. The average ejaculate contains 150-200 milliliters of gel-free semen containing 200 to 300 million sperm cells per milliliter.

Following collection, semen should be evaluated at least occasionally using a microscope to determine the sperm concentration, motility of the sperm cells and percent of normal and abnormal sperm cells. Even though this is not essential in making A.I. work, it provides a better basis for evaluating the fertility of a given boar.

The average ejaculate contains enough sperm cells to successfully inseminate six to eight females. It's best to use the semen as soon as possible after collection for maximum fertility. A rule of thumb is to use a minimum of 2 billion sperm cells in a minimum of 50 milliliters of fluid volume per sow.

Extending the semen with an approved extender can increase the volume of the ejaculate and, with certain extenders, increase the shelf life of the semen.

Inseminations are accomplished with a spirette and a plastic bottle containing the dose of semen to be used. Even though A.I. in cattle is usually done by a skilled technician, with swine one or two demonstrations are usually enough to teach someone to be a successful inseminator.

There has been some interest in using frozen semen or swine, but this usually results in a 10 to 20 percent reduction in conception rate compared to fresh extended semen. Fresh extended semen is available, however, through several Midwest distributors and can be delivered within one day of collection.

Artificial insemination in swine is definitely not for everyone. Before deciding to use A.I. you must be willing to invest the extra time in heat detection, boar training, semen collection and extending. In return you can buy fewer high quality boars to use in your herd, thus reducing the disease risks associated with introducing extra boars. If you buy semen, you can eliminate boar training and collection for the price of the semen, which can be shipped just about anywhere in the U.S.

If you are interested in using A.I. for your sow herd and would like additional information, consult PIH-64 in your Pork Industry Handbook.

Dairy Nutritionist Talks About Feeding Practices

BY EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

Dr. Timothy Snyder was recently named the manager of Dairy Nutrition at Pennfield Corp. We asked Dr. Snyder about some of the feeding problems he finds amoung local dairymen and his thoughts on future feeding practices. Here are our questions and Dr. Snyder's answers.

Q. Give a little background of your education and experience.

A. A dairy farm in Schuylkill County is where I was raised. My Father, uncle and brother currently own that farm. They're milking about 80 registered holsteins with a mid 18,000 per lb. herd average. I attended Delaware Valley College as an undergraduate for four years, 1971 to 1975. Between undergraduate school and my masters degree at Virginia Tech, I worked at the cooperative research farms facility in New York. Then I received my masters degree at Virginia Tech, 1975 to 1977. I spent several months in west Germany on a dairy farm after that. Traveled a little bit, worked on the farm, saw a different type of dairy farming over there. After that I took a job with the North Carolina Extension Service. I worked down there for two years, 1977 to 1979. I worked as a cross county or two county dairy extension agent specializing in dairy and forages. After that I went back to Penn State and got a PhD in dairy science emphasizing nutrition, research work primarily in buffers but also how buffers influence rate of passage. I did some studies on rate of passage of feed through the digestive system. Then I worked with Southern States Cooperative for a little over four years in Richmond, Virginia, covering five states, in the last year, six states including North Carolina, which was added to the southern states territory. I did that from 1982 to late 1986.

Q. Now you are a dairy nutritionist?

A. Yes. Similar job to what I had been with Southern States.

Q. What does a dairy nutritionist do?

A. I break my time down into a couple of areas. One of them staying abreasst of researh. Communicating with researchers, communicating with Extension people. Finding out what's happening, what's working, what's not. Taking that information and using it two ways. First, taking that information and transfering it to our sales people so that they are kept up to date. One of the challenges is to take technical material and make it available to the laymen. So that's one of the rules to continue to keep our sales force up to date. Also to communicate with farmers with the toll-free numbers and such, deal directly with farmers. Another area that I use the research information is to formulate feeds and spend a fair amount of time putting into practice the different concepts. Another area is to get out on farms so I get it from both sides. Both from the theoritical and the experimental then from the farm. Also to find out what's working in the area. I also do some work in terms of assisting with lab oversight. Not directly responsible for lab oversight, but as new procedures become available that might give us more information to balance rations or put feeds together. We might implement the new lab procedures so that we can test forages more appropriately, more completely. Also involved in this sharing of information. As the oversight of the computerized total ration program or ration balancing program for developing feeding programs for on-farm use.

Q. As you get around the territory, what are some major nutritional deficiencies you are seeing?

A. That ties into some of the things that we talked about at the Lancaster Dairy School. The thing that I've been talking about more recently, and in this area, is to make sure that what we as a nutritionist or as a feed representative are telling the farmer to feed actually gets to the cow. That's one of the areas where you would take all of the information we collected, the best knowledge we could put our hands on, distill it into a feeding program recommendation then hand that piece of paper to the farmer. It is up to the farmer then to make sure that when the cow is supposed to get 40 pounds of corn silage that they are offered at least 40 pounds and probably 45 because some of it might get wasted and some of it might not be used as well. When you say to feed them 16 pounds of a complete feed, that they are getting 16 pounds. That's one of the challenges we find the farmers don't know or they estimate or they think that's what they're feeding or that's what they used to feed the last time they checked years ago. So making sure that the balanced ration is delivered to the cow. Make sure that you are not wasting some, feeding a large round bale and part of it is pulled away. You're feeding hay into the bunk and the cow throws it over her back. You have to count in these factors that 15 percent waste and in fact the cow actually consumes what you predicted. You don't know. It is just one less piece of information that you have in order to fine tune your feeding program.

A couple of thoughts on feeding management. I've broken down, into two areas. One would be more directly to nutrition and the other to feed management. Feed management would involve, to a great degree, the farmers roll in this. The nutritionist, the feed company representative is important in terms of making suggested improvements. But it really gets down to the farmers roll and what he is able to do on the farm as well as making sure he is first delivering enough then making sure they are consuming it and not wasting it. That's one area. Feed sequence and frequency is another area that needs to receive some attention. Feed more frequently to the higher producing cows. Feed in the right sequence if you're feeding individually rather than in a total mixed ration. Feeding the long forage first causes the cow to chew. Then following that with an energy source. Provide energy to the bacteria. Because the cow had already chewed, she has produced buffer and saliva. The energy source when it ferments doesn't depress the ph in the rumin as dramatically. So you kind of moderate the rumin ph by feeding the long forage first. Then feeding the protein concentrate because the bacteria need to have the energy to use the protein. So thinking about the sequence, then feeding that sequence maybe more frequently. If you've only been doing it twice a day, do it three times a day, particularly for the high producers. You see responses on herds also when they take some of those steps.

Q. Do you think that the average dairyman, that you see anyway, really is getting all of the production out of his cows that's genetically in them?

A. We work with quite a number of good farmers. Pennfield has a very good number of high-producing herds. You may have heard Don Mahlodt mention that. The good farmers are still not reaching the genetic potential of their cows. Even the 20,000 pound herd average, I think the genetic potential is greater than that. We do have a good proportion of people that are doing a good job. There is another group of farmers that Pennfield would like to, I'm sure, were interested in serving or going to increase efforts toward serving the farmers that have the 16,000

That's important because researchers have found that prolonged use of one class of insecticide may cause decreased effectiveness against rootworms.

For another thing, BROOT brand trimethacarb is the only insecticide in its class that doesn't carry a restricted use label.

pound herd averages that really could also come up to 20,000 pound herd average. Probably the 20,000 pound herd average person is going to come up as they always do to 22,000 and 24,000 pound herd average. There are a lot of steps that can be taken to continue to help the fellow at 16,000, 18,000 pound rank. Those things can be implemented fairly quickly. You can see some pretty quick rises, with the available information we have now, pretty quick increases in production from 16,000 to 18,000, 19,000 by doing some feeding management things. Assuming that there isn't some other weak link on the farm. Assuming that there isn't some reproductive mismanagement or mastitis, stray voltage or water problems, you can make some changes pretty quickly to bring it from 16,000 to 18,000, 19,000. Then when you go from 19,000 to 20,000, it becomes more difficult. From 20,000 to 22,000, it becomes ever more difficult. There certainly is potential of cows that were not meeting. Part of that is because of nutrition. There are some things the farmers do nutritionally and nutrition management wise that limit that to the two things we talked about--not delivering enough, not feeding in the right sequence. Some of the other things are noted here also. Forage quality is a limiting factor on a lot of farms. The farmer has to be aware that you can't produce high amounts of milk starting from a low quality forage base. There is only so much that you can add in terms of energy density. From grains even from fat, there is only so much you can add before you begin to mess up the rumin fermentation. High levels can do that, high amounts of corn and grain will cause a specific condition. So there is a limit to the amount that you can improve something. Start from a high forage quality base so that it translates into more production. That's a key area to emphasize. It's something that we do at Pennfield. We emphasize the importance of high-quality forages. You can see that in the herds we deal with. You can track the forage energy level. And track milk production almost.

Q. The way we feed cows now and the way we fed them 25 years ago, what changes have we seen? Where are we? We are still feeding them hay, silage and grain.

A. Yes. I would hope that we've made progress in terms of better and better silage. You don't see a whole lot of changes in silage. There have been a trend toward higher grain content in silage, lower fiber, more energy in silage. I'm quite hopeful across the board hay qualities have improved. We're talking about higher energy hays. I can think about when I was growing up on the farm. We were fortunate in that we would make straight alfalfa stands and had an artificial dryer system and put up high quality hay at that point. I remember many of the extension people talking about, Dick Adams term was patriotic hay, made after the fourth of July. They let it get too mature. Hopefully we continue to tell that message. That we've improved the forages. The other obvious thing is that there is a lot more grain being fed. And in more recent years more increase in fat feeding. There has also been an emphasis on protein balance. The limit is coming on how much grain can be fed. The time when you could simply feed another couple of pounds of corn, high moisture corn, dry corn, whatever and expect production to increase is gone.

Q. Let's talk a little bit about somatotropin. Where do you see this coming to and from?

A. There sure is a lot of interest in that for something that still is apparently a couple years down the road. I guess the reason is everybody saw the numbers of 40 percent increase and thought we don't need milk at this time. I am maybe biased because I come from a research technical orientation. I think if were to stop progress, the future would not look bright. Progress is necessary. Sometimes it has its pitfalls. I would consider that progress.

I had this discussion with the farmer across the table yesterday. He was pretty much against it. "The government's got to find a way to stop this from coming to market," he said. I don't really agree with that. I think that the free market ought to operate. If it allows you to produce milk more effectively, efficiently, at better cost, the free market ought to operate. That's a personal bias. That's not speaking for Pennfield. I'm, first of all, skeptical whether you're going to see that 40 percent increase in milk production. Secondly, the good farmers will do well with it. The poor farmers will probably mess up the herd and either get off it or go out of business. I compare it to three-time-a-day milking. You can get 15 percent increase in production with three-time-a-day milkings. Some farmers tried it. Cows had more mastitis problems. They weren't able to manage that additional stress on the animal and went away from it. They didn't necessarily go out of business but still competed otherwise. I don't think that everyone who doesn't use growth hormone is necessarily going to have to go out of business. You'll have to continue to be an efficient producer. Some people I think will use it and improve their situation. Some people won't. I'm hopeful what happens is that we market more milk. First of all that there are more sales of milk if we have more milk produced. And in fact we should try to continue to emphasize that area. And if we don't, if we're not able to increase sales of milk, I would hope that there'd be at some point in the future a consensus that, "Well, I'm going to produce about the same amount of milk and milk fewer cows." That's always a hard thing to get farmers to agree on. That's the way I would like to see it done. Most farmers would rather milk 40 percent fewer cows and have each cow give 40 percent more milk. But you can't get everybody to agree on that.

Dairy Herd Health Programs Yield Return Of $20 To $1

SCHAUMBURG, Ill. – A regular monthly herd health program supervised by a veterinarian will increase the dairy producer's annual income from a 100-cow herd by $35,000 at a cost of only $1,700, yielding a return of more than $20 for every $1 invested in veterinary services, according to studies conducted by Jenks Swann Britt, DVM.

"It's pretty near impossible to find an investment that yields a return of 20 to 1. As a practical matter, there is no better investment today's hard-pressed dairyman can make," Britt said in reporting his herd health research to the American Veterinary Medical Association.

Britt's studies confirm results reported in studies of the influence of veterinary services on the profitability of dairy operations conducted by the Idaho Veterinary Medical Association and the Minnesota Veterinary Medical Association.

Britt used a model cow herd to calculate the amount of increased income that is generated by a program consisting of mastitis control, reproductive health management, improved calf raising, increased feed efficiency and parasite control Total increased income was $36,540, a figure that came remarkably close to the average increased income of $34,716 recorded in a parallel study of the actual records of 18 dairy herds.

Here is how Britt's herd health management program increases the dairy producer's income, using a milk price of $12 per hundredweight, slightly less than current prices, and presuming each cow has a 60-day dry period each year:

Mastitis Control:

• Reduce somatic cell count in a year from 700,000 to as low as 350,000, resulting in an increase of 5 pounds daily in milk production;

• 5 pounds x 305 days x $.12/lb. x 100 cows = $18,300.

• According to the Idaho study, mastitis control alone will produce a return to the dairy producer of $11 for every $1 invested in veterinary services.

Reproductive Health:

• Reduce calving interval by 14 days, saving $1.50 per day;

14 days x $1.50 x 100 cows = $2,100;

• Reduce bull services per conception by .25;

.25 x 100 x $6.00 semen straw = $150;

Total Reproductive Health Savings = $2,250.

Calf Raising:

• Reduce mortality rate from 20 percent to 10 percent;

• Save 5 bull calves @ $70 ($350) and 5 heifer calves @ $200 ($1,000) = $1,350.

Nutrition:

• Use minicomputer analysis to improve feed efficiency;

• Increase milk production by 3 lbs. per cow or produce the same amount of milk on less feed;

• 3 lbs. of milk/day x 305 days x $.12/lb. x 100 cows = $10,900.

Parasite Control:

• Control internal parasites by deworming and external parasites by various methods; adjusted for seasons and conditions;

• Increase milk production by 1 lb./cow/day x 305 days x 100 cows = $3,660

Total Increased Income $36,540.

These numbers are based on a model cow herd assuming a rolling herd average milk production of 11,000 pounds a year, a somatic cell count of 700,000, projected calving interval of 13.5 months, average 2.25 services per conception, 20 percent calf mortality, first-calf heifers at 32 months (can cut to 24-26 months), no professionally balanced nutrition program, and no regular parasite control program.

To test the numbers, Britt studied actual records of 18 herds of similar size. Nine herds were on a regular herd health program, and nine used veterinary services on an emergency call only basis.

The emergency call only herds had average production of 11,770 pounds, and spent an average of $17.06 per cow for veterinary services. The regular herd health program group achieved average production of 14,670 pounds with veterinary expenses averaging $33.74 per cow.

The herds in the regular program paid an additional $16.68 for veterinary services and produced 2,893 pounds more per cow than the emergency call only herds. For a 100 cow herd, increased income was thru $34,716, very close to the total shown in the model study.

"We conducted these studies to prove to ourselves that our program is working. We are not surprised to find that our results are very similar to those reported in Idaho, Minnesota, and elsewhere. These results demonstrate that we are actually in the management business. When veterinary services are used strategically as part of a total management program, dairy producers can significantly increase income," said Britt, who also operates a dairy business.

The Minnesota study points out that scientific advances and increased knowledge of the factors that influence the spread of infectious diseases in dairy cows now make it possible to control diseases that were once commonplace.

"The veterinarian has the unique role of coordinating the biological requirements of the animals with the production requirements of the operators," the Minnesota study explains.

According to the Minnesota report, veterinarians today often spend eight years studying livestock production, diagnosis, treatment and prevention of diseases, nutritional consultation, environmental effects on production (including ventilation and housing), and effective management techniques.

Atlantic Breeders Sales Performance Awards Presented

LANCASTER – Twenty Atlantic Breeders Cooperative sales and service personnel were recently recognized for their outstanding performance during the last six months of 1986. They were presented with special awards and prizes at regional sales meetings by Gary Heckman, Atlantic's Member Sales Director. The program encourages and recognizes achievements which improve service and increase sales volume.

Top sales leaders who received grand prizes were technicians Pat Arnold of Myerstown; Jesse Fleck, Manheim; and Nicholas Brin, Drumore. First prize in direct-herd sales went to Titus Smith of Martinsburg and the leader among area supervisors was David Zimmerman, New Holland. Top unit coordinators were Paul Werner, Mount Joy, and Scott Osborne, Peach Bottom.

In the sales performance categories, Arnold was first in new and reactivated members, Fleck led in first service increase and Linear-Mate usage, and Brin had the highest semen sales increase. Brian Martin, Narvon, was first in average semen fee and Alfred Goldinger, Kittanning, had the highest sampler sire index.

In direct-herd sales categories, Smith was first in semen sales increase and new and reactivated members, while J. Douglas Marsh, Harleysville, was the leader in blend price.

Among area supervisors, Zimmerman topped the list for first service increase, semen sales, average fee, Linear-Mate, and sampler sire usage. Willis Ritchey, East Petersburg, was first in new and reactivated members.

Also finishing among the top 10 Atlantic technicians in total sales performance were Jeffrey Sherman, East Earl; Vince Arnold, Kutztown; John Williams, Hadley; Brian Martin, Narvon; Ted Leofsky, Coatesville; Jim London, Punxsutawney; and Richard Smith, Honey Brook.

Harold Smithers, Titusville, was second-highest in direct-herd sales, and Clair Miller, Mount Joy, was third. Ritchey was second among area supervisors, followed by John Stevenson, Carlisle.

Another six-months performance contest is underway throughout Atlantic's service and sales territory.

PMMB Enters Electronic Age

HARRISBURG – The Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board has entered the electronic era in the testing of milk, according to Chairman J. Robert Derry.

"On February 28, new regulations went into effect that establish the procedures and standards to insure the proper use of electronic equipment in testing milk for fat content," according to Derry. "In recent years the testing of milk for fat content, in order to determine the price to be paid to the farmer for his product, has shifted from the 'Babcock Method' and other manual methods to the more sophisticated electronic methods," he added.

The regulations define acceptable electronic testing methods and consequently insure that accurate measurements are being obtained so farmers are properly paid for their milk.

The new regulations also specify and outline the specific instructions for the use of electronic equipment and other necessary components, testing techniques to be used, and equipment maintenance and record keeping procedures.

Kempton Local Sets Meeting

SOUTHAMPTON – The Kempton Local of Atlantic Dairy Cooperative District 1 will hold its annual dinner meeting March 24 at 7 p.m. at the Virginville Grange Hall.

James R. Barnett, Atlantic's member relations manager, will be the guest speaker. Barnett will give an update on cooperative business and member activities.

The business meeting will be conducted by Penrose Hallowell, District 1 director, and Ronald L. O'Neil, Kempton Local president.

Klenzade, MMI Contribute To FFA, 4-H Funds

STRONGSVILLE, Ohio — The Future Farmers of America and the 4-H organizations in an eight-state area are nearly $1,600 richer, thanks to the efforts of dairy producer members of Milk Marketing Inc. and Klenzade, Division of Ecolab Inc., St. Paul, Minn.

Klenzade, marketers of an entire line of dairy cow care and sanitation products, joined forces with MMI, an 8,000-member cooperative based in Strongsville, Ohio, in a three-month campaign late in 1986 to raise money for the two farm youth organizations.

The campaign consisted of a dollar contribution by Klenzade for each purchase of four Klenzade products sold through MMI to its cooperative members. These products included MMI Teat Guard, MMI Low Foam Acid, MMI Liquid Pipeline Cleaner and MMI Bac Drop.

A check for $1,585 was recently presented by Klenzade Vice President and General Manager Richard Rintelmann to MMI General Manager Gordon Riehl. The money will be contributed to the state FFA and 4-H state federations within the MMI operating area.

"This contribution is just a step in aiding the FFA and 4-H units that do so much for young people interested in agriculture," says Rintelmann of Klenzade. "Keeping these two organizations financially healthy — and our young people involved in agriculture — helps all of us in the long run."

Also on hand for the presentation were Scott Sooy, State FFA Vice President from Grafton, Ohio, and Robin Staron, member of the 4-H Club of Grafton.

J. Gordon Riehl, (right) MMI general manager, presents a check for $1,600 to Robin Staron and Scott Soy, representing the 4-H and FFA organizations in an eight-state area. MMI joined with Klenzade, represented by Richard Rintelmann, in the fund-raising venture.

8344 JUST TOOK ITS PLACE.

Your old favorite used to be on top of the world. Now it's our turn.

8344 stands alone as the best all-round hybrid in its maturity.

For starters, 8344 has stalks and roots that are at least 30% better than the former leader in its maturity. And they're running neck-and-neck for top yield honors.

Compared to everything else, 8344 dominates the yield trials. It consistently tops the charts for agronomics and disease resistance, too.

And 8344 loves a challenge. It even outyields the best competitors under tough drought and stress conditions. That's why we call it "44 Magnum."

Oil Sprays No Longer Damage Plants

NEWARK, Del. – Today horticultural oil sprays can be used to control plant pests during both the dormant season and the growing season without plant damage, according to Jeff Daniels, Delaware Cooperative Extension master gardener.

"Oil sprays were first introduced in the early 1900s to control the San Jose scale that was damaging fruit orchards throughout the country," Daniels says. "These oils were heavy and contained many impurities that caused the oil to dry slowly, turning the foliage brown. Therefore oil sprays were used only in the dormant season when leaves were off the trees."

Oil sprays manufactured today are much lighter, dry within an hour or so and contain less impurities, the master gardener says. "They are no more damaging or harmful to most plant foliage than insecticides in petroleum carriers."

Horticultural oil sprays are effective against scales, insects, aphids, mealybugs, red spider mites, white flies and psyllids. The sprays are useful against pests in apple and pear trees and, when used as a leaf polish on the leaves of hardy houseplants, can help suffocate insect eggs. "The oil seems to act as a repellent as well, preventing rapid reinfestation," Daniels says.

The master gardener suggests the most effective time to use horticultural oil would still be in March and early April, before the buds open. Soak the bark of twigs, branches and tree trunks so the oil spray runs off.

"Many oil sprays can be combined with other chemicals to make a winter spray for dormant deciduous fruits, roses and ornamentals," says Daniels. "But you should always check the label for compatibility first."

During the growing season the best time to use oil sprays is June through August. Try to spray near the end of the day when summer temperatures are lower.

To minimize insect damage, Daniels urges gardeners to inspect plants every one to two weeks. Sprays should be applied while the pests are immature and infestations are still localized.

The major producer of horticultural oils on the east coast is Sun Refining and Marketing Company. Sun Company wholesales to distributors who repackage the oil spray under their company brand names. Some of these brand names are Scalecide, Volch Oil Spray and Agway Oil Spray. Most brands sold today are labeled both dormant season and growing season, Daniels says. He reminds gardeners to pay careful attention to the safety directions printed on every pesticide label.

Farm Machinery: Buy Smart When Buying Used

COLLEGE PARK, Md. – This spring's boom of farm auctions is a bonanza for bargain hunters. But buyer, beware. Along with great buys in tractors and machinery, lurk a few lemons. How can you tell the difference?

"Your best defense is careful scrutiny," says Gary L. Smith, an agricultural engineer for The University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service. And according to Smith, that scrutiny starts with "an eyeball appraisal." Used equipment with a good appearance has usually been the beneficiary of regular care. But be suspicious of a fresh paint job, warns Smith. Its only purpose may be to cover up flaws.

If you're strapped for cash and you absolutely must make do with a used planter, only buy one that a dealer has completely renovated. Remember, too, that in the fall you can often delay costly investments in harvesting equipment by hiring custom operators.

In the meantime, here are some tips from Smith on sizing up that second-hand tractor:

- If the tractor does not have a cab, check the gauges near the operator for telltale signs of weather damage. Look for any traces of leaked oil or accumulated dirt on the engine block. Also check the oil in the crankcase for signs of water or anti-freeze. These are both red flags for a cracked block, blown head gasket, or major engine problem.
- Now turn on the tractor engine. Does it start easily? If the tractor has a diesel engine, listen for the distinct "diesel knock" as the engine warms up. If you don't hear it, the engine may be plagued by low compression.
- While the engine is still cold, engage the hydraulic system. If it doesn't operate smoothly, you may be buying a tractor with hydraulic pump or valve problems.
- If possible, drive the tractor and shift the gears. Test the torque and transmission.
- Finally, take a good look at the tires. Replacements are expensive.

Families Can Defuse Stress In Healthy Ways

Family stress is inevitable but not insurmountable. According to a recent edition of "Reader's Digest," by following these five tips families can face today's high-pressure world without coming apart at the seams:

1. Healthy families talk openly about money. Money is the leading family stress. When couples disagree over how money is to be spent, the hidden issue is power — who has the right to decide and why. That's the reason some couples avoid discussing money — they don't want to address the risky issue of balance of power and self-esteem in their relationship. Couples who talk openly about loans, investing, credit cards and children's allowances realize that collaborating on decisions — and occasionally arguing — is better than allowing money pressures to explode later.

2. Healthy families make time for everyone in the family. Healthy families view time as a controllable resource and set priorities and budget time for family activities. Families that get into the habit of play often find that, rather than losing their adolescents to questionable outside activities, their kids bring friends home. Happiest are the children who know that their parents are accessible to them at any time, however, not just during play periods.

3. Healthy families maintain parental authority — and flexibility. Effective couples listen to their children's wishes, complaints and feelings, and make decisions on what they believe is best for their child — and they don't abdicate when society or children object. Stress-effective parents state expectations and explain rules clearly and reasonably. But parents must be able to bend without threatening their rules. And as their children mature, the kids should be allowed a voice in rules and consequences.

4. Healthy families communicate feelings — not just words. Whenever a stress threatens, talk about it. Whether it is a question of a child misbehaving or a disagreement between husband and wife, The Talk can work wonders.

5. Healthy families divvy up household responsibilities. Lack of shared responsibility in the home was named as the second-highest stress by married women, especially when both parents work. A home should be a cooperative effort, not just the mother's responsibility. And when Dad helps, the kids tend to help more agreeably and become more resourceful.

Dauphin Co. Seeks Donations For Ag Center Auction

DAUPHIN — "Construction of the Dauphin County Agriculture and Natural Resources Center will start in late August or early September of 1987," according to Richard Hann, chairman of the Fund Raising Committee for the center.

The meeting and office complex will be conveniently located to meet the needs of people interested in agriculture and natural resource conservation throughout Dauphin County. The 6.5 acre site, located at the intersection of routes 325 and 225, north of the Borough of Dauphin, is being donated by a local conservationist.

The Center will be available to be used by farm and natural resource organizations, and for workshops, seminars, and training programs related to agriculture and conservation programs. Offices to be located at the Center include the Dauphin County Conservation District, Cooperative Extension Service, and USDA Soil Conservation Service and the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

According to Merv Adams, a major fund raising effort for the center is the Third Annual Ag Center Consignment Auction. The auction will be held Saturday, April 4, 9 a.m., at the Gratz Fairgrounds, Gratz. All of the items being auctioned will be donated or consigned.

Anyone interested in donating or consigning farm equipment, tools, household goods or other items should contact Merv Adams (692-3076), Jim Lesher (365-3419) or the Dauphin County Conservation District (558-1090). An assortment of flower bulbs and hanging baskets for spring planting will be available for direct purchase at the auction.

Hann explained that the fund raising effort is ongoing and will continue once the center is constructed. This will be necessary to help repay the debt that will be incurred. Any person or business interested in donating to the Center should contact the Dauphin County Conservation District, 1205 South 28th Street, Harrisburg, PA 17111-1095, telephone - 558-1090.

Youth Representative Started With An Old Gray Goat

BY CRAIG BINGMAN
Snyder County Correspondent

PORT ROYAL — For the past nine months, Glenda Hockenberry has been doing an excellent job of promoting the dairy goat industry in Pennsylvania. The 17-year-old 1986-87 Youth Representative of the Pennsylvania Dairy Goat Association has traveled to numerous events within the state including Clinton County Fair, Lebanon Valley Mall, Monroe County, Shippensburg, Allentown, Farm Show, and soon Indiana.

An application in the Keystone Dairy Goat News initially attracted the Juniata High School senior to apply for the honor. Based on accomplishments in the dairy goat industry and oral interviews, Glenda was chosen and crowned Youth Representative at last year's Big Weekend at the Huntingdon Fair Grounds on June 14.

The daughter of Glenn and Edna Hockenberry of RD 1, Port Royal in Juniata County, Glenda takes care of the family's 25 goats, which includes six Saanans and 19 LaManchas. All the animals are purebred or registered grade. In addition to the 25 goats at the Hockenberry farm, there are four horses, four polled herefords, and a market lamb.

"By June we should be milking 12 goats," Glenda said. "We usually milk at 5 a.m. and 5 p.m. everyday by hand." In the next week the Hockenberrys plan to enroll in the Dairy Herd Improvement Record. Glenda now estimates her goat production at six pounds per day per goat.

Hockenberry is proud of the fact that their goat's milk goes to a very good public market. A local doctor started 10 babies on their product who couldn't tolerate the lactose in whole milk or formula. Every baby responded well to her goat's product.

The Hockenberry farm, also known as Hillie Acres, includes 28 acres of hay and corn. The whole family is involved in the farm operation including brother Jason, 15.

Though the story of goats eating tin cans may be a bit exaggerated, goats are actually finicky eaters. Glenda supplies her goats a diet of 16 percent dairy pellets along with hay and water.

"You have to change hay every so often. Goats are very fussy eaters, but they are very inquisitive and will eat flowers and chew on clothes," adds Glenda.

Glenda's interest in goats started in 1979 when her father brought home an old gray goat.

"My mom did not want goats," she chuckled. The gray goat had triplets that same night and my mom was hooked. That same goat went on to have three, four, five, four, and two kids respectively. And she never lost one of her kids."

Glenda's activities in school include: Future Homemakers, Model Rocketry Club, Yearbook Staff, and the class play. 4-H activities include Juniata Sheep Club, Kiddin-around Dairy Goat Club, Teen Council, as well as the Pennsylvania Dairy Goat Association. She has earned a variety of awards at shows.

In 1983, she won the Blue Mountain Reserve Junior Champion Buck and the PDGA Show Junior Champion Doe. She won the Shippensburg Reserve Grand Champion Grade in 1985 and more recently the Grand Champion Saanan of 1986 from the American Dairy Goat Association.

Asked about the future of the dairy goat industry, Glenda answers optimistically. "It's growing

Thirteen PA Congressmen Recognized

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Thirteen of Pennsylvania's twenty-five member delegation to the U.S. Senate and House of Representatives were presented with "Certificates of Award" by Pennsylvania Farmers Union Executive Director Chester L. Reed. Reed and several other PFU members were in Washington, D.C. early this month for the press conference held by Senator Tom Harkin and Congressman Richard Gephardt on their "Save the Family Farm Act."

"The purpose of the certificates was to formally recognize those men who had voting records of 80% or better on issues of importance to family farmers that arose during the second session of the 99th Congress," Reed said.

"Voting records are kept when Farmers Union contracts Congress to explain our views on a particular issue," Reed explained.

The thirteen recipients were: Senator Arlen Specter; Rep. Thomas M. Foglietta, 1st District; Rep. William H. Gray, III, 2nd District; Rep. Robert Borski, 3rd District; Rep. Joseph P. Kolter, 4th District; Rep. Gus Yatron, 6th District; Rep. Bob Edgar, formerly of the 7th District; Rep. Paul E. Kanjorski, 11th District; Rep. John P. Murtha, 12th District; Rep. William J. Coyne, 14th District; Rep. Doug Walgren, 18th District; Rep. Joseph M. Gaydos, 20th District, and Rep. Austin J. Murphy, 22nd District.

The twelve issues used in compiling the voting records were reported in full in the October 17, 1986 edition of National Farmers Union's "Washington Newsletter" (vol. 33, #12). They ranged from changes in the 1985 Farm Bill to allow a 12-cent per hundredweight milk assessment instead of a 50-cent per hundredweight Gramm-Rudman support price drop, to the Omnibus Trade Bill which included limits on casein imports, to an attempt to end further trading in live cattle by December of 1987.

"We find it very significant that so many of these Congressmen are not from rural areas," Reed said, "Urban and suburban support of family farms is essential during these times of economic stress in agriculture."

nicely," she said. "We're trying to get a better name for the goat industry."

Glenda's future plans are a six-year enlistment with the U.S. Air Force. In July, she leaves for Lackland Air Force Base in Texas. She hopes to take advanced training in security.

This June, Glenda will pass on her title of Youth Representative at the Big Weekend Show of the Pennsylvania Dairy Goat Association in Huntingdon, where over 200 exhibitors from Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey and Virginia meet for the state's largest goat show.

With the enthusiasm and ambitions that Glenda Hockenberry has shown as Youth Representative of the Pennsylvania Dairy Goat Association, it's a sure bet that the goat milk industry is developing a better name.

New Staff Member Appointed To Albany Post

SYRACUSE, N.Y. – Brian Ward, executive vice president of the American Dairy Association and Dairy Council has announced the appointment of Nick Murphy to the ADADC's consumer promotion department.

As a dairy marketing specialist, Murphy will assist dairy managers from area supermarkets and convenience stores with dairy product advertising and promotion. He will also represent the ADADC at trade shows, conventions, and training seminars throughout the Empire State.

A graduate of Hudson Valley Community College majoring in marketing, Murphy comes to the ADADC from Big "V" Shop Rite in Albany where he has worked for the past nine years.

Murphy resides in Colonie with his wife and two children. He will be based at the ADADC's Albany area office.

ASANA. BREAKING PERFORMANCE BARRIERS IN CUTWORM CONTROL.

Applied as a preventive treatment (PPI or PE) on corn fields having a history of cutworm problems. ASANA insecticide kills cutworms at a lower cost per acre than Lorsban 15G*. Preventive treatments should also be considered for fields especially attractive to cutworm moths for egg-laying, such as bottomlands, wet, weedy and no-till fields. ASANA can be tank mixed with most herbicides for cost-saving, one pass weed-and-insect control. More active than Pounce* or Ambush* ASANA allows lower use rates (1 gal. treats 63 acres for normal infestations). New tip-N-measure* containers help reduce waste.

Applied as a rescue treatment where cutworms are an occasional threat, ASANA saves money because you treat only if insects are a problem. Its staying power and washoff resistance give lasting control to save costly resprays. And ASANA controls other corn pests, including armyworms and stalk borers, so it could be the only insect protection you need. ASANA is backed by a Performance Agreement that assures commercially acceptable control. Your participating dealer can tell you more.

Researchers Develop New Propagation Technique For Trees, Shrubs

ITHACA, N.Y. – Cornell University researchers have developed a new technique that makes it possible to propagate many kinds of plants and shrubs that cannot be reproduced with existing methods.

"As a result of our technique, many more types of plants with superior characteristics could become available to consumers," said Nina L. Bassuk, an associate professor of horticultural physiology in the New York State College of Agriculture and Life Sciences at Cornell. She developed the new technique with graduate student Brian K. Maynard.

Plants are now propagated in several ways. Many types of plants can be grown from seed, but seed-produced plants differ genetically from parent plants. Grafting is another widely used method. Many kinds of dwarf apple trees that now are replacing old, standard trees have been developed through this method.

"Grafting is something similar to an organ transplant," Bassuk said. "One problem with this method is that the stock plant sometimes rejects the graft. In addition, grafting is time-consuming and labor-intensive work, requiring high levels of skill."

Still another practice used for plant propagation involves the rooting of cuttings. Plants produced in this way are genetically identical to parent plants. This method, however, is ineffectual when it comes to propagating some of the plant species which are extremely difficult to root such as oaks, maples, pines and hornbeams.

"There are almost countless plant materials in the wild that are desirable for propagation, but it's nearly impossible to reproduce many of them with existing methods," Bassuk said.

To solve the problem, Cornell researchers tried a new approach. First, a stock plant is grown in the dark by covering the plant with shade cloth. Growing plants in such a way for a period of time is known as etiolation. Seedlings or only some branches of full-grown plants can be made to produce etiolated shoots to be used as cuttings for propagation.

"Plants grown without light produce shoots which, for reasons not well understood, develop roots much more readily than those from light-grown plants," Bassuk said.

New shoots from plants grown in the dark grow to about two to three inches long in a few weeks. At this stage, Cornell researchers take another innovative step. They band the base of the shoot with Velcro, a self-adhesive material made of tiny nylon hooks and eyes.

The plant then is allowed to receive light by removing the shade cloth gradually over a period of one week. Meanwhile, the bandage stays on the shoot for four weeks, keeping the light from reaching the banded portion of the shoot while the top portion of the shoot and its leaves turn green.

As a result, only the banded area remains pale or white for lack of chlorophyll. The shoot then is cut off just below the banded area and is potted for rooting. The banded area then develops a full root system in two to four weeks.

Cornell researchers also found that some plants did not need to be grown in the dark. The banding treatment alone, or blanching, as Bassuk calls it, was effective in coaxing those shoots to develop roots.

Using this blanching technique alone and the combination of etiolation and the banding method, Cornell researchers succeeded in propagating more than 20 plant species and varieties that have the reputation of being almost impossible to reproduce by any other means.

Among plants thus cloned in Cornell trials are paperbark maple, sugar maple, paper birch, several cultivars of European hornbeam, Chinese chestnut, pin oak, English oak, red oak, several lilac varieties, Norway maple, Bradford pear, mugo pine, white pine, Scotch pine, Japanese black pine and Chinese fringe tree.

One advantage of using Velcro for banding is that a plant hormone that promotes root formation can be applied to Velcro before the shoot is banded, Bassuk said. This makes the rooting zone, or the banded area, get off to a fast start.

"Some of Velcro's tiny hooks puncture the tender skin of the shoot, thus enabling the hormone to get into the tissue easily," Bassuk said. "As a result, the banded area often sends out small roots even while the shoot is still attached to the parent plant."

The idea of banding shoots grown in the absence of light has been tried before. Using black plastic electrical tapes as banding materials did not work well because removing the tape often tore the skin of the succulent shoot.

"We found that Velcro works best because it is easy to apply and remove without causing injury to the stem," Bassuk said. "Besides, root-promoting hormones can be applied to the band before the shoot is banded."

In most of Cornell experiments, the combination of etiolation and the Velcro banding resulted in the greatest plant response, Bassuk said.

She pointed out that the technique can be used at any time of the year, outdoors or indoors, to propagate plants with superior characteristics in terms of form, color and resistance to disease and insect pests, among others.

"Our technique works on a whole range of plant species, not just a few," Bassuk said. "That's why it's so exciting."

Because some plants respond well to the blanching treatment alone, Cornell researchers now are trying the method on a wider range of plant species in efforts to make the whole procedure even more simple.

They hope to identify species that work best with the combination of etiolation and banding treatments or with the blanching method alone. In addition, research is continuing to understand physiological factors that make the Cornell technique a highly effective plant propagation method.

MAMMA And Tennis Pro Develop Fitness Booklet

TOWSON, Md. — If you are looking for exercise tips on how to get in shape, World Class Tennis Player, Pam Shriver, has developed an easy to perform exercise routine that almost anyone can do. The exercise routine is published in a booklet called, "Fifteen Minutes To Fitness" and is being offered free of charge from the Advertising and Promotion Agency of the Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Area.

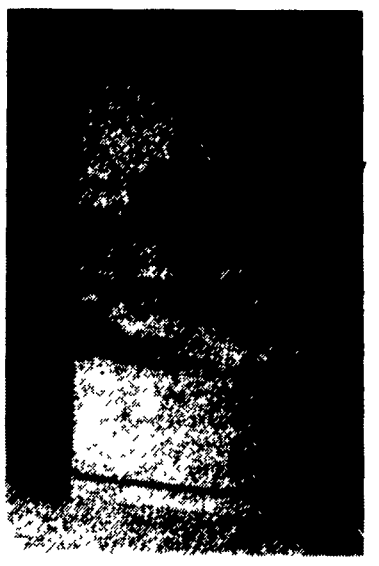
In the booklet Pam demonstrates a series of exercises that make getting in shape or staying in shape easy. The exercises require no special equipment and can be performed at home, in a gym, or even in a hotel room for busy travelers like Pam.

The last exercise in the routine is what Pam calls the, "Sit Down Head Tilt." For this exercise she tells the health enthusiast to lean back in a comfortable chair, slowly drink a tall glass of fresh cold milk and relax. Included on the back page of the booklet are some of Pam's other recipes for fitness — Ham and Swiss Open Face Sandwiches and Cheese-Vegetable Roll Ups.

Colorful, attention getting display bins have been produced to distribute the booklet at the point-of-sale in the dairy aisle of food stores. One million copies of the booklet have been printed.

Over 1,200 food stores will be distributing "Fifteen Minutes To Fitness" beginning in late March.

Copies of the booklets are also being offered free of charge to individuals or groups from MAMMA. To receive a free copy, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to: Fifteen Minutes To Fitness, Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Area, 216 Carroll Building, 8600 LaSalle Road, Towson, MD 21204.



Birdwatching: An American Pastime

Americans are flocking to the woods and fields in record numbers to take part in the fast-growing national pastime of bird watching, a recent issue of "Reader's Digest" reports.

According to the National Audubon Society, there are about 30 million bird watchers in the United States. As part of a multibillion-dollar industry, scores of companies now run "birding" field trips and produce specialized equipment — including computer-graphics displays of bird shapes and markings.

If you are a would-be birder, you only need three basic tools to get your hobby off the ground:

1. Binoculars — Buy the best you can afford. They should have coated lenses — bluish- or metallic-tinted glass — which produce brighter images and reduce unwanted reflections. And generally, the greater the field of view, the easier it is to locate birds. Ideal are 7 x 35 binoculars (magnification power 7; the 35 relates to light-gathering capability).

2. Bird guides — There are two major ways of illustrating bird guides: paintings and photographs. Both are valuable, but the "Audubon Society Field Guide to North American Birds" points out: "A good photograph captures the natural color and stance of birds as you usually see them in their natural setting, making identification that much easier."

3. Recordings of common birds songs — Listening to records such as "Common Bird Songs" helps bird watchers to more easily recognize the calls of various species in the wild.

Female Tobacco Budworms Offer Pest Control Service

WASHINGTON — Female tobacco budworms have been tricked into performing a scientific first — sterilizing all their male descendants. U.S. Department of Agriculture entomologists go their "femme fatales" by mating male budworms (Heliothis virescens) with females of a related, harmless insect (Heliothis subflexa).

The resulting hybrid produces not only sterile sons but female descendants that continually pass on the male sterility trait, said Marion L. Laster of the department's Agricultural Research Service.

He said hybrids could save farmers millions of dollars lost to the crop-damaging budworm, which resists chemicals almost as fast as researchers can create them.

This ability to develop chemical resistance caught farmers in Northeast Mexico and the lower Rio Grande Valley of Texas off-guard in the 1960s and destroyed much of the cotton industry there, said Edgar G. King, Laster's colleague at the Southern Field Crop Insect Management Laboratory in Stoneville, Miss.

Already this pest of cotton, tobacco, tomatoes and other vegetables is showing resistance to the most effective chemicals registered for use against it — the pyrethroids.

"When resistance is widespread, probably in about three years, we expect to be ready with this new genetic control technology," said King.

Laster and King, in cooperation with other agency scientists, tested the new hybrids with a natural budworm population on St. Croix in the U.S. Virgin Islands. Sterility infiltrated the male population there — enough to reduce the number of insects by 75 percent. "A sterile male can keep females busy two of the three nights they're looking to mate — that's a lot of eggs kept unfertilized," King said.

Theoretically, the male sterility could go on indefinitely, Laster said. But in a real situation, yearly release of hybrid females might be necessary, because hybrid insects could migrate away, as normal wild ones come in, possibly even from Mexico or South America.

Using sterile males to control insects isn't new; what is new is that now females do the male sterilization usually done with radiation in a lab. Radiation weakens budworms and makes them poor competitors for female attention, so until now sterile release was impractical for this pest.

Also, first generation hybrid females wouldn't be used, because they are too much like their subflexa cousins to be sexually attractive to males. Scientists cross hybrids with normal budworm males until the females become more "themselves" again; only then are sons and daughters carrying the sterility released into the wild.

Six reasons why more Pennsylvania farmers use Reemay® than any other seedbed cover.

No tobacco seedbed cover gives you more advantages than economical DuPont REEMAY spunbonded polyester. Here's why:

1. Low cost. REEMAY is one of the lowest-cost covers around.
2. Less work. REEMAY is easy to put down. It's just-right weight makes handling easy. It stakes down securely, resists "ballooning" in wind.
3. Low risk. REEMAY is porous. Air and moisture pass freely through, reducing danger of too much heat build-up.
4. Excellent growth and vigor. Tests by a major U.S. school of agriculture show that you get large, hardy plants, because distribution of heat and moisture is even with REEMAY seedbed covers.
5. Maximum number of transplants. The porosity of REEMAY assures uniform wetting, fewer bare spots and even germination throughout the bed.
6. Withstands the elements. REEMAY won't rot, shrink or mildew.

This season, learn why REEMAY seedbed covers outsell all others in Pennsylvania. Order from your Farm Supply Dealer, today.

Avoid Salmonellosis With Proper Precautions

UNIVERSITY PARK — Consumers can protect themselves from salmonellosis, a flu-like disease caused by salmonella organisms in food, by handling foods correctly, says Penn State food scientist Morris Mast.

Salmonella can cause a disease called salmonellosis, one of the most common types of foodborne illnesses. "It is not a new disease," says Mast. "It's probably been around as long as man has been on earth."

The disease can produce flu-like symptoms of fever, diarrhea and vomiting 12 to 36 hours after eating. It can last two to seven days. Infants, the elderly and persons with weakened resistance to infection are most frequently affected by salmonellosis.

Examples of foods that provide a favorable environment for salmonellae to grow include poultry, meats, eggs, dairy products and seafood. The bacteria will grow only if foods are at a temperature between 45 and 115°F.

"But even if salmonellae are present in foods, consumers won't suffer from salmonellosis if they cook and handle the food properly," says Mast. "Commercial pasteurization of milk and liquid eggs destroys the bacteria. Heating other foods, such as meat and poultry, to an internal temperature of 155 degrees will assure their safety."

The second way to control salmonellae is to prevent recontamination. Says Mast, "Recontamination can happen in food-service establishments or in the home if poor personal hygiene is practiced or if the cooked food comes in contact with unclean utensils, equipment or uncooked foods that may harbor salmonella bacteria."

Mast recommends the following guidelines for food handlers and consumers:

- Wash raw foods carefully and thoroughly.
- Wash hands thoroughly after handling raw foods to lessen the possibility of contaminating cooked, ready-to-eat foods or serving utensils.
- Carefully follow label directions on packages for storing, preparing or serving quick-frozen foods. Storage at proper temperatures prevents salmonellae growth — thorough cooking will kill them.
- Do not thaw frozen raw poultry at room temperature. Thaw in the refrigerator or use cool running water.
- Store uncooked foods on the bottom shelf of the refrigerator. Raw foods should not drip onto cooked foods.
- Do not stuff turkeys or chickens the night before cooking.
- After cooking stuffed poultry, and before refrigerating it, remove the stuffing from the bird. This will allow faster cooling and/or reheating.
- Refrigerate leftovers promptly and heat thoroughly before re-serving (gravies should be reheated to "rolling boil"). Freshly cooked foods rarely cause illness.
- Refrigerate all dairy products promptly, including mixtures made from dry base, such as rehydrated powdered milk.
- Before re-using, thoroughly wash with hot water and soap all utensils used for preparing raw poultry, meats, eggs or pastry mixes.
- Make sure perishable foods carried on a picnic are kept cold until eaten. Foods that tend to spoil easily without refrigeration should not be exposed to warmer temperatures for more than half an hour before eating.

Consider Alternatives When Home-grown Forage Runs Short

R. S. Adams,
J. G. Hlubik and
A. J. Heinrichs
Department of Dairy and Animal Science
The Pennsylvania
State University

A number of things should be considered if there is a shortage of home-grown forage on a dairy farm due to drouth or other conditions. Should hay or other forage be purchased, or should forage intakes be kept at a minimum and roughages or high-fiber feedstuffs be used? The economics of the situation, including affects on cash flow and interest charges should receive top priority. In addition, the palatability of the items considered and their suitability for use in your feeding system should be considered.

A minimum amount of normal forage dry matter is needed to keep cows healthy and the composition of their milk reasonably normal. The longer particle-size found in hay, pasture and properly made silage or haylage helps maintain proper rumen function. Normal forages may also be higher in vitamin A and E activity.

At least 40 to 50% of the total dry matter intake should be in the form of normal forages. The lower figure should be used only for periods of about 90 to 120 days. When forage is held to a minimum because of cost and availability, high-fiber concentrate ingredients and some roughages may be needed to maintain the fiber content of the ration. The acid detergent fiber (ADF) content of the ration should be 19% or higher on a dry matter basis. Forage dry matter intakes in conventionally fed herds should be at least 1.35 to 1.55% of bodyweight daily. Heifers over 6 months of age should receive at least 50% of their total ration dry matter from forages. Forage dry matter intake should be at least 1.1% of bodyweight daily.

Dairy farmers should closely estimate the extent to which they may be short of forage. If they will need to buy considerable amounts to meet even minimum needs, forage feeding rates should be reduced to near safe minimum levels as soon as possible. Also they should consider planting emergency forage crops such as small grains, for use in late fall and early spring. Further they should check costs and supplies of various qualities of hay, roughages and high fiber ingredients. Often hay prices may be lower earlier in the season. In addition, it is best to obtain least-cost formulations to keep feed costs at a minimum while meeting the nutritional and physical needs of their herd.

If the supply of home-grown forage is inadequate consider these alternatives and important points as follows.

1. Check prices and availability on several types and qualities of hay. Some relatively low protein and energy hay or straw often may be used to good advantage, if only 4 to 6 lb are needed per head daily for milk cows. Such hay also may be more economical for use in feeding dry cows and heifers. If more purchased hay needs to be fed, average to higher qualities hay should be used for milk cows. Avoid paying unreasonably high panic prices for forages.

2. Protect yourself when buying silage, haylage or high-moisture grain and similar items. If possible pay on a dry matter basis and periodically test samples for moisture to use in payment. When buying on a volume basis, such as a silo, agree ahead of time on the amounts present. Various tables or charts differ in their estimates of material present in various types of silos.

3. Check costs and availability for various roughages such as corn stalklage, corn cobs, corn cannery waste, lima bean or pea-vine silage, straw, and apple pomace with or without hulls.

4. Obtain costs and check supplies of various high-fiber feedstuffs such as beet or citrus pulp, dehydrated alfalfa, wet and dry brewers grains, distillers grains, malt sprouts, oat mill feed, soyhulls or soybean mill feed and whole cottonseed.

5. Check costs and availability of various energy and protein sources for use in concentrate feeding. Barley, oats, mids, corn gluten feed, whole soybeans (raw or heat-treated). Added fat and oil products also may be considered, if these can be handled in mixing or feeding. Don't assume that shelled corn and soybean oil meal are your best buys. Ear corn often is a better buy than shelled corn and provides more fiber when forage feed is limited. Consider harvesting corn grain as ear corn if you are short of forage. Often barley and sometimes oats are a better buy than corn, especially shelled.
Whole cottonseed often may not enter least-cost rations unless forage is severely restricted.

Also get prices on suitable manufactured dairy feeds and protein concentrates to use in least-cost formulation of rations.

6. Choose a course of action based on least-cost formulation of rations. Most dairymen should get professional help with this to make certain that rations meet the nutritional and physical needs of the cattle. Such service is available from Merkle Laboratory at Penn State, and some county agricultural extension offices, among other sources.

7. Recalibrate feed scoops and other equipment, if you feed by volume and you change formulas. Concentrates containing a lot of bulky, high-fiber ingredients may weigh considerably less per unit of volume than a corn and soybean oil meal mix. A high-barley mix may weigh considerably more than one containing oats.

8. Balance rations for all groups of heifers and for dry cows as well as milking animals. It is important when trying to conserve forage not to waste feed by feeding unbalanced rations. If there are more heifers on the farm than you will need for replacement purposes, sell excess replacement heifers. There may be possibilities to farm out heifers to areas where pasture or other feeds are plentiful which may be cheaper than bringing feed to the farm.

9. Make sure cows are paying their way. Are they covering feed costs, labor, utilities and testing fees? You may well increase total production by culling unthrifty animals and providing more forages for the more efficient cows that remain than by trying to maintain herd size. For example, if you are purchasing hay at $120/ton, it is probably costing about $2.40-2.50/day in feed cost for lactating cows. This amounts to about 24-30# milk needed to recover feed cost just to break even. This extra feed may well be utilized more efficiently and produce more milk by feeding it to cows who are efficient producers, but are held back by a lack of good feed.

Viral Genes Can Program Livestock To Resist Disease

WASHINGTON — For the first time, genes of a weak virus inserted in chickens by researchers are being passed from generation to generation, scientists at the U.S. Department of Agriculture report.

This brings closer the day when geneticists can custom-design chickens to resist disease, lay bigger eggs, or have other traits valued by producers, said Lyman B. Crittenden, a geneticist with the Agricultural Research Service's Regional Poultry Research Laboratory in East Lansing, Mich.

Until now, researchers had succeeded in getting only one vertebrate — the mouse — to pass to its offspring viral genes inserted in the laboratory, said microbiologist Donald W. Salter, Crittenden's colleague.

The scientists actually inserted the virus right through eggshells near 1-day-old embryos that hatched and later were bred with virus-free chickens. So far, said Salter, the genes have been inherited by three generations of descendants from that first pairing. "With more research," said Crittenden, "turning the avian leukosis virus against itself may be one of the first practical achievements of exploiting its need to use a cell's own genes to reproduce." Consumers and chicken producers will benefit, he said, when scientists find how to use genes of the virus not only to make it self-destruct but also to transport other useful genes into chickens.

Changing the genetic inheritance of animals is not new, but it's always been done through breeding, by mating animals that have desirable traits. Today many scientists are trying new genetic techniques to make breeding more efficient. Within five to 10 years, Crittenden said, the research should provide harmless virus genes into which other inheritable genes can be spliced for research uses.

The two scientists used the avian leukosis virus because it's a retrovirus, which invades a cell's own genes to "trick" the cell into producing more virus particles.

"Once inside the cell, a retrovirus — unlike other viruses — releases an enzyme that converts the virus' RNA to DNA," Crittenden said. "This DNA seeks out the cell's genes and merges into them. The cell then produces a new virus particle."

The poultry industry is closely following the work of the two scientists and their collaborators, scientists at the Frederick (Md.) Cancer Research Facility and a Veterans Administration facility in Salt Lake City, Utah. Their studies are reported in the March issue of the journal Virology, and patent applications are being processed.

"What we did," Crittenden said, "was inject the retrovirus into hundreds of fertilized, day-old embryos which we then hatched in an incubator. If tests showed the DNA of a chicken's blood cells contained the virus genes, we bred that chicken with one free of the virus and tested their progeny to find ones that inherited the virus genes from the parent. Then we repeated that step for a second generation of chicks and found that the viral genes had become a stable part of the chick's genetic library."

To turn the virus against itself, Salter said, "we would have to insert defective virus genes. These could not produce virus particles but could block similar disease-causing viruses from entering a cell."

Chickens and other animals could someday have custom-inserted genes to control growth and other functions. But this could occur only after much more is learned about which genes or gene groups regulate these functions, said Crittenden, who in 1985 was named one of the research agency's outstanding scientists for his work with poultry viruses.

Retroviruses could provide a much more efficient way to integrate new genes in other farm animals, said Robert J. Wall, member of a research team doing this work at the agency's Agricultural Research Center in Beltsville, Md.

Growth Hormones In Beef No Health Threat

COLLEGE PARK, Md. – In the beef industry's quest to produce a leaner cut of meat, growth hormones such as estrogen play an important role.

But are consumers giving up fat for harmful chemical additives injected into beef? The answer from nutritionists and the beef industry is "no."

Estrogen, a natural substance that controls sexual development and normal reproductive cycles, is manufactured by the human body. And we get estrogen from many of our food sources, according to nutritionists.

Moreover, the estrogen we consume by eating these foods doesn't appear to build up in our bodies. Scott Barao, a livestock specialist for The University of Maryland Cooperative Extension Service, explains: "The human body simply compensates for the estrogen we consume by manufacturing less of its own."

And just as they may be unnecessarily worried about estrogen build up, consumers may also be under the mistaken impression that the amounts of estrogen in beef are too high to begin with — or at least higher than the amounts found in other foods.

But according to Barao, a three-ounce serving of cooked beef contains less than three-fourths of a nanogram of estrogen. And a nanogram is only one-one/millionth of a gram.

"If you think of a football field having one million blades of grass as one gram, then a nanogram would be one blade of grass in that football field," says Dr. Gary Smith, head of the food and animal sciences department at Texas A&M University.

"And the amount of estrogen in three ounces of beef would be roughly the equivalent of two blades of grass plucked from 100 football fields," he adds.

How does that compare to other foods? "An equivalent serving of milk has five times as much estrogen," says Barao. "Soybean oil has 85,000 times as much, and wheat germ has 175,000 times as much estrogen."

ARTS-WAY

MID-MOUNTS
Out Ahead In Design And Value

Compare any other mid-mount with Arts-Way and see why these mowers have led the field since 1939

Arts-Way uses a separate power belt between tractor PTO and the mower's drive pulley, with a second belt to drive the three blades This 2-belt system eliminates the need for belt twisting, prolongs belt life, makes tension adjustments and belt changing easy (Compare with some makes that use a single belt turning and twisting around as many as 7 pulleys and PTO)

Other features: 7-gauge steel decks ■ High-suction, drop-design blades for a smoother cut ■ Full 1" diameter machined spindles with Timken roller bearings top and bottom ■ Sealed bearings on PTO idler pulleys ■ Puncture-proof semi-pneumatic tires ■ Designed for side, rear or front-PTO drive tractors up to 49 HP ■ Cutting height adjustable from 1" to 5" ■ One-Year Limited Warranty

And Arts-Way mid-mounts fit a wide range of tractors from the newest models (including imports) to old farm favorites See your dealer for a complete list

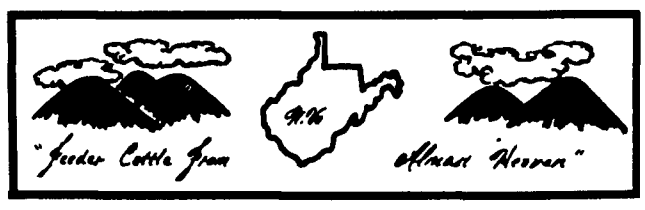
WEST VIRGINIA FEEDER CATTLE SALES 1987 SPRING SCHEDULE

Sales sponsored by
West Virginia Livestock Auction Markets
West Virginia Cattlemen's Association
West Virginia Beef Improvement Board



WELCOME TO THE WEST VIRGINIA SPRING CATTLE SALES!

The West Virginia Livestock Auction Markets and the West Virginia Cattlemen's Association are making an effort to improve our spring feeder cattle sales. The Livestock Section of the West Virginia Department of Agriculture has graded our fall special calf sales for many years This practice has provided farmers with an excellent method of selling livestock and has provided buyers with a large number of high quality, uniform cattle We believe that our spring feeder cattle are of high quality; therefore, to improve our sale operations and increase uniformity, the WVDA Livestock Section will apply the USDA grade standards at most sale locations. This will provide USDA grade information to producers of the cattle, as well as to buyers of the cattle. We welcome you to our West Virginia spring feeder cattle sales and encourage you to call us if you have any questions.
